FEARS ILLNESS HINDERS STATE SUPREME COURT

Assembly Finds One Judge Inactive.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., May 3.—[Special.]—A bill for two Supreme court commissioners has brought into open discussion in the legislature in the last week the question of whether the work of the high tribunal is being held back by the inactivity of two of the judges, Justice William M. Farmer of Vandalia and Warren W. Duncan of Marion. The legislators treat it as a matter of delicacy, but in both senate and house the question has been raised as to how far ill health has handicapped the court.

JUSTICE WARREN W. DUNCAN.

Chief Justice Frank K. Dunn was questioned at a hearing Wednesday before the house judiciary committee, which had before it the court commissioners act. Truman A. Snell [Dem. Carlinville] asked the direct question whether one of the justices failed to write an opinion for a year and a half due to impaired health.

Incapacitated Year and Half.

"Judge Dunn," said Mr. Snell, "I have heard that one justice of the Supreme court didn't write an opinion for a year and a half. Is that true?"

"If you want to look at the records," replied Justice Dunn, "you can find out who wrote opinions. Well, it's true and we might as well admit it."

Representative Snell later said he referred to Justice Duncan, who has been in ill health for some two years.

At another point in the debate Representative Arthur Roe [Dem., Vandalia] asked the chief justice:

"Judge Dunn, could the Supreme court clear its docket without commissioners?"

"Yes, I think we could," answered Justice Dunn, "if all the members were able to work; if we had no sickness or deaths."

Farmer Works Though Invalid.

Justice Farmer, the Nestor of the bench, who has been on the Supreme court a quarter of a century and in all has been a judge for 34 years, has been in ill health for some four years. He does his work at his Vandalia home, and despite his handicap, has the reputation of keeping right up with his work. As cases come into the court they are dealt out to the judges in rotation, each thus getting a one-seventh share of the causes filed, and Justice Farmer's friends are always pointing to his exhibition of "indomitable will" in keeping up with his cases despite disability.

Judge Farmer's absence from conferences of the court has led legislators to raise the question whether this does not impair the bench conference by depriving it of his counsel and store of knowledge. He was present for the conference at the April term, but his disability is such that travel is a discomfort. For some time reports have been current at the Supreme court building and in the legislature that Justice Farmer may retire on a pension. As successors, Judge Norman L. Jones of Carrollton, Judge Thomas M. Jett of Hillsboro, and Judge F. R. Dove of Shelbyville, are mentioned. All are Democrats, and it is a Democratic district.

Suggest Compulsory Pensioning.

The disinclination of judges to relinquish public service and retire on pension has led some members of the Illinois judicial advisory council to consider legislation for compulsory retirement at a certain age, as in New York. Senator James J. Barbour [Rep., Chicago] and others have advanced the idea in recent weeks.

Under the pension act of 1919 any judge of a court of record, who has served as a judge in one or more of the courts for periods aggregating 24 years is entitled on reaching the age of 65 to retire on a pension equal in amount annually to one-half the salary he received during his last year of service. For a Supreme court justice the pension would be $7,500 a year.

Both Justices Farmer and Duncan have passed the service and age requirements. Some senate members of the judicial advisory council advocate the passage of an act for com-

WORLD FINANCE LEADERS TO SEE CHICAGO JUBILEE

Visit Here to Follow Washington Parley.

All entries for the Chicago Jubilee parade on May 11, floats or otherwise, must be in the hands of the parade committee by 6 p. m. Tuesday night, May 5. No entrants will be permitted in the procession who have not been officially approved by the Jubilee committee. All approved entries will receive an official assignment card from the committee. If you intend to enter the parade, get in touch with the Jubilee committee, the Chicago Association of Commerce, One North La Salle street, immediately.

With the opening today of the International Chamber of Commerce convention in Washington, comprising delegates from forty-six nations, Silas H. Strawn, Chicago attorney and newly elected president of the United States Chamber of Commerce, will formally invite one prominent representative from each country to attend the Chicago Jubilee.

The distinguished foreigners, all noted economists or business leaders, will be guests of the Chicago Association of Commerce at a special luncheon on May 13 as one of the features of the Chicago Jubilee. The luncheon probably will be at the Palmer house. All the foreign consuls in Chicago and approximately 2,500 other guests will be invited.

Theunis Will Preside.

The delegates to the world business convention gathered at the capital last night, ready for the opening session this morning, which will be addressed by President Hoover. Among them were George Theunis, former Belgian premier, retiring president of the International Chamber of Commerce. M. Theunis will preside over the convention during the week. He is one of the leaders who will be invited to the Chicago Jubilee by Mr. Strawn.

The appearance here of the foreign leaders will give an international significance to the Chicago Jubilee, which already has attained a national importance. The interest of the United States in the celebration is growing steadily as the result of invitations which have been sent to thousands of motorists over the country by Thomas P. Henry of Detroit, president of the American Automobile association.

Flood of Inquiries Received.

The national headquarters of the association in Washington has received an avalanche of inquiries from every section of the country regarding the Jubilee. In his former invitations Mr. Henry pointed out that the Chicago Jubilee will have many attractions for tourists and is coming at a time when the travel urge is running strong.

"The Chicago Jubilee," said Mr. Henry, "is certain to loom large as a motoring objective, and the associations asks its members to visit it if possible. The Chicago Motor club, through its president, Charles M. Hayes, will act as host to out of town autoists."

Speed Up Preparations.

With the Jubilee only a week away, the various groups in charge and the many participating speeded up their programs yesterday. One week from tonight will be staged the inaugural parade, miles long, with hundreds of floats, scores of bands led by 500 men of the Chicago Federation of Musicians, military units, and civic organizations.

Prizes will be awarded during the Jubilee, according to Frederick J. Ashley, chairman of the coördinating committee of the Chicago Association of Commerce, in charge of the Jubilee.

Three trophies will be given to the most distinctive floats, and two plaques for the best decorated buildings or stores. One plaque will be awarded for the loop and the other for an outlying district.

Three Prizes for Floats.

The parade emblems will be awarded for the finest historical float, the most beautiful float, and the most original float. Carson Pirie Scott & Co. and Marshall Field & Co. are among the donors of the prizes.

TWO WOUNDED AS HOODLUM SLUGS PARK POLICEMAN

West Park Policeman Edward Fitzpatrick fought a revolver battle yesterday at the busy intersection of Sacramento and Jackson boulevards with a young hoodlum who had slugged him with a ball bat. The policeman received a bullet wound in the forehead which did not penetrate the skull and a motorist riding with his family was slightly wounded by another of the hoodlum's bullets.

Policeman Fitzpatrick, who is 38 years old and lives at 4241 North Ozark street, was struck with the bat on the back of the head while pulling the police box at the corner. As he turned he saw his assailant fleeing. Fitzpatrick fired six times and the hoodlum fired three shots at the policeman. One of the bullets struck the policeman in the center of the forehead. Another broke the windshield of an automobile in which Thomas Caldrotta, 1038 North Avers avenue, was riding with his wife and three children. Caldrotta was wounded slightly on one cheek.

The policeman reported the affair to his station and then got into an auto and went to the Washington Boulevard hospital, where examination showed he had escaped a fracture of the skull.

A Copper Puts His Foot Down in City Hall

Policeman Bartholomew Curtin paced the offices of the city treasurer in the city hall yesterday. About him, stored in strong steel boxes, were the funds of the city [if any] and a due sense of the importance of his guard duty filled the mind of Policeman Curtin. He had been on the force three months and this was the first time he had been assigned to the city treasurer's office.

How would he defend the vaults, he pondered, if bandits suddenly descended upon him? He made sure that his gun could be plucked quickly and easily from its holster.

He's Ready for Anything.

He tramped the rounds, locking doors, testing windows. Then, assured that from one direction only could a foray be made, Policeman Curtin sat down comfortably in a chair facing in that direction. In so doing, his foot brushed a lever which projected from the floor.

A series of soft explosions followed. In the fire alarm office, four floors overhead, an alarm clanged. At the detective bureau word was flashed that a raid upon the city treasurer's office was in progress. And with gun drawn, Policeman Curtin groped through a city treasurer's office filled with fog, tears streaming from his eyes.

Comrades to the Rescue.

Through the streets from the south sped four detective bureau squads. From the north and east and west rumbled fire engines. A wild rumor spread that Mayor Cermak was in his office and that the disturbance was directed against him.

A crowd of blue shirted firemen massed for a rush into the city hall. The plain clothes men gripped their cigars in their teeth and advanced bravely. In the corridors outside the city treasurer's office these brave men began to shed tears. By this time also, the fire alarm operators on the sixth floor were tearful. In the city treasurer's office rescuers found Policeman Curtin. He was leaning out a window and his tears were falling into La Salle street.

The next time Policeman Curtin makes his plans to defend the city vaults he will not forget, he said, to keep an eye on, and his foot off, a dozen tear gas bombs about the treasurer's office.

JEFF MAKES SAD MISTAKE IN HIS CHOICE OF AUTOS

Jeff Sharkey, 30 years old and colored, of 210 East 43th street, made an error in judgment last night.

He was standing at 43th street and South Park way when a shiny new automobile approached. Mr. Sharkey stepped into the street. He waved his hand commandingly. The car halted. Mr. Sharkey walked up to the machine.

He reached into his pocket and opened the side door. Suddenly he halted. Words froze on his lips with the exception of an astonished "O!" Sharkey had spied the gilded letters spelling the ominous word "Police" on the side of the car.

"What is it you want?" demanded Sergt. John McCormick as four pistols and a shotgun pointed toward Sharkey.

Sharkey thought swiftly. "All I wants is change for a $10 bill."

Police searched him. They found a revolver, but they did not find a $10 bill. Sharkey was taken to the lockup.

BULLETIN.

NUMASAKI, Japan, May 4.—(AP)—Seiji Yoshiwara, Japanese flier, completed the first leg of his flight to the United States when he landed here at 3:25 p. m. today (1:25 a. m. Chicago daylight time), after a 368 mile hop from Tokio.

TOKIO, May 4 [Monday.]—(AP)—Seiji Yoshiwara, 27 year old Japanese flyer, took off at 10:10 a. m. today [7:10 p. m. Sunday, Chicago daylight saving time] on a 6,268 mile flight to San Francisco via the Aleutian islands and British Columbia.

The daring aviator, known as the "Lindbergh of Japan," roared away from Haneda aërodrome here while thousands bade him farewell. He was alone in his light open Junkers seaplane and carried only a few rice cakes. The plane is without a radio.

If successful in his flight he will deliver to President Hoover at Washington a message of good will from the Japanese magazine king, Seija Noma, backer of the flight.

First Hop 368 Miles.

He hoped to complete the first stage of the journey to Numasaki, 368 miles north of Tokio, today. The next jump would take him 297 miles farther north to the extreme tip of Hokkaido island. Then his itinerary calls for flights over the Kurile islands to Petropavlovsk, Siberia, over the Bering sea to the Aleutians, and, after several stops, to Seward, Alaska. From there he would fly southward to Seattle, then to San Francisco. He would then go to Washington.

The young flyer expressed confidence of completing the flight without mishap despite the gales which swirl from the arctic circle and the fog which, during May, obscures the Aleutian islands more than a quarter of the time.

Even the prediction of Thomas Ash Jr., who is planning a non-stop flight to America about May 30, that "it will be almost a miracle if Yoshiwara succeeds," did not deter him.

"I wish Yoshiwara all the success in the world," Ash said, "and he needs it. His flight is a most hazardous one. He is alone, while the American army flyers in 1924 were able to assist each other in the rough weather over the Pacific. Yoshiwara's greatest handicap will be in locating his refueling stations, which may be obscured by fog."

DO-X Nears Bolama.

LISBON, Portugal, May 3.—(AP)—The DO-X, giant German air liner which took off from Rio de Oro on the west coast of Africa this morning for Bolama, Africa, 950 miles way, was flying 100 miles south of Saint-Louis, Senegal, according to the latest report received tonight by radio. This is more than half the distance of this stage of its flight to South America.

PRISONERS TAKE DOORS OFF CELLS AND WALK AWAY

There was a jail delivery in the village of Glenview yesterday. Chief of Police J. Z. Miller is wondering how the prisoners removed their cell doors from the hinges of the town lockup without any tools.

However, one of the prisoners was a steam fitter and the other was a welder. In fact, Chief Miller had arrested them while they were engaged in removing metal fittings in the Garden of Allah roadhouse at Waukegan road and Lake street at 1 a. m. yesterday morning. They had done about $10,000 worth of damage, according to Miller. The chief put them in the lockup, and when he arose at 9 a. m. he found the cell doors stripped from their hinges and the culprits gone. The prisoners had identified themselves as Floyd Wright, 29 years old, 3710 Altgeld street, a welder, and his brother, Raymond, 6628 South Keating avenue, a steam fitter.

BOMB DAMAGES LIQUOR JOINT ON HALSTED ST.

A mysterious bombing of a three story building at 417 South Halsted street early this morning wrecked windows in the structure and nearby places and caused damage estimated at $1,000. Plate glass windows in the store of the Chicago Tobacco company at 419 South Halsted street were shattered, as were those in Hutchinson's restaurant across the street. Two witnesses saw the bomb thrown from a large sedan, which came to a stop in front of the place, then speeded away.

The place was occupied as a cheap booze joint by a man known only as "Big Bill," reputed to be a partner in the alky business with Charles [Monkey Face] Genker, who until recently conducted a disorderly house at 413 and 415 South Halsted street. Since the recent vice raids by Capt. Richard Gill, Genker's place has been closed and padlocked.

In an earlier bombing the auction house of J. Ralph at 2727-29 Lincoln avenue was the target. The explosive was placed at a rear door and caused damage of about $50.

CASH IS RAISED BY WIFE TO SAVE GAMBLER'S LIFE

James Hackett, Blue Island gambler, paid $150,000 ransom to kidnapers and returned home unharmed yesterday morning. He was kidnaped Friday afternoon. For two days his wife worked frantically converting securities and jewels into cash and borrowing money, mortgaging the home, in order to meet the demand of the kidnapers.

Hackett said last night that the $150,000 was all he had. It was possible for his wife to raise the money only upon the assurance that he would sign the mortgage on his home when he was freed.

Life in Danger.

Three differen. gangs had been shadowing him for weeks to take him for a ride, Hackett said his captors told him, and from the conversation of his guards he deduced they were affiliated with a national organization which makes a business of kidnaping wealthy men for ransom. The gang that captured him wanted to take either him or his son, George, 20 years old, whom they had followed on several occasions last week, Hackett stated.

On March 3 of this year a powerful dynamite bomb was laid intended to blow up the building at 119th street and Vincennes avenue where Hackett had his gambling place, but through an accident it failed to explode. It was a giant bomb, police declared, and would have wrecked buildings for a block around had it exploded. A night watchman, William Maier, was shot to death by the gang that laid the bomb.

Others Kidnaped by Gang.

There was no connection between this attempted bombing and his kidnaping, Hackett declared, but he said he was certain the men who were successful in the $150,000 crime were the same who on Jan. 6 of this year kidnaped Daniel Chamberlain, another Blue Island gambler and liquor dealer, and who also abducted James Ward, chief bootlegger of Chicago Heights.

Hackett, until this experience, had resisted all efforts of gangsters to get his wealth or take his profits from him. He is known to have had slot machines all through the southern portion of the county long before prohibition led to the formation of powerful gangs. These gangs, such as those led by Capone, the Saltis-McErlane gang of the south side, and the Bugs Moran gang of the north side, dealing in liquor, decided to annex the slot machine business in conjunction with their liquor sales.

Refuses Deal with Saltis.

It is said that the Saltis gang encroached upon Hackett's slot machine business and then offered as a compromise to allow Hackett to retain 50 per cent of his business in partnership with them. Hackett refused. Then Saltis stole fifty of Hackett's slot machines and Hackett decided to get out of that racket rather that cooperate with the Saltis gang.

Later, according to stories current in Blue Island, Hackett was doing well at his 119th street and Vincennes establishment and again the gangsters demanded a 50-50 partnership on threats to kill him, bomb his place, or in some way put him out of business. They told him he could have "half or none."

Retires from Gambling.

Hackett, who is 57 years old and weighs 240 pounds, was in partnership with Jimmy Blouin, one time national bowling champion, and refused to deal with the racketeers. His place had not been going for a month prior to the attempted bombing, according to assertions in Blue Island yesterday. Hackett had made sufficient money on which to retire and he has enjoyed leisure for four or five months.

His son, George, lives with him in the Hackett home at 12916 Greenwood avenue, Blue Island. A daughter is away at college.

Last Tuesday one gang of kidnapers followed George Hackett to the Navajo Fields Country club, five miles west of Blue Island on 127th street. For some reason they did not molest young Hackett. On Wednesday the father and a friend drove to the country club to play golf, and they were followed, but the kidnapers thought the friend was a policeman.

Followed by Kidnapers.

Friday afternoon Hackett drove home and not finding his wife or son there thought they had gone to the golf course. He drove to the Navajo club and on the way a car containing three men passed and they waved at him. Later he passed this car and did not recognize any of the occupants, but thought they were casual acquaintances. This car followed him into the club grounds.

While he was parking his car in a stall a man came to the side of the car and pointed a gun at him and said: "Don't move or make any noise or I'll kill you as sure as there is a God above. You're going for a ride."

"I looked to the other side and there was another man there with a gun pointed at me," said Hackett yesterday in relating his experience. "Then I looked behind and there were men in a car behind with a machine gun and sawedoff shotguns. I knew it was useless to resist. The first fellow told me to move over and keep quiet and he climbed into the car and I moved over to the other seat. He drove it out of the yard and down the road, the other car following.

Blindfolded in Car.

"A mile or so down the road I was told to get in the kidnaper's car and lie on the floor. They wound gauze bandage all around my head so I couldn't see. I judge that I was driven fifteen or twenty miles before we stopped. One of the men was abusive, calling me vile names and threatening to bang me on the head with the butt of his gun, but I said there was no need of violence, that I would do what I was told.

"They took me into a house and on the way in I heard the leader blaming the fellow who had abused me. He told him that such treatment was unnecessary because I was a good fellow.

"Inside the house they had put handcuffs on me and told me to lie on the bed. Two men stayed in the room all the time. I heard a lot of their conversation and it convinced me they were old timers in the kidnaping business and that these gangs worked together all over the country, one gang helping another.

Ask About Prospects.

"When they kidnaped Chamberlain in January they asked him who else in Blue Island had money and the names of all those in rackets. They only got about $600 from him. They asked me the same thing and I didn't tell them.

"'You can't hold out anything on us,' one of the men said to me. 'We get information about how much dough you fellows have from the income tax office. We know how much a tap you can stand and you'll have to pay $150,000.'

"Outside of the first abuse the men were courteous to me, calling me Jim and telling me I could have anything I wanted to eat, drink or smoke. They put a box of cigars beside me. I couldn't eat and I didn't want any of their drinks, although they said they had any kind of whisky, beer or wine I wanted. When I wouldn't eat they told me not to be afraid, that they were not going to poison me.

"They had handcuffs on one of my wrists and the other link was attached to a bed post. When I complained that my hand was becoming numb they would change the cuff to the other wrist. They offered to shave me and they wanted to get me a clean shirt, but I didn't want either.

Wife Gets Message.

"They called my wife that night, Friday, and said to her, 'Adeline, we have a message from your husband and it is going to cost you one hundred and fifty G.' She didn't understand at first but she soon found out what they meant. They told her unless she furnished the money she would never see me again in the same old form as she last saw me.

"She was frightened and said she would get what money she could. They warned her not to tell the police. They said they were afraid our home telephone would be tapped so she was to go to the place of business of a friend of mine in Chicago next day and wait there for a call from them. When she finally got together $150,000 she agreed with them on a password by which she would know she was giving the money to the right parties.

"They told her to have our boy George drive her to the meeting place. She wouldn't do that, saying she was afraid they would harm the boy. She asked permission to have Jimmy Blouin, my former partner, go with her and they said that would be all right, but they must drive in my son George's car. They knew all about George's car, its license number, kind and so forth, and they knew the name of our dog as well as my wife's first name.

Fears for Her Safety.

"I was mortally afraid something would happen to my wife. I knew of the proposed meeting and I thought she might call the police and then there might be some shooting and perhaps she would be hurt. Drops of perspiration as big as my thumb nail were falling from my head as I waited there those few hours while the gang went to meet my wife. But everything worked out all right. She drove down a road as she had been directed and finally she was signaled to stop. The password was given and the money was handed over.

"The men came back and told me the money had been paid and I was to be freed. What a relief! About 2 o'clock Sunday morning they brought me out into an automobile and drove around and around for a half hour. Finally they got out and told me not to do anything for five minutes. When that time had elapsed I took the bandage off my eyes, the only time it was off since they had captured me, excepting on one or two occasions, when they brought food and newspapers and told me I could read for a few minutes if I wished.

Freed Near Melrose Park.

"I was in my own car and I was somewhere west of Melrose Park. I drove home and here I am, not so much the worse physically but broke financially. I never saw any of the kidnapers before and I have no idea who they are or where they came from, excepting that they were all Americans, with no hint of any foreign nationality about any of them."

Hackett made no report to the police yesterday, but said he would do so today, as a matter of form and not with the hope that any of his money would be recovered or that any conviction would follow. He said he is doubtful if he could identify any of the men he saw when they seized him and before the bandage was wrapped around his head.

Tells of Paying Ransom.

Blouin's story of the payment of the ransom money to the kidnapers was told last night. After Mrs. Hackett had gathered the money they awaited instructions. At 7:30 o'clock Saturday evening a telephone call came for Blouin.

"Have you the money?" a voice asked.

"It's all ready," Blouin replied.

"Then leave Blue Island about 10:15 o'clock and drive west in 127th street till you cross the bridge over the Sag canal," the caller directed. "There'll be somebody there to tell you what to do."

The bridge is two miles east of the Navajo Fields Country club.

Blouin and Mrs. Hackett wrapped the money—$500 and $1,000 bills—in a newspaper and set out at the hour directed. At the western end of the bridge another automobile drew alongside and a spotlight flashed into their car.

Meeting with Kidnapers.

"Drive slowly along about a mile west," one of the occupants of the other car ordered. This automobile followed Blouin and Mrs. Hackett to the spot designated. Another car was parked by the side of the road there. A man got out of the parked car.

"Have you got the money?" he asked. Blouin nodded and handed over the package of bills.

"We've done our part," Blouin said. "Now you return Hackett unharmed."

"We're men of our word," the kidnaper replied. "If the money's here Hackett will be home. It'll be several hours, though."

With this the kidnapers departed and Blouin and Mrs. Hackett returned home. They greeted Hackett when he arrived, driving the car in which he had been abducted.

POSSE SEEKS FARMER BELIEVED KIDNAPED; FIND SHELLS IN AUTO

Bryant, Ill., May 3.—[Special.]—A posse of nearly 100 men under Deputy Sheriff Ben Harter scoured the woods and countryside for miles around this community today in search of Andrew Weber, 47 years old, wealthy stock farmer of Ipava, who disappeared last Wednesday and is believed to be the victim of kidnapers.

The search began when Weber's automobile was found in a small road three-quarters of a mile west, and one mile north of here. In the machine were four empty revolver shells. No marks indicating violence were discovered.

Weber, who is reputed to be worth $75,000, left his home for Lewistown, the Fulton county seat, to pay his taxes. He carried a large sum of money. He has not been seen since. Sheriff C. C. Prickett believes Weber was kidnaped, and is now possibly being held for ransom.

DONOR OF BLOOD TO SAVE 150 IS DEAD, AGED 47

Philadelphia, Pa., May 3.—(AP)—Howard M. Kennedy, 47, world war hero and president of the Free Blood Donors' Association of America, died at his home today.

One way of looking at his unexpected death, physicians said, was that he gave his life to save those of perhaps 150 men, women and children. Friends estimated that in the last 18 years Kennedy had given more blood, in transfusions, to more persons than any other known man. And he gave it free.

His generosity, physicians said, took its toll today as he sat in his home. The many transfusions had placed a strain on his heart and it stopped beating.

On the battlefields of France Kennedy submitted to transfusion that saved the lives of 13 soldiers.

FIND NEW CLEW LINKING HEITLER AS GANG VICTIM

Flight of Killers to Chicago Traced.

The route of flight taken by the killers of the man believed to have been "Mike de Pike" Heitler, after dumping the vice monger's supposed body in a burning barn near Barrington last Thursday, was determined yesterday.

Having previously traced the slayers from Barrington to a point 15 miles nearer Chicago, at Itasca, where the car Heitler borrowed was set ablaze and abandoned, the police yesterday followed the route eight miles closer to the city when, in the shallow waters of the Des Plaines river at River Grove, they found the license plates of the borrowed car.

Trace License to Woman.

From this point, investigators are convinced, the killers followed Grand avenue back into Chicago. The state plates and Berwyn city license tag were traced to Mrs. Emily Mulcher of Berwyn, who loaned Heitler her car and who claims to have lived with him for 23 years.

Eight of the nine henchmen of Al Capone who were seized in a series of raids following partial identification of Heitler's body by his brother, Coleman [Dutch] Heitler, were booked at the detective bureau yesterday on disorderly conduct charges and released on bond.

The ninth, who had given his name as Fred Russo, was identified as Louis [Little New York] Campagna, against whom Judge John H. Lyle had issued a vagrancy warrant some months ago. After serving the warrant and booking Campagna for vagrancy, the police released him under a $10,000 bond.

"Although we have reason to suspect that the Capone mob might have desired Heitler's death and, on that ground, might have had sufficient cause to hold the prisoners, we couldn't detain them much longer in the present situation," Pat Roche, chief investigator for the state's attorney, explained.

No Positive Indentification.

Roche's reference was to the fact that the body has not been positively identified and that the police are still uncertain whether Heitler has, in fact, been killed. Among those released were "Dago" Lawrence Mangano, Capone gambling manager; Phillip D'Andrea, Capone handyman, and Tony Capezio, former owner of the Circus café where the Moran gang massacre is reputed to have been plotted.

At 11 o'clock last night Michael Ahern, attorney representing Capone, telephoned Roche offering to surrender the gangster on condition he would be released if absolved of complicity in the Heitler case. Roche refused.

"I'll deal with Capone personally, not through his lawyer," Roche declared. "When we want Capone we'll go after him. When he arrest him he'll be tossed in jail like any other hoodlum. If terms must be made we'll dictate the terms, not Capone."

COUPLE TRAPPED BY FIRE SAVED IN NORTH SIDE HOME

A husband and wife, trapped in their third floor apartment by fire which attacked the building where they live at 915 Winona avenue, were carried down ladders to safety by firemen shortly before midnight last night. They are Mr. and Mrs. John Pytlik. Two dogs also were saved. The fire started in a doctor's office on the third floor and spread through the building. Three fire companies responded. Damage was estimated by fire officials at $30,000. Six families occupying the building were made homeless.

COST OF LIVING FALLS 20 TO 50 PER CENT IN YEAR

Food, Meat, Drugs and Furnishings Drop.

The cost of living has come down. No matter where she turns these days, bargains tempt the housewife. On her daily trips to market she finds fresh and canned foodstuffs priced twenty per cent lower than a year ago, meats reduced about thirty per cent on the average, and fruits, excepting for the luxury items, selling for one-half the price of May, 1930.

Turning the pages of her newspaper, the housewife sees furniture, rugs, draperies and other home furnishings advertised to sell from twenty to sixty per cent below the semi-annual sale prices of last August. At the store of her choice she finds no shop worn pieces, but merchandise fresh from the factory. The price cutting has begun with the manufacturer.

Dispute Status of Rents.

In other items of the household budget the same condition prevails in greater or less degree. With respect to rents property managers are in dispute, some maintaining that the May leases this year show another general reduction, while others insist that the rental cuts a year ago brought rents to the lowest level compatible with the present tax rate.

For prospective home builders, however, bargain prices are available. Architects and subdividers declare that the last twelve months have brought about a 20 per cent cut in the cost of home construction. As an architect pointed out, the man who began figuring on a $12,000 bungalow a year ago may now build the home of his dreams for $9,000. Robert C. Ostergren, president of the Illinois Society of Architects, said that increased labor efficiency and lower prices of materials explain the reduced costs.

Even the cost of illness has come down. Dr. James Harger, president-elect of the Chicago Medical society, says that medical and hospital fees are 15 per cent lower than a year ago, notwithstanding the circumstance that physicians are now caring for fifty per cent more charity cases than formerly.

Compare Prices Now and Then.

A comparison of market price lists now and a year ago shows how costs have dropped. In May, 1930, the best table potatoes retailed at $1.39 the half bushel. Now they may be had at 49 cents the half bushel. As for butter, the grade which brought 44 cents a pound a year ago now goes over the retail counters at 24 to 27 cents.

If one demanded fresh eggs for the breakfast table at this time last year the price was 30 cents a dozen in cartons and 27 cents in bulk. They come now for 19½ cents in cartons and 17 cents in bulk.

A five pound sack of flour sold for 31 cents in May, 1930. Today it's 16 cents or thereabouts. And with coffee the grocers, despite the South American revolutions, have managed to trim the price from 5 to 7 cents a pound retail.

Cuts at Drug Stores.

The drug stores have achieved similar price cuts. Discussing the new trend, R. G. Knight, controller of the Walgreen company, mentioned reductions typical in both the independent and chain drug stores.

"There's a well known brand of mouth wash which sold for 79 cents in 1930," Mr. Knight illustrated. "We sell it now for 44 cents. A certain well advertised tooth paste, which was at 17 cents, is down to 29 cents. A popular toilet soap has been cut from 7 to 4 cents a bar."

Lower prices include even the tobacco counter, according to Mr. Knight. He mentioned a number of brands of cigars cut from 7 or 8 cents to a nickel and cigarets which, as now sold in tins of fifty, have been cut from $1.19 to $1.12.

Meat Drops 27 Per cent.

The American Institute of Meat Packers is authority for the statement that wholesale meat prices are down from 27 to 32 per cent and C. W. Kaiser, secretary of the Retail Meat Dealers' association, reported that, in his opinion, the retailers have passed on most of the savings to the consumers.

Excepting for strawberries and pineapples, the harvesting of which has been delayed by cool weather, fruit prices in Chicago average 50 per cent less than a year ago, according to Charles W. Irrang, vice president and auctioneer of the Chicago Fruit Auction.

On the subject of medical costs, Dr. Harger declared that many hospitals have cut room rents and the fees of laboratory and operating rooms to a point where they face large deficits. As an instance, he cited the case of St. Luke's, an endowed hospital which, he said, had a $200,000 deficit at the end of 1930.

Doctors Cutting Fees.

"Reputable physicians," said Dr. Harger, "have always adjusted their fees to the patient's ability to pay. In the present situation, this means that the average doctor is performing fifty per cent more charity work and scaling down his fees at least 25 per cent on paying patients. The lower prices on foods and medicines have been reflected in the lowering of hospital charges."

THORNTON GUN VICTIM KILLED SELF; POLICE SAY

Investigation of the death of William S. Maxwell, 65 years old, retired locomotive engineer, whose body was found yesterday morning on the floor of the garage in the rear of his home in Thornton, convinced county highway police he had committed suicide.

"I learned he was suffering from heart trouble for more than a year and was unable to work because of it," said Sergt. Henry Siegel of the Homewood station. "He was shot in the heart with his own revolver which he carried with him in his automobile for a long time, and there were powder marks on his clothing."

Maxwell and his wife were about to drive to Missouri to visit relatives and he had gone to the garage—as he said to lock it after bringing the machine to the front of the house—and Mrs. Maxwell heard the shot. She said she saw no one leave the garage.

POLICE IN EVANSTON READY TO WAR ON SCANTY BEACH SUITS

Although the bathing season has not gotten under way, the Evanston police force already is planning to make serious war on the kind of bathing suits that are built to let in the maximum of sunlight rather than to display a minimum of skin.

According to Policewoman Georgianna Juul, all feminine bathers at the Evanston beaches must have skirts on their suits and covering on their backs. The one piece streamline model is to be regarded as illegal for both men and women.

The beach at Calvary cemetery is not to be used this year, but the other four, those at Lee street, Clark street, Lincoln street and Sheridan square will be formally opened on June 1. Twenty lifeguards will be employed. Capt Otto Fricke of the Evanston coast guard station issued a warning that the lake was much lower than it was a year ago and suggested that divers exercise care in their early plunges.

TRAGEDY STALKS INTO BUREAU AND CANCELS CHARGE

Detective bureau police last night scratched the name of C. Wood Tatham of 1358 Bryn Mawr avenue off the book of court arraignments for this morning.

Tatham was arrested Saturday on a warrant charging him with passing a worthless check. Unable to furnish bond, he was held at the bureau. He became ill, however, and instead of being confined in a cell was allowed to sit in outer quarters Saturday night and last night.

During the evening Tatham telephoned his wife. The conversation ended abruptly and the prisoner arose. He started to walk away, but staggered and fell into the arms of Lockup Keeper Dan Geary. As Geary laid him down the telephone bell jingled. It was Mrs. Tatham.

"We were disconnected," she said. "Will you call my husband to the phone?"

Geary hesitated a moment. "We can't," he replied. "Mr. Tatham is back in his cell. He cannot talk to you."

The lockup keeper did not tell Mrs. Tatham that her husband had died suddenly.

INFLOW OF GOLD HELPS BANKS TO CUT BORROWINGS

New York, May 3.—(AP)—The heavy flow of gold into the United States this year has enabled the banks to reduce their borrowings at the federal reserve to the lowest point in years, the New York Federal Reserve bank explains in its monthly survey.

This inflow of the yellow metal, amounting to about 110 million dollars so far this year, has, nevertheless, had little apparent influence toward lowering of money rates or expansion of bank credit, the review explains, because of the tendency of banks to use the credit made available to reduce their borrowings. The inflow this year follows an addition to gold stocks of about 250 millions in 1930.

The review points to an increase of about 300 millions in deposits of private depositors in member banks outside of New York City as a significant development since early April. This "made available a considerable increase in purchasing power, the effects of which on business are as yet obscure," the review adds.

CLOSE STRETCH OF ROOSEVELT RD. FOR WIDENING

Two and a half miles of Roosevelt road east of Geneva will be closed for widening today and will remain closed for several weeks. The marked detour leaves Geneva south on the East River road and thence east over a narrow gravel country road, dusty in dry weather and muddy in wet, to return to Roosevelt road just west of its intersection with the Geneva-West Chicago road.

Also on Roosevelt road, a mile east of Glen Ellyn, there was a stretch of dusty and bumpy dirt yesterday where the old and broken concrete at the foot of Baker's hill was torn out preparatory to paving this gap left in last year's widening job in anticipation of a highway grade separation with a new north and south road.

Because of these conditions traffic is advised to use North avenue or Ogden avenue in place of Roosevelt road and its detour or detours.

CERMAK, LEWIS PRAISE POLES AT HISTORIC EVENT

75,000 Mark Anniversary of Contitution.

The 140th anniversary of the adoption of the constitution of the republic of Poland was observed yesterday with impressive ceremonies by a great crowd of Chicagoans of Polish descent. Senator James Hamilton Lewis, Attorney General Oscar Carlstrom, Mayor A. J. Cermak, and Maj. Gen. Frank Parker, commander of the 6th corps area, were among the speakers who lauded Poland's contribution to the United States.

JAN ROMASCKIEWICZ.

Constitution Adopted in 1791.

Kosciuszko played a prominent part in its adoption in 1791 after the second partition of Poland in the country's greatest period of cultural development. He led the army in the effort to maintain the constitution against the aggression of enemies, ending in the third partition, which wiped the country from the map of Europe. With the restoration of Poland after the world war the constitution of 1791 was revived.

Mayor Cermak appealed for the aid of citizens of Polish extraction to make Chicago the most beautiful city in the world. He pointed to the development of the lake front, boulevards, forest preserves and parks, pledging to continue improvements to make an ideal city and dispel the erroneous reputation the city has in the world.

Pledge to Reform Schools.

"With your help I will make Chicago the most wonderful and safest city in the world," Mayor Cermak said. "I have divorced politics from the police department and I now intend to divorce politics from our schools. The loyalty and patriotism which you received from your fatherland should be applied toward the redeeming of our great city."

Senator Lewis, in reviewing the history of Poland, pointed to its early republican spirit, which by absorption in the constitutions of European countries was in turn adopted in the American constitution.

U. S. Friend of Poland.

"As long as the United States remains a fixed government, the land of your fathers has a friend," the senator said. "She will continue to be a friend. Should the United States be destroyed by enemies, such as reds, you would lose a strong friend. To continue Poland, the Americans of Polish descent should do all in their power to keep our constitution firm and secure to perpetuate the dream of liberty and hope of justice in the Polish constitution."

Attorney General Carlstrom paid tribute to Kosciuszko and Pulaski, another general in Washington's army, for their part in establishing the independence of the United States. Maj Gen. Parker praised the part of American Poles in the world war. Representatives of consulates of European countries in Chicago pledged friendship to the new republic. City Controller M. S. Szymczak presided over the gathering.

ALLEGED SMUGGLER KILLED.

El Paso, Tex., May 3.—(AP)—A gun battle between liquor smugglers and immigration patrol officers last night resulted fatally for Guillermo Rodriguez, 19, said to have served a jail sentence for smuggling.

CERMAK TO MEET ADVISORY GROUP 1ST TIME TODAY

Citizen Aids to Be Told of Finance Plight.

Mayor Cermak's citizens' advisory committee, appointed to assist him in restoring economy and efficiency at the city hall, will hold its first meeting today in the mayor's office. The city's financial problem is expected to be the principal topic of discussion.

The advisory committee is composed of twenty-three business, labor and civic organization leaders named by the mayor in his inaugural address last Tuesday. Among the members are William R. Dawes, Elmer T. Stevens, Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank, Victor Olander, B. M. Winston, Gordon Strong, and Burt A. Massee.

Consider Finance Tangle.

Although the scope of the committee's work, as outlined by the mayor, will include a "thoroughgoing study" of every department and many phases of the municipal government, the tax warrant and pay roll situation probably will demand its first attention. Mr. Cermak has indicated that he wants the aid of prominent citizens in handling the city's financial affairs.

The mayor spent a busy Sabbath yesterday, working for several hours in his office over stacks of documents and correspondence.

"I've been working night and day and I haven't had a chance to really get started yet," the mayor explained as he paused from the task of giving instructions to his secretary, Henry Sonnenschein, and dictation to a tenographer. He added that he would have no further appointments to announce for a day or two.

Faces Active Week.

A week of activity faces the mayor, starting with today's meeting of the advisory committee. He will discuss the crime problem tomorrow at a luncheon of the Union League club. A special meeting of the city council has been called for Wednesday when further cabinet appointments probably will be submitted. Mr. Cermak also has promised "a lot of developments" with regard to the board of education which is to meet tomorrow.

Mayor Cermak last night attended the first Chicago performance of a crime melodrama at one of the loop theaters. He had announced a few days ago that he would see the play to determine the truth of reports that it depicted Chicago as crime ridden. Dispatches from Pittsburgh, where the show was staged previously, however, explained that the references to Chicago had been deleted.

The mayor said as he entered the theater that he contemplated taking no action to suppress the show and would not discuss it until tomorrow, if at all. He was accompanied by Ald. Jacob Arvey [24th] and County Commissioner Charles Weber. Several other city councilmen and other officials attended.

AUTO CARRYING STUDENT PARTY KILLS A WOMAN

Car Turns Over on Man Waiting for Trolley.

An unidentified woman, about 45 years old was killed early this morning when she was struck at Sheridan road and Castlewood terrace by an automobile driven by Briggs Dyer, 19 years old, 180 East Delaware place, an Art Institute student and son of A. H. Dyer, managing engineer of the Chicago office of a New York engineering corporation. Five other boys and girls in the car were injured when the machine crashed into a light post after striking the woman.

Paul Mann, an art student from Gary, Ind., and Miss Melba Garver, a stenographer, are in the Lakeview hospital with serious injuries. The others in the machine were William Gordon, 21, of 2329 North Kilbourn avenue; Albert Pearson, 20, of 162 East Pearson street, also a student at the Art institute and son of a prominent attorney at Indianapolis, Ind., and Miss Margaret Eush, 22, of 102 East Chestnut street, Miss Garver's roommate. They were questioned by police after their injuries were dressed at the hospital.

Aged Man Killed.

Jack Catalano, 75 years old, 2525 West Harrison street, was killed yesterday when he was struck by an automobile as it turned over after a crash with another car at Paulina and Jackson streets. His body was not identified until early this morning.

Catalano was standing at the corner waiting for a street car when the two machines approached. One, a large sedan, was driven north by Frank Pumilia, 4205 Flourney street, and going west was a smaller machine driven by John Bristia, 3112 Taylor street. The machines crashed near the spot where Catalano stood. Pumilia's car, as it overturned, hurtled through the air and pinned Catalano against a light post. Pumilia crawled from the wreckage and fled, but was later arrested.

Oak Park Woman Killed.

Miss Margaret Krempel, 21 years old, 1154 South Cuyler avenue, Oak Park, was killed last evening when two automobiles collided at Schubert and Linder avenues. The drivers of the cars, George Lavin, 22 years old, 217 South Taylor avenue, Oak Park, with whom she was riding, and John Vasi, 24 years old, 2841 Mobile avenue, were held by the police. Neither of the men was injured.

These deaths and one other increased the Cook county motor toll for the year to 183. The other victim:

Thomas Crop, 76 years old, 2859 West 25th place. Died in St. Anthony's hospital of injuries suffered on Wednesday, when he was struck at Kedzie boulevard and 26th street by an automobile driven by Cornelius Sullivan, 36 years old, 1923 West 55th street.

Corey Inquest Today.

Allen M. Culver, an attorney living at 333 Broadway, Wilmette, and maintaining offices at 35 South La Salle street, is to appear this morning at an inquest in the death of Chester Corey, 58 years old, vice president of the Harris Trust and Savings bank, who was killed, supposedly by a hit and run motorist, on Saturday night near his home at 210 Davis street, Evanston.

Two witnesses, Benno Schultze, proprietor of a radio store at 1836 North Halsted street, and William Feery, 5456 Ferdinand street, told Evanston police they saw Culver's car pass over Corey's body. The banker was taken to the Evanston hospital, where he died of a skull fracture and internal injuries.

Culver asserted his doubts that his machine had struck Corey. His first intimation of the accident came, Culver said, when the driver ahead of him, Feery, stopped his car and announced he had seen a body in the street to the rear.

REVELERS DRINK ON AS ONE LIES DEAD 24 HOURS

The body of James John Burns, 47 years old, 648 West 55th street, killed in a fight at a drunken party at 3013 Wallace street lay in the room where three others engaged in the battle continued to drink and play cards for twenty-four hours before it was found by the police last night. The other three disappeared but were rounded up later and gave incoherent accounts of the three day orgy.

The men arrested are Albert O'Neil, occupant of the house; William Pryor, 8244 South Carpenter street, and George McGrath, 471 West 71st street. They told the police the four began to drink in O'Neil's home on Thursday. Early Saturday evening there was a fight in which Burns was knocked out. They supposed he would recover in a short time and resumed their drinking. Twenty-four hours later it dawned on them that he was dead and they fled. The dead man was identified by his son.

BANK ACCOUNTS OF 37 CAPTAINS TO JURY TODAY

Banking records of 37 police captains, including Acting Commissioner John H. Alcock, will go under the scrutiny of the special grand jury's police corruption inquiry today when the jury resumes its investigation of police officials.

Already the inquiry has delved into the finances of 17 other captains, disclosing in some instances unusual affluence of the officers. On the other hand, five of these captains were publicly exonerated of any improprieties in their accounts.

GRAPPLES WITH BURGLAR AT HIS HOME; WOUNDED

Charles W. Baldridge, 62 years old, assistant to the chief engineer of the Santa Fe railroad, was shot and wounded last night in a struggle with a burglar in the rear of his home at 7000 Constance avenue.

Baldridge was talking in the living room of his home with his daughter, Mrs. Richard Kramer, and two visitors when a maid told him that some one was breaking into the garage. Going outside, he went into a covered passage leading through a garden. Here he met the burglar and ordered him to leave. When the man drew a pistol Baldridge ran back to the house, but found that the door had locked.

The burglar commanded him to open the door. Instead Baldridge tried to wrest the pistol from the robber. In the struggle the weapon was discharged and Baldridge's head was grazed by a bullet. The prowler then fled. Baldridge was taken to the Jackson Park hospital, where it was said his wound was not serious.

MOTOR HIGHWAY DRIVER'S DREAM OF GEARLESS ERA

How New York Is Solving Busy Man's Problem.

BY TOM PETTEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 3.—[Special.]—If any one ever opens a savings bank for motorists' minutes it should be in the vicinity of this city's west side elevated highway. On crowded Manhattan island where time ticks at par there are few spots where an automobile driver can take his foot off the brake and put it on the gas feed. The "highway on stilts" is the city motorist's dream of the gearless era.

This writer has made a series of traffic tests on and in the vicinity of the elevated highway along the Hudson river. The story today is a tale of the high road and a low road and two lapses in time.

The correspondent went riding to find out first hand the advantages of up-in-the-air highways when applied to city traffic. Manhattan is going to be circled by elevated boulevards some day. Chicago will relieve its traffic tension with some such super highway. Other cities will have their elevated motor roads. New York's highway has no name as yet. The city fathers are scouting about for a proper title. The christening will come later when the road is completed.

Mile and a Half Long.

To begin with, the present completed link of the road stretches along the teaming waterfront for just one mile and a half. It takes three minutes to roll its length and remain a law observing driver. Down below, where automobiles play tag with one another and taxicabs park like cat hunting dogs, it takes twelve minutes to make the same trip in the middle of the day and anywhere from fifteen to thirty minutes at the peak of the rush later in the afternoon.

Three trips were taken over the elevated highway—morning, noon and afternoon. The first two were made in approximately three minutes each; the last with traffic at its height took almost four minutes, the sixty seconds being lost where the ramp dumps one into the street level stream. Four trips were taken below on West street, one of them, due to the inactivity of a freight train, being a complete flop.

The morning and afternoon rides below the elevated road took the most time. The trip coming uptown at 10 a. m. took fourteen minutes, and the same ride downtown at 4 p. m. took 20 minutes, due to congestion of every imaginable form of wheeled locomotion. The noon hour journey of a mile and one-half was made in 12 minutes, and could have been made in 10 if a taxi driver had not taken charge of the street to turn around in.

Take the three minute lapse in time on the highway—and motorists' minutes are just as valuable as the minutes gained or lost on extra fare trains—and you will find it something like this:

Irritated, nervous and usually with a couple of dents in your fenders you swing past a white marker, step on the gas and roll up a straightaway ramp to a steel viaduct seventy feet wide. You slide into one of two thirty foot traffic lanes and the cupped tires of your car sing as they kiss the granite roadbed—a roadbed that will be uncracked forty years from now.

There is room for 10,000 motor cars on the speedway, and you can take a look around with safety. On the river side are the piers of the great Atlantic liners. The decorated third floor windows of ship chandlers and merchants meet your eyes on the other side. Occasionally you flit past a tenement house and look into the heart of a home just as if you were on the "L." A river breeze blows across the stilted highway. Lamps clustered on ornamental bronze standards line the highway. Markers show over cross streets, but you are high above them.

No Shifting of Gears.

There is no shifting of gears, grinding of brakes, or tension in driving. You just roll along above one of the most congested sections of a congested city. It is only a mile and a half long, but eventually it will stretch its steel legs on uptown to connect with Riverside drive and complete a speedway twelve miles in length. It will have cost $17,000,000 then for about six miles of elevated roadway. The speed law for the first link is 35 miles an hour, but as the ride grows longer the rate will be raised. It is a free road.

Contrast the ride in West street with that on the elevated highway, and this is the result:

Your automobile bumps over trolley tracks, railroad tracks and cobblestone paving. There is a halt at almost every corner, several traffic lights and railway traffic officers as well as city police to mind. Trucks and taxicabs dive at your car from a dozen piers that line the way between Canal street and 23d street—the route over which the elevated highway unit now in use runs.

Not as Bad as It Was.

A part of the section under the steel viaduct already has been taken by shippers as a parking place, a lot of the roadway is given to loading and unloading. It is an exhausting drive where the elevated trip was a pleasure jaunt.

Nevertheless, it is not as bad as it once was, for the new road has taken a big part of the traffic, and as the highway continues to grow and gather the flow of traffic into the air it is going to be easier riding both on the high road and the low road.

WOMAN SHOT BY ACCIDENT.

Goshen, Ind., May 3.—(AP)—Mrs. Walter Anderson, 21, was being treated in a hospital here tonight for a bullet wound in the abdomen, suffered while she and her husband were driving. Anderson said a pistol with which they had been target shooting was accidentally discharged.

OPEN CAMPAIGN FOR CONTROL OF BUSES, TRUCKS

BY PERCY WOOD.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., May 3.—[Special.] Formation of an organization to combat what the sponsors say is the "virtual confiscation" of the principal highways of the state by organized bus and trucking interests, was announced in Springfield last week.

State Senator Clinton L. Ewing [Rep., Douglas], president of the Illinois Taxpayer Hard Road association, said that the organization begins with 16,000 members, taxpayers and motorists from every part of the state. The board of directors consists of Mayor John Murray of Herrin, W. S. Fischer, president of the Beardstown Chamber of Commerce; Attorney Kendall S. Mitchell of Chicago and citizens of Aurora, Centralia, West Frankfort and Peoria.

Wider Roads Favored.

The program of the association calls for a campaign for wider roads, intersection safety lights, road markers and extension of the hard roads and secondary highways for the benefit of the agricultural districts."

The prime purpose, however, according to Senator Ewing is "the enactment of legislation similar to the regulations now in force in other states placing on a par with railroads, the operation of commercial interests using the highways principally as a means of profit. This would include the establishment of uniform rates, the imposition of adequate taxes to pay for road destruction and a revision of the laws governing the length, width, height and particularly the weight of freight vans and high speed cars."

Says Highways Suffer.

"Buses and trucks," continued the greatest of the association, "make use and ever increasing use of the highways which their movements are speeding to pieces long before the bond issues which provided the money for building them have expired. Other industries, against which they are either directly or indirectly competing, must help to build and maintain these subsidized rights of way for the benefit of their rivals.

"In most instances the buses and trucks use the public streets as terminals and many of them buy their fuel in other states."

TOUR OF STREETS FINDS MANY CARS WITH ONE LIGHT

One in Every 10 Motorists Break Safety Law.

BY HAL FOUST.

A tour of the boulevards last night showed one out of every ten or twelve automobiles without the two front lights required by statute and by all rules of safety. A few cars were noticed without any lights at all, and they were followed for block after block without being stopped by police. The one eyed automobiles, which puzzle drivers in oncoming traffic, were noticed on boulevards of the north, south, and west sides, stopping for red lights in view of policemen who seemingly gave them no attention.

Held Cause of Accidents.

The National Safety council has listed improper lighting of vehicles as one of the major causes of accidents at night. By the absence of a bulb, which costs a few cents, drivers were pushing through the Sunday night congestion, exposing themselves and others to avoidable collisions.

These half blind automobiles included antiquated models overdue at the junk pile, tiny roadsters driven by the collegiate imitators, modest family sedans carrying women and children, and luxurious limousines, a few of them chauffeur driven.

The survey was made between 8 o'clock and 10:30 o'clock while the traffic was heavy due to the homecoming of many who had spent Sunday touring in the country. There follows a chronological report on some of the light violations noted. The list gives the time each car was seen with lights lacking, where it was seen, its number, and the name of the person to whom the license was issued where the names are available. The latest report from the secretary of state gives the 1931 licenses up to 600,000 but no farther.

complete plans for the formal opening on May 16 of the Fort Dearborn replica, first exhibit building of the 1933 fair to be completed. The program was prepared by a committee headed by Dean James A. James of Northwestern university.

President Rufus C. Dawes of the exposition will be chairman of the ceremonies. A prominent clergyman whose name will be announced later will pronounce the invocation.

Colorful Events Planned.

A replica of the flag which floated above the original fort in 1803, dotted with fifteen stars, will be raised while buglers blow "to the colors." Cannon which saw service in the war of 1812 will be mounted in the fort.

These pieces have been obtained through the aid of the Smithsonian institution, the Chicago Historical society, and the war department. A battery from Fort Sheridan will roar a twenty-one gun salute.

Other features of the ceremonies will include a parade of the Black Horse troop, commanded by Capt. Chauncey McCormick. The troopers will wear uniforms of the cavalry of 1812. Barre Hill of the Chicago Civic Opera company will sing the national anthem. Dean James will tell the story of Fort Dearborn. Mayor Cermak, members of congress, and other notables will be present.

Women Leaders to Meet Today.

Presidents of more than 150 organizations of Chicago women have been invited to meet at the Association of Commerce headquarters at 10:30 o'clock this morning as a general committee in charge of women's activities of the Jubilee. Mrs. Henry W. Hardy, general chairman, will preside and direct the discussion of plans for women's day, May 18, the main feature of which will be a huge luncheon at which famous Chicago women will be guests of honor.

Announcement was made yesterday by Miss Elizabeth Eckert, president of the Alliance of Business and Professional Women, that invitations will be issued today to similar clubs in the five surrounding states for the Jubilee. The visitors will be fêted at a tea to be held in the ballroom of the Illinois Women's Athletic club on Sunday afternoon, May 17, followed by sightseeing trips to points of interest in the city.

Women physicians of the Chicagoland area will receive courtesies on the same order from the Medical Women's Club of Chicago if present plans under consideration can be worked out as is hoped. Dr. Petra M. Dahl, head of the club, which is the largest of its kind in the world, points out that the reduced railroad rates for the Jubilee will attract many women who are interested in Chicago as a vast medical center and that the local club will probably decide to arrange clinics for them, as well as social functions.

It was announced yesterday that the Rotary club would hold a Jubilee luncheon at the Hotel Sherman on May 12. E. A. Dykstra, city manager of Cincinnati, will be the principal speaker. His topic will be "Future Management of Great Cities." Mayor Cermak, and presidents of clubs and civic organizations will be invited.

On May 14 a Jubilee banquet will be given by the Uptown Lions club council. J. K. Keating is chairman of the banquet committee.

Hoover to Address Convention.

The opening session of the International Chamber of Commerce convention in Washington today will be attended by more than 1,000 delegates from the 46 member nations. Following President Hoover's address M. Theunis will analyze causes and effects of the business situation.

The executive council of the chamber last night elected Franz Mendelssohn, a private banker of Berlin, to succeed M. Theunis as president. Mr. Mendelssohn, a descendant of the famous composer, will address the congress via radio from Berlin on Saturday.

The program of the convention is comprehensive, touching on old world and new world problems and relationships. The war debt question is expected to be considered and it is hinted that foreign delegates may advocate reduction or cancellation of the payments. The problem was discussed last night after the presentation of the report of the Foreign Policy association, prepared by Prof. James W. Angell of Columbia university.

MADEIRA ISLAND CITY HAILS END OF MONTH'S REVOLT

LISBON, May 3.—(AP)—Funchal today celebrated the end of the Madeira revolution, which broke down yesterday with the surrender of the rebel leader, Gen. Souza Dias. The minister of marine, Magalheas Correia, who commanded the punitive expedition sent to the island, made a triumphal entrance into Funchal today, after the insurgents had controlled the city for four weeks.

It is reported that some of the leaders of the revolt asked the master of a British steamer to give them refuge, saying they feared the fury of the mob.

BUSINESS STAND ON TARIFF MAY AID DEMOCRATS

Politicians Ponder Plea for Reductions.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 3.—[Special.]—Nothing in recent years has struck the politicians as of greater significance than the movement which materialized at the meeting of the United States chamber of commerce last week for a reduction of the existing Smoot-Hawley tariff duties.

Ever since the enactment of the law by the last congress the Democratic party has been assailing the increased tariff on the ground that it is destroying our foreign trade, exacting additional toll from consumers and contributing to the business depression.

With Julius Barnes, chairman of the board of the chamber of commerce, and other business leaders now assuming substantially the same position, the politicians are wondering whether big business is drifting toward the Democratic party on the tariff as well as the prohibition issue.

See Aid from East.

Democratic leaders are experiencing pleasurable sensations as they begin to picture their party receiving the support of the business interests in the presidential election next year, particularly in the wet industrial east in which the outcome of the struggle will be decided.

Ever since the Houston convention of 1928 the present leadership of the Democratic party has been maneuvering to capture and hold the big traditionally Republican eastern states, from Illinois to Massachusetts, with their great blocks of electoral votes. This strategy has been founded on the theory that the south will remain Democratic, no matter what the party stands for, and in any event the party can afford to lose southern states here and there if it can carry the east.

Angled for Business.

The Smith-Raskob leadership perceived that although the east is overwhelmingly wet something more than a wet appeal would be necessary to detach that region from its Republican moorings. It was going to be necessary to inspire confidence in the Democratic party on the part of the business community in the industrial region east of the Mississippi and north of the Ohio.

The first step, taken at Houston, was to make the Democratic party a protective tariff party. The Houston platform accepted the protective tariff and salved the party conscience by inveighing against inequalities in the protection afforded. It pledged itself to wipe out the inequalities. Thus business was relieved of apprehension that the Democrats would tear down the tariff wall.

As matters now stand about the only difference between the two major parties on the tariff is one of degree. The Republicans stand for higher protection than do the Democrats. Big business now appears to be veering toward the Democratic position.

A good many Republicans agree with the Democrats that this is tangible evidence that the strategy of the Democratic leadership for attracting the support of the industrial east is succeeding. Such Republicans who regarded the tariff boost of the Smoot Hawley act as a mistake, think the G. O. P. has been put in a hole from which it will have difficulty in extricating itself. It will be compelled to indorse the Smoot-Hawley tariff in its platform next year or repudiate its record in a major particular. But unless it promises a tariff reduction it risks the loss of the support of the eastern industrial interests.

Some Blame President.

There is evident a tendency on the part of such Republican dissidents to blame the President. He started out to hold down the tariff boost to such increases as were necessary to relieve industries suffering unduly from foreign competition. It was to be a severely limited revision. But the high tariff crowd got out of hand and wrote a pretty general revision upward. He could have enforced his original dictum by vetoing the bill, but he signed it, with an explanation that it would be rewritten by the tariff commission sufficiently to remove its bad features. The tariff commission moves so slowly, however, that little progress has been made in this direction.

Another bait the Smith-Raskob leadership is holding out to big business is revision of the anti-trust laws. Such revision was urged at the chamber of commerce meeting. Whether Smith and Raskob will be able to "sell" this proposition to their party in the Democratic national convention next year remains to be seen.

84 DIVORCE CASES SET FOR TRIAL TODAY IN RENO'S SPEED MILL

Reno, Nev., May 3.—(AP)—Tomorrow will be a busy day for Thomas F. Moran and Benjamin F. Curler, District judges in this mecca of divorce seekers.

County Clerk Elwood H. Beemer said today that 84 uncontested divorce suits, the first of the rush of business under the provisions of the newly effective Nevada six weeks' residence divorce law, have been set for trial tomorrow.

This means, Beemer said, that each court must dispose of one case every ten minutes during the seven hours they will be in session. The first case is set for 9 o'clock in each court, and from then until noon and from 1 p. m. until 5 the legal grind will continue.

One hundred and eighty-nine divorce suits were filed in Beemer's office yesterday, and at least 100 more are expected to be filed during the first few days of the week.

WATSON DEFENDS TARIFF

Washington, D. C., May 3.—(AP)—The administration's new tariff act was defended today by Senator Watson of Indiana, the Republican leader, in reply to the plea before the United States Chamber of Commerce by Julius Barnes, its chairman, for lower rates.

Watson asserted that other nations have higher tariff walls than the United States and that 66 per cent of imports to this country now come in free. He added that American imports had increased after the enactment of other high protective acts sponsored by Republicans.

"Last year," he said, "we imported into the United States three billions of dollars' worth of foreign products and we had millions of idle workmen in America. Mr. Barnes takes the position that if we had imported twice or three times the amount we did, all of those American laboring men would have been put back to work and would have had full employment.

"Let me remind Mr. Barnes of a few essential truths:

"First, that 66 per cent of all we bring into this country comes in free. There is no way to lower the tariff on those products. Nothing can be freer than free, unless Mr. Barnes wants to pay a bonus to our foreign competitors who sell to us.

"Second, we import over $200,000,000 of luxuries which everybody admits should be taxed to obtain revenue.

"Third, a comparison of the rates in the present law on the remaining 32 per cent of imports with the rates provided by the Fordney-McCumber law shows no great number of increases and proves that those that were increased resulted beneficially.

"Fourth, most civilized countries have protective tariffs laws, many of them higher than most of the rates provided by our law. If we greatly lowered our tariff rates, while they steadfastly maintained theirs, how are the American people to be benefited? Such an assertion is utterly groundless.

"Fifth, Mr. Barnes' statement is a mere generalization. He states that 'the existing tariff should be lowered,' but such a pot shot at a whole tariff bill is neither illuminating nor helpful. Will Mr. Barnes enlighten us a little further? What rates should be lowered and why? Even a few concrete instances might prove beneficial."

Dig Into Activities of Six Caught as Auto Thieves

The west park police yesterday were digging into the activities of a gang of six suspected automobile thieves caught Saturday after the recovery of four stolen automobiles. Capt. William Schramm undertook the investigation of the gang, which he believes will clear up numerous auto thefts. Those arrested are Edward Kneip, Joseph McConville, Norman Ferguson, Archie La Marchi, William Kodisch, and Joseph Charon.

KING WINS PEACE IN AFGHANISTAN; TRIBAL WARS END

Drives Asiatic Robin Hood Into Russia.

BY WILLIAM SHIRER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SIMLA, India, May 3.—With the announcement that Afghanistan, the wildest of the world's recognised nations, with its primitive tribes and crude civilization, has begun importing European machinery to establish factories and mills, word comes across the border that peace has been established throughout the land. The new king, Nadir Khan, who executed Bacha Sakao, the water carrier's son, who had driven King Amanullah from the throne 18 months ago, has put down two uprisings which raged in the north and south. With the help of British money and munitions, Nadir Khan for the first time finds himself something like the master of this hard boiled little kingdom.

The tribal war between the Hazara and Suleman tribes, which blocked the highway between Kabul and Kandahar last year, ended in a truce, enabling the Afghan government to open communications between the capital and its chief city in the south.

The northern uprising was more complicated, being led by Ibrahim Bey, recognized as the greatest raiding bandit since Robin Hood, and known and feared throughout central Asia.

Raided Towns at Will.

For four years after the war he was the thorn in the side of soviet Russia, when the bolsheviks were trying to consolidate Turkestan. After Nadir Khan, backed by the British, returned 18 months ago the bandit leader swept into Afghanistan ostensibly in the interests of Moscow, raiding chief towns at will.

For seven months practically the entire Afghan army, with new equipment and guns, mostly provided by Great Britain, and led by the king's brother as minister of war, has been attacking the Turkestan Robin Hood, and it is now announced the troops have finally succeeded in driving him back.

With the fighting over, the king turned his attention to industrial matters and purchased machinery from Europe. Weaving and cotton mills have been set up in Kabul and woolen mills at Kandahar, with paper mills at Jalalabad. The monarch also envisages a scheme for extensive canals to help agriculture. The project will be started this summer.

Former King's Specter Arises.

Only the specter of former King Amanullah hangs over Afghanistan now, and England has turned definitely against him. The deposed king, whose European ways cost him the throne, is now on a pilgrimage to the holy city of Mecca and is trying to placate the Moslem opinion he has flouted heretofore.

His movements are reported at Simla, where the government of India is keeping close watch on him. Its policy is to support Nadir Khan and keep out Amanullah, whose flirtations with the soviets have neither been forgotten nor forgiven here.

That is why the recent press campaign begun here by Amanullah's followers was squelched by the Indian government and an ordinance promulgated by former Viceroy Lord Irwin forbidding Indian newspapers from publishing anything calculated to stir up trouble.

AMBUSH DRY AGENTS, KILL ONE; WOUNDED ASSAILANT CAUGHT

Hattiesburg, Miss., May 3.—(AP)—Fingerprints on a sawed off shotgun and information that may be gleaned from a man giving his name as John Smith today were clews that federal prohibition officers hoped might solve the killing yesterday of H. L. Everett, 32 year old prohibition officer.

Everett was shot to death near Collins, Miss., while driving to Jackson to testify against bootleggers. His automobile crashed through a bridge railing into Kelly's Creek and his body was pulled from the water and mud.

Last night prohibition agents en route by automobile to Hattiesburg from Wiggins were ambushed at another bridge near McLaurin and shots were fired into their automobiles.

The officers escaped injury and returned the fire, seriously wounding a man hiding in bushes beside the bridge. The wounded man gave his name as John Smith.

Daily recovered the shotgun on the outskirts of Collins and was preparing to have fingerprints on it photographed.

ASSEMBLY FEARS ILLNESS HINDERS SUPREME COURT

One Judge Inactive for a Year and a Half.

pulsory retirement on pension at 70 or 75, or upon lasting disability. On account of the large batch of court reform measures the council is advancing this year amendment of the pension act with a view of a compulsory feature maybe deferred until next session.

Of the five justices who come up for reelection in 1935, four, it is pointed out, have passed the age of 65, and will have served 24 years in the courts. Justice Farmer, who is 73, has been a judge of various courts 34 years; Justice Duncan, 74 years, has been judge 28 years; Chief Justice Dunn, who is 77, has been 30 years a judge, and Justice Heard, 75, has been a judge 22 years.

The argument has been raised in the legislature that the appointment of two commissioners amounts to two assistant judges. The commissioners are Judge Augustus A. Partlow of Danville and Palmer Edmunds of Chicago. The positions have been in existence some four years and pay salaries of $10,000.

The court refers cases to the commissioners for opinions. If accepted, a notation is made, "the foregoing opinion by Mr. Commissioner So-and-so is hereby adopted as the opinion of the court." The house judiciary committee this week reported out the bill continuing the commissioners for two years more, but on March 19 a bill appropriating $40,000 for their salaries was tabled.

Meanwhile, Cook county legislators say, the big burden is falling on Justice Frederic R. De Young of Cook county. He is from the 7th district, which contains 57 per cent of the state's population, but has only one justice. About 65 per cent of the cases come from Cook county and Judge De Young is so loaded up with motions and conferences with lawyers that on Thursday the senate voted to give him another legal secretary at a $5,000 salary.

"Judge De Young," said Senator Barbour in speaking for the bill, "considers more motions than other justices. The bar is fearful of his health. He works late at night, to 11 or midnight. He must be relieved of some of this work. He is trying to keep up, but for several years the court has been handicapped by the severe illness of two judges."

NAPHTHA BURNS PROVE FATAL.

Howard Baxter, 40 years old, colored, 4139 Prairie avenue, died in the county hospital yesterday of injuries suffered Feb. 23, when a basin of naphtha caught fire and burned him about the face and body.

BUT LOTS OF COMFORT

REGULARLY, $63

WE are deliberately offering this chair at a price far below its value in order to make it attractive for you to start a collection of Danersk Furniture at the present time.

This smart little chair is particularly desirable for the boudoir, bedroom, sunroom, small apartment living room. It weighs so little that even a child can move it around.

Decidedly French in its lines, this unusual chair does not depend on springs or cushions for comfort. Before designing it, we sat in many chairs and studied carefully the sitting postures of many people.

Then, by repeated experiment with the pitch of the seat in relation to its height, and with the angle of the back, we were able to make this chair as luxuriously comfortable as if it were thickly stuffed and cushioned. By eliminating heavy upholstery, we reduced both weight and cost.

The design of this chair was inspired by an old-time peasant chair fashioned long ago in Brittany, and we have appropriately covered it with gay Gallic chintz.

This color-rich chintz is based on a rare piece of old silk in the Lyons Museum. The original, though woven long ago in the French provinces, does not represent the primitive peasant type of art, but is exceedingly sophisticated.

It had been loomed at the order of a royal prince of France, who sought in the interior decorations of his chateau to attain a refreshing contrast with the more formal art treatments of the royal court and of his Paris home.

The delightful flowers of this sparkling chintz have those quaint naturalistic touches which French artisans love. Twelve different colors have been used in printing. Should you prefer, you may choose from 9 other rare chintzes, or we will apply your covering to order at the special price.

Come and see this interesting chair, and hundreds of other pieces built by Danersk craftsmen. Danersk furniture can be inspected at our showrooms only.

4,000 SQUARE MILES OF TIMBERLANDS SUPPLY

Tribune Paper

FIFTEEN years ago the Chicago Tribune decided to make its own newsprint. Newsprint begins as trees. Needing extensive forests, the Tribune, in 1915, explored certain desolate regions on the north shore of the Gulf of St. Lawrence. There, on the Rocky river, it acquired its first timberland, 500 square miles in area.

Five hundred square miles of forest were far from sufficient. Later acquisitions on the Franquelin and Manicouagan rivers increased Tribune timberlands to nearly 4,000 square miles. Much less than half this area is under operation. Mighty preparations for complete production are now under way. Soon forests nearly three times larger than the state of Rhode Island will be busy supplying the Chicago Tribune with paper.

THE LAW'S DELAY.

In a study of reversals by the Supreme court of verdicts in criminal cases, the Chicago crime commission finds that of 93 cases only 5 show a new conviction on the same charge. In other words, when a case comes back from the court of review it has for one reason or another lost most of its force and the offender is let off with lighter punishment. This occurs even in cases of the most atrocious crimes.

We think of "the law's delay" chiefly from the viewpoint of the injustice it works upon the individual. But in these cases of criminal administration the evil of delay is a general public concern. When cases must be retried months and even years after the commission of the offense prosecution can hardly expect to be as effective as in the first trial. Witnesses may have disappeared. The recollection of those who remain may have faded. Time has been given for tampering with witnesses and manufacturing alibis. The impalpable influence of time, entirely aside from any sinister complications, is against the prosecution.

In addition to these disadvantages there may be others in the form of procedure which compel the prosecution to change the ground of attack and this may result in a light sentence for a heavy offense.

Of course, responsibility for reversal and its consequences does not rest wholly and perhaps in most cases it does not rest at all with the court of review. If the prosecution has been incompetent, if the record reveals illegal procedure depriving the accused of rights, if conditions are shown to be seriously incompatible with a fair test of guilt, the reviewing court has no option but to reverse. Responsibility for delay and its consequences is to be found at different stages of the proceeding, from the first activities of the police up to the final action of the last review. What is clear and of prime importance to the community is that for various reasons from various causes the processes of our criminal justice are slower and more uncertain than they ought to be and might be. Our judicial and prosecuting and police agencies are faulty and a most demoralizing situation is the result. Ill disposed individuals do not fear the law as they should. Crime allied with corrupt politics is able to laugh at its terrors. If our society is to have decent protection there must be improvement all along the line.

Some needed changes in procedure are at hand, but what is needed most is improvement in personnel, in the method and conditions of the selection of the judiciary, the prosecutors and the police. No procedural reforms will be very substantially beneficial unless and until this is accomplished.

THE FARM BOARD RETREATS AGAIN.

The farm board is reported to have called upon private grain exporters to come to its assistance in disposing of its enormous wheat stocks. The private exporters, presumably, are to take over the task which the farm board's own marketing agency has failed to accomplish. As long ago as February 26 the board announced that it proposed to sell abroad 35 million bushels to make way for the new crop. In the intervening weeks it has managed to clear only 8 million and if it did no better in the next two months than in the last two, the new crop would be entering the market with insufficient space to store it. Hence the appeal to the private traders to save the situation.

Here is another proof of the incompetence of the government to engage in business requiring great initiative and ready adaptability to fluctuating circumstances. The government, of course, found no difficulty in buying all the wheat in sight for more than it was worth; but when the farm board was obliged to unload, another and far more difficult problem arose. The government has now discovered that it is impossible to extemporize an efficient selling organization, particularly at a moment such as this when there is no shortage in the world of the commodity to be sold.

Most of the wheat which the farm board has succeeded in moving is the kind most easily disposed of at the moment, the variety used in making macaroni and similar pastes. The rest will not be so easy. There is a certain grim satisfaction to be found in the fact that our government has been obliged, in its present extremity, to discard the nonsense of government marketing agencies and cooperative selling organizations and turn to private operators. In so doing, our government is repeating the retreat forced upon the Canadian wheat pool. It is to be hoped that the lesson in economics has not been lost upon the American people.

VIEWING THE AMERICAN COUNTRYSIDE.

Gilbert Chesterton, back from the United States and speaking in London for the Society for the Preservation of Rural England, said the ugliness of the American small town was depressing. His comment was pertinent to the objects of the society, which are to keep the English countryside from a similar fate. There are lovely American villages and small towns, but a traveler could miss seeing them and have his eye full of eyesores from what he did see. Probably the period is transitory. That is at least a hope.

The American small town builder has sought utility and convenience, sanitation and a pure water supply, adequate lighting, good roads and means of transportation, recreation and amusement. He protects himself against the weather, consults his physical comfort, provides himself with playthings, and is blind to the appearance of his surroundings. Ugliness does not make him unhappy. He is not melancholy if he is looking at tin signs, bad colors, hideous buildings, and much litter. He is likely to be proud of the substance of things and quite indifferent to the form. As a picture it is dreadful.

Almost everywhere the American countryside, even in its flat areas, has charm, characteristic and distinctive in many regions, but where man stops to dwell he mutilates. He makes a dreary or hideous place of his abode. It does not matter whether it is a little factory town or a rural center, utility seems to have been the only consideration, and the people are content without what would be regarded as the normal satisfactions of an esthetic sense. To the unaccustomed eye the scene is forlorn and depressing, but comparisons with the foreign habitat need be discriminating.

Old world forms were fixed without any regard for fundamentals which cannot long remain out of the American demand. They had eye for line and proportion, and the thatched cottage, with its walls, walks, vines, and flowers, might indicate the esthetic cottager. The village did not violate the countryside and the countryside did not denounce it, but, oddly, the human life did not respond to these incitements. Its standards remained those of the clod. The scene which pleased the romantic and esthetic sense of the traveler did not have a corresponding security or dignity in human life. The gaffer pulling his forelock as he stood beside his hedge was the ultimate product of this rural beauty. It existed for the gratification of the better favored man, but it was not an enhancement of the man who lived in it.

He might have responded to better plumbing, better heating, better food, and more diversions in addition to those of singing madrigals, if he did, and getting an occasional half pint at the inn, but what he did get was bad teeth, the rheumatism, and a closed horizon. As between the filling station at the cross roads and the lovely village by the hall it may be said that one animates an inquisitive life and the other holds the already dead.

It may not be vain to think there is a greater promise in the ugly American small town than in the foreign village which charms the traveler, but that thought will not preclude the wish that the Americans would hasten the day of their deliverance from the gross indignities they inflict upon the countryside, which in these days of blossoming dogwood, red bud, thorn, and orchard tries to beguile them from the ugliness of their habitations.

MR. WRIGLEY'S PLAYERS.

There are indications that Mr. Wrigley's Players are about to become something more than civic. The possibilities contain a moral issue. The Cubs are likely to become one. Just now they are a cut above fair to middling, well above it if they can stay where they are for further endeavor, but these Players are not ordinary professionals offering entertainment for the citizenship. They constitute a cause with the curious elements of loyalties which will cast down or elevate the masses.

There may be an economic factor in it, but probably it is inconsiderable. An addict who has lost two bits or two bucks on Mr. Root's pitching or Mr. Hornsby's batting is naturally an embittered male and his feelings are explainable by his financial setback, but that is not peculiar to baseball. He can get the same emotions out of steel or any of the utilities. Baseball cannot be even civic, much less moral, on its financial side. It becomes a moral issue when the addicts are hurt spiritually, and there are plenty of signs, some of them in THE TRIBUNE'S Vox Pop, that spiritual elevations or dejections are to be dependent on the trustworthiness or unreliability of Mr. Wrigley's young men. This aspect of the season here is probably the more acute because Mr. Hornsby is a player-manager who gives one color to things when he hits three successive home runs and another when he makes three errors.

The Cubs are essentially a team which must win ball games. Otherwise they become a dispute like the league of nations, the world court, government liquor control in Canada, and slavery in Liberia. Mr. Hornsby will be examined for his policies somewhat as Mr. Stimson, Mr. MacDonald, or Mussolini. The Players may become more than a dispute. They may become a feud, dividing families, setting the in-laws against each other, and causing local improvement societies to become unruly. There are the makings of old sectarian enthusiasms and animosities. Spiritually the city seems to be in for something.

ONE PUPIL SCHOOL.

[Danville Commercial-News.]

Near Girard, Ill., a public school in which there is but one pupil, has been discovered. There are no other children of school age in the district, so there is no dissatisfaction with the teacher. The young woman teacher is paid $85 a month. Last year there were three pupils, but two have since moved out of the district.

While the state legislature is in session, a law covering such a situation should be passed. There are many other schools in the state having less than a dozen pupils, yet the expenses are as great as those of the larger schools. There should be a consolidation of schools in such instances with school bus service for children having long distances to travel.

One pupil couldn't even organize a game of marbles, or a two-cornered catball team. A one-handed game of mumbletypeg would be the extent of his sports.

CATARRH OUT OF STYLE.

Mrs. M. W. P. asks for an article on catarrh. She has a discharge of mucus from the nose into the mouth. Twenty, and even ten years ago, letters asking about catarrh were received daily. This disorder was very fashionable in the mid-Victorian period. But it went out of style when long hair and long skirts did some ten or more years ago. I hope catarrh will not be one of the series of hoops through which the fashion makers will make us jump during this minor key renaissance period.

Now, lady, what harm is done by a little mucus running into the throat from the nose? Every lady and, for that matter, every man is lined by mucous membrane and every healthy mucous membrane secretes mucus, and whatever mucus is secreted flows somewhere. What's the harm? The answer is none. There is nothing poisonous about mucus, but people must have their pet nose disorders. What many of them once called catarrh they now call sinus trouble. What was once called mucus dropping into the throat is now said to be pus draining from a sinus. Well, what of that? Even pus does little harm so long as it drains, and this discharge is only partially purulent. Sinuses that drain well can be safely left alone.

The difficult question to decide is when to interfere with those that do not drain well, and what to do. It is safe to say that those people who took catarrh medicines by the carload in the old days got nothing for their money. Those who sprayed and washed wasted their efforts. If what they called catarrh was all set to get well they recovered. If it was not they did not, and what they took and what they sprayed made no difference either way. If one has an infected sinus it is possible it can be cured, but the cure may cost more than it is worth. That is a matter to be carefully weighed.

To move from a bad climate to a good one is about the best cure. The climate for this purpose is one that is dry all the year round, reasonably warm in winter and with no great storm fluctuations. Most people will find that cure too expensive. Exposing the face to sunlight, the use of artificial light, and a strong attempt to change one's atmospheric environment is a good cure but a troublesome one. Some cases are cured by cleaning out the sinuses and some by draining them surgically. This, too, calls for weighing of the troubles of the disease against those of the cure.

ATROPINE AND BELLADONNA.

B. W. writes:

What is the difference between atropine and belladonna in strength? How much belladonna is it safe for a person to take?

Medical works say 20 drops every quarter hour until effects show. What does that mean?

REPLY.

Atropine is one of the alkaloids of belladonna. The latter is the whole; the former, a part. Atropine is far stronger. You do not mention the form of belladonna you ask about. My advice is that you take neither belladonna nor atropine on your own. They are far too powerful to tamper with.

CONCENTRATION.

A. S. writes:

I am in Wall street; therefore, I do not need concentration or brains. But I go to night school, and that does. I am in my right senses, but I cannot concentrate. What can I do?

REPLY.

You are just where you ought to be. Your teachers can teach you to concentrate. Tell them your difficulty, and ask them to guide you. You need not tell Wall street.

BABIES AND RICKETS.

Mrs. A. M. writes:

Is it possible for a baby to be born with rickets?

REPLY.

It is.

PROBATE PROCEEDINGS NECESSARY.

Chicago, April 29.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—A party is suddenly killed in an automobile accident. She leaves no will. Her only heir is a 19 year old daughter. This party was the owner of a two story building, a residence, and a newspaper which she edited. 1. What procedure must be taken in order that the daughter may receive the estate? 2. What time period elapses before it is actually her own? E. H. R.

1. Probate proceedings would be necessary in order to produce a merchantable title to the real estate. It probably would be advisable to employ an attorney.
2. It will be one year before the title will be merchantable.

SUBPOENA IN DIVORCE CASE.

Chicago, April 27.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. Can an employer subpoena an employé? I am a private chauffeur and have for many years served in this capacity for a married couple who now contemplate divorce. 2. The wife threatens to have me subpoenaed to testify on her behalf. 3, 4. The husband says he will subpoena me first to prevent this action on the part of his wife. 5. How can I "wipe my hands of it all" and escape being called to testify? 6. Should I refuse to sign any statements? R. C.

1. Yes, on proper facts.
2. This is within their rights. Of course, she cannot compel you to testify contrary to the facts.
3. We see no object in such a contest.
4. It would not prevent the wife's calling him as a witness.
5. One way would be by disappearing.
6. You should decide this for yourself.

DID PREDECESSOR ASSENT?

Chicago, April 18.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I have a lot on which are two poles supporting wires which supply the neighborhood with electricity. Can I compel the electric company to move these poles, inasmuch as they interfere with a home we expect to build soon? C. P. H.

Yes, unless you or your predecessor in title assented to the installation of the poles. TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

STAND BACK, SUPREME COURT! YOU MUST NOT STRIKE OUR FAVORITE CHILD!

The Illinois Supreme court rules that the law adopted by the voters permitting the ladies the gracious privilege of sitting on juries is null and void, because the state legislators "abdicated their authority" in declining to act in the matter, but handing the question over to the people. But, hold, Supreme court! You are striking a blow at one of the most revered and popular of our great American institutions. It is known as Passing the Buck. "Abdication of authority" on the part of the legislature is fancy language, but the legislature did nothing more than what we all do a thousand times a day; it passed the buck.

America is the greatest buck passer in the world. In fact, it invented the practice. The great aim in our beloved country is not so much to do a thing as to pass the responsibility of doing it to somebody else. We pass it to congress and congress passes it to some one else. In Washington the buck is passed to bureaus and the bureaus pass it on again. It's passed to commissions and the commissions pass it to committees. Big business passes it to politicians, and the politicians pass it to the police, and the police pass it back to the politicians.

This buck passing thing is a circle that has no beginning or end. Circles are like that. When any of us find ourselves holding the buck we realize that somebody slipped it over on us when we weren't looking. So we promptly gum shoe around and pass the buck to somebody else who is asleep at the switch. When that bird wakes up and finds the buck tied around his neck he slips it to somebody else, and that fellow to another one, and so on. Passing the buck is not only a great American institution—it's the favorite national game.

ALIENS.

So this spring brings a deeper restlessness
Than springs have ever brought to me before,
The May wind's indolent, perfumed caress
Still beckons seaward through the open door;
Like calls to like, the gray gull's raucous cry
Comes faint across a thousand miles of land,
And sometimes in the flush of evening, I
Forget these souls who do not understand.

Of all the peace and glamour of the sea?
And hang their hopes upon a budding tree?
I neither know nor care . . . but I confess
That this spring brings a deeper restlessness!

E. LESLIE SPAULDING.

THERE'S SOMETHING about May that sends the blood galloping through the veins, makes people want to get out and run 'round in the bright young sunshine, pick flowers, and throw bricks at the police. The cold, dreary winter is finally over, the sap is racing high in the trees, and green garden things begin to shove their heads above the earth and gladden the heart of the commuter. The mail man staggers under great loads of the heart-to-heart literature from the railroad and steamship people calling attention to the fact that they know just the place for your vacation—a place where you will be free. Circulars come from lawyers in Reno also telling you how to be free, and in six weeks' time.

FREEDOM! That's what May suggests. Everybody feels a great urge to be free. Free from office, free from household drudgery, free from routine. Winter shackles are broken and we want to smash the rest of the shackles. Undisciplined individuals sling rocks at the government, whatever government they've got, and demand a new one. And when they get a new one they'll throw rocks at that, too, when May time comes around. There's something about May that gets everybody. It's a grand month! Let's go out in the middle of the street and yell!

THE REPUBLICANS in Arkansas have offered the G. O. P. a radio station to fill the air full of Republican doctrine during the presidential campaign in 1932. For the first week the Arkansas G. O. P. radio should say over and over again, "Quit voting for Andy Jackson; he's dead." "Quit voting for Andy Jackson; he's dead!" "Quit voting for Andy Jackson; he's dead!"

CURED.

I do not think I loved you very much,
The hurt you left has gone away too soon.
It should have lingered through a rain-wet spring,
And throbbed sometimes through May or even June,
But it is cured. . . . At least I feel some joy
When firelight throws red shadows on the street,
And I can dream again now that the scent
Of early violets is not oversweet.

Gay memories of you are mine to keep
Which ever way the wind of old love blows,
And yet I hope our paths won't cross this spring. . . .
I think I'm cured, but still one never knows!

HELEN WELSHIMER.

FINANCIERS are beginning to point out that something ought to be done about silver; that if we thought less of gold and lent a helping hand to pull silver up on its feet, maybe the around-the-world depression would come to an end. And there comes a faint, queer sound on the radio that isn't static. It's the ghost of William Jennings Bryan laughing raucously. Or maybe he's whispering the words he once shouted down at the Coliseum in Chicago, "You shall not crucify mankind upon a cross of gold!" Was it the hooey or was it the truth?

LAGNIAPPE.

MAY. The month of flowers, birds, blue skies, and balmy breezes. The month of sunshine and laughter. The house is full of soap suds and piled up furniture, mother is scrubbing the woodwork, and father is out on the golf links swearing at his new clubs. R. H. L.

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

MAY 4, 1915.

LONDON. — Second Officer Paul Bower of the American oil tank steamer Gulflight, which was attacked by a German submarine on May 1, asserted that the vessel was torpedoed without warning and in daylight despite the fact it was flying the American flag. Bower, whose home is in Chicago, was brought from the Scilly islands to Penzance on the steamer Lyonnesse. With him were F. C. W. Mezier, also of Chicago, and thirty-one other survivors of the Gulflight's crew. The body of Capt. Alfred Gunther of the Gulflight, who died as a result of heart failure due to the shock, was also on board the Lyonnesse. Two others of the crew, Charles C. Short of Chicago, and an American citizen named Chapanta, lost their lives.

LONDON.—A dispatch from Athens says it has been learned from reliable sources that 5,000 wounded Turks have been sent from Gallipoli to Constantinople, while four large transports loaded with German reinforcements have been sent to the Dardanelles.

LONDON.—Five steamers—the Norwegian ships America, Baldwin and Laila, and the Swedish steamers Elsa and Ellida—were added to the list of torpedo victims within the last two days. All the fatalities occurred in the North sea.

MAY 4, 1901.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla.—Ten thousand people homeless and $15,000,000 worth of property destroyed. This is the story written in blackened ruins across the city of Jacksonville by a fire which raged for nearly ten hours today before it could be checked. A district two miles and a half long and a half mile wide was swept by the flames. The Windsor and St. James hotels, the city hall, courthouse, Criminal Court building, the city armory, the opera house, leading churches, the convent, acres of residences and scores of business blocks were destroyed.

CHICAGO.—Charles W. Pardridge bought the property, 112 to 116 State street, from Stanley McCormick for $1,000,000 in cash. It is among the largest cash realty deals recorded in Chicago. Six years ago Mr. Pardridge sold the same property for $775,000. Mr. Pardridge is president of the Hillman Store company, which occupies the site.

BERLIN.—Emperor William prorogued the Prussian diet, forcing the resignation of Dr. von Miquel, minister of finance, and other members of the cabinet, and a new election may be ordered by Chancellor von Buelow.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill.—The senate rejected the nominations of E. W. Zolline and S. D. Griffin as justices of the peace for the west town in Chicago.

50 YEARS AGO TODAY

MAY 4, 1881.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Gen. Sherman, Gen. Sheridan, and the secretary of war had a long conference with President Garfield relative to the rearrangement of military departments. It is believed that all of the departments will be merged into the departments of the east and west to be commanded by Gens. Sherman and Sheridan.

LONDON.—The admiralty has a telegram from Montevideo stating that the British war sloop, Doterel, was blown up at Sandy Point, Straits of Magellan, with the loss of 145 lives. The cause of the catastrophe is not known.

NEW YORK. — Miss Fanny J. Blanchett, a young woman of 24, died from the effects of lead poisoning caused by the use of cosmetics.

CHICAGO.—The Chicago provision, grain, and stock board, at its annual meeting, elected the following officers: President, John R. Bensley; vice presidents, Norman B. Ream and C. T. Trego; directors, Alexander Geddes, Henry H. Ross, B. F. Murphy, and W. N. Brainard.

CHICAGO.—Miss Cora N. Alling, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Alling, and Sibley A. Pierce of Kansas City were married at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Reasner, 347 West Washington street. Another marriage of the day was that of Miss Helen Loewenstein and Abraham N. Eisenbrath.

TAXI FARES.

Evanston, Ill., April 30.—The article in today's TRIBUNE regarding comparative taxi rates in different cities was interesting, indeed. Why is Chicago the only large city whose taxi rates are left entirely up to the respective companies? In Cleveland, Detroit, Toledo, and other cities the traffic department of the city council determines the rates, which are plainly stipulated on a regular uniform rate card.

A fair rate is 15 cents flag pull good for the first quarter mile and then 5 cents for each additional quarter mile, with no automatic jump of the meter for every few minutes' waiting in traffic.

H. D. ELY.

FROM A CAB DRIVER.

Chicago, April 29.—I'm a driver and I think I know what I'm talking about when I say taxicab rates are too low, compared to the cabs and service the public receives for its money. Our expenses are very high, for instance:

$3 a day for gas, oil and tires.
$90 a month for dues.
$6 a year for chauffeur's license.
$22 a year and up for car license.
$5 a year for cab stand license.
$5 a year for meter inspection.

Cars for cab purposes cost from $500 to $3,000 without cab equipment. Partitions cost from $20 to $40, meters from $50 to $160, paint jobs from $40 to $60, uniforms $30. That's not counting for motor repairs, skid chains or accidents. When luck is against us we take in as low as $3 a day. C. GANGLER.

MAKING LIFE UNPLEASANT.

Chicago, April 29.—My point is that the cab owners are starving themselves and making life unpleasant for citizens and arousing especially the anger of visitors. They would make more money with rates people will pay, create good instead of ill will—carry more pay loads and cruise empty much less. Furthermore, those short trips pay well, since each one starts with the flag charge, and each one includes a tip that is usually 10 to 15 cents, whether the meter fare is 15 cents or 75 cents.

Since the local cab companies will not remedy the situation, which is hard on Chicagoans and bad for the city's reputation with visitors, I hope some outside company comes in here with cabs and intelligence, and rings up a huge profit while giving the city real service.

R. P. ELLIOTT.

FURTHER OBSERVATIONS.

Chicago, April 30.—If your investigator will enter a cab at the Michigan Central station, he will find that before the cab has moved much beyond the immediate precincts of the station the meter has jumped to 45 cents.

I have talked to many of the chauffeurs, and they admit that the rates are high, and have a feeling that because they are so high they get less customers. The result is that the Chicago cabs are racing up and down Michigan avenue and Lake Shore drive, or turning the corners of the cross streets without passengers and blocking the pedestrian and vehicular traffic.

I do not object to the initial charge if the passenger really received full return for 25 cents, but I do object to the ten cent minimum which should not be more than five cents.

The New York taxi drivers claim that they do not make any money at the existing rates in that city, but nevertheless there seems to be no diminution in the number of cabs. T. C. POWERS,
Chairman of the Board, Chicago and Eastern Illinois railway.

THE UNSUNG HERO.

Chicago, April 28.—On page 2, column 6 of the April 27 issue it is stated that Motorcycle Policeman John Jilek of the south park forces jumped into the lake at 51st street to save a drowning man. Motorcycle Policeman Jilek had nothing to do with the rescue. Upon finding the man in the lake Policeman Jilek jumped on his motorcycle and started, presumably for Jackson park for a life preserver. An unidentified motorist who had stopped to see what was going on jumped in and kept the man from going down until the life preserver finally arrived and towed him in, a lapsed time of approximately twenty minutes.

WITNESS.

FIREWORKS.

Chicago, April 30.—I am an admirer of beautiful and artistic firework displays, but, like a great majority of people, abhor the fireworks which produce only noise. There are no harmless firecrackers when handled by small children or by hoodlums who shoot them from cans. Dante's inferno must be a nice and quiet place compared to Chicago on the 4th of July of last year.

AUGUSTA MEYER.

AN OFFENSIVE SIGN.

Chicago, April 29.—Now that we are about to celebrate the redemption of Chicago, would it not be well to have that unsightly sign at 63rd and South Shore drive, which broadcasts the good deeds of men whom we want to forget, removed? CHICAGO WELL WISHER.

HUNDREDS VISIT BLOSSOMLAND OF MICHIGAN TOWNS

Annual Festival Gets Under Way Today.

Benton Harbor, Mich., May 3.—[Special.]—Hundreds of visitors were lured to Berrien county's orchard-land over the week-end on the eve of the ninth annual seven day southwestern Michigan blossom festival, staged in Benton Harbor and St. Joseph from tomorrow to and including "blossom Sunday," May 10.

This will probably be the most elaborate and colorful program in the history of these fêtes. Miles of trees, covered with snow glory, proclaim that blossom and springtime fragrance in Michigan has arrived. Cherries and plums are now at the apex of bloom. Peaches, pears and apples need only a warming sun to cover the landscape with the charm that annually helps to attract thousands here during blossom festival.

Royal Beauties Arrive Today.

Queen Jane Filstrup and her court of thirty-three Michigan princesses, arriving home early tomorrow from a triumphant tour of the state and Canada, will be greeted by the sixty-piece Benton Harbor High school band and Mayor M. W. Stouck. The royal party will appear here at the Liberty theater tomorrow afternoon and evening. Yesterday they visited Grand Rapids and today Grand Haven.

Queen Jane and six other girls will visit Chicago Tuesday, appearing at the outdoor exposition at the Coliseum, and will be Hotel Sherman guests at night, when Queen Jane will sing "Parade of the Blossoms," broadcasting an invitation to the festival and giving a special invitation to Mayor Cermak.

Coronation Wednesday.

U. S. Orders Army Horses Displaced by Fast Motors

Washington, D. C., May 3.—[Special.]—As a part of a drive to step up army efficiency and cut down needless expenditures, the war department has directed the motorization of all army forces stationed in overseas posts and garrisons, with the possible exception of China. The number of horses now maintained on the Mexican border and in certain other corps areas has been cut down by at least a thousand in recent months with more reductions to follow.

MAJ. GEN. H. A. DRUM.

While Honolulu has been virtually on a motorized basis for some time, more than 3,000 animals have been maintained in the Philippines for the use of the cavalry, artillery and infantry units stationed there. The orders now call for a gradual substitution of motors for animals as horses and mules reach replacement ages. A few horses may be retained by some units for operations where motors cannot go and for certain types of cavalry scouting work. Otherwise even the cavalry will become a motorized and mechanized unit.

See Passing of Army Horse.

The move to substitute motors for horses and mules at Manila and Honolulu is regarded as the forerunner of army modernization which will see a considerable increase in the use of machines in the army both for fighting and for transportation. A radical reduction of horses in all cavalry and field artillery units is foreshadowed.

Development in the last year of the Christie light tank, the semi-automatic shoulder rifle, and a number of motor trucks and other motorized vehicular transportation suitable for army uses has served to speed up the movement toward bringing the army up to date. Whether Secretary of War Hurley and Gen. MacArthur will be successful in obtaining funds with which to begin the modernization of the army is a question which will be answered this coming winter.

The great strides that have been taken in industry in developing speedy chassis that can be used for fast armored cars and trucks, as well as the development of a fighting tank capable of automobile speed, has emphasized the antiquated condition of the army's fighting machines and world war transportation.

Must Improve Transportation.

In order to improve army transportation congress last winter was asked to approve a general 10 year program to substitute modern trucks for the old machines now being used by the quartermaster corps and other army units. Several hundred thousand dollars was voted last winter and funds for the purchase of several hundred additional trucks, some six wheeled which are capable of going almost anywhere a tank will go will be included in the 1932 budget.

The need for better transportation as well as a reduction in the amount of animal transportation was emphasized by Maj. Gen. H. A. Drum, inspector general of the army, in his last annual report. He asserted that a surplus of draft animals existed in many corps areas.

Surplus of Animals Reported.

"In the 8th corps surplus animals of the second division are being pastured on the Camp Stanley reservation," Maj. Gen. Drum said. "At Fort Bliss, Tex., surplus horses and surplus mules were reported as under care of the division veterinarian. At posts in other corps areas it is reported that animals are being maintained either in excess of authorized allowances or of actual needs. This surplus is due in part to the reduction in strength of artillery regiments, and in part to the policy of the war department that animals unfitted for extensive field service be not condemned.

"It is believed to be unquestionable that a substantial reduction in the annual forage bill of the army, which was approximately $4,000,000 in the last fiscal year, could be effected if all animals from which a fair day's organizational and post work throughout the year is not now being obtained, were eliminated."

ROB MOTORISTS IN OGDEN AVE.

Two Negroes halted Samuel Lieberman and his wife, Molly, 709 Milwaukee avenue, when their automobile was waiting on a traffic light on Ogden avenue early yesterday and robbed them of a $400 coat, a ring valued at $100, and $60 in cash.

MINE PROMOTER HELD IN MURDER OF UTAH WOMAN

Seized Over Year After "Slaying by Auto."

Salt Lake City, Utah, May 3.—(AP)—Renewed investigation of the reputed "automobile slaying" Feb. 21, 1930, of Mrs. Dorothy Moormeister, attractive Salt Lake City matron, today led to the arrest of Charles Peter, a mining promoter, who was charged with murder.

Peter, a friend of Mrs. Moormeister and the woman's husband, Dr. Frank Moormeister, was questioned during a protracted coroner's inquest that followed the woman's death. Her body, stripped of expensive jewelry, was found on a highway. Officers said evidence indicated the victim was slugged with a fragment of heavy ore and her own automobile driven repeatedly over the body.

Warned of Peter's intention to depart for Los Angeles, S. Grant Young, county sheriff, today obtained a warrant and arrested him. The prisoner refused to discuss the case.

Denied Being with Her.

At the inquest Peter testified he accompanied Mrs. Moormeister on an automobile ride a week before the slaying, but denied having been with her later. His wife declared he had been at home on the night the woman was killed.

Today Sheriff Young said an investigation started the first of the year, when he assumed office, had revealed witnesses who declared they with Mrs. Moormeister early on the with Mrs. Moormister early on the evening of her slaying and enter her automobile. The couple also was noticed in the car with another man during the evening.

Bring Inquiry to Climax.

The identification of Peter as an occupant of the Moormeister motor car near the death scene brought the investigation to a climax, officers said. George Edmunds, a mechanic, told the sheriff he recognized Peter as the driver of the car.

The machine, he was quoted as saying, suddenly swerved around his car, compelling him to stop. Peter, he told the officers, turned his head and muttered a remark. A young woman companion of Edmunds was declared to have corroborated his account of the incident, although she was unable to identify Peter as an occupant of the automobile.

Receives Call from Woman.

Other evidence announced by the sheriff included the statement of Miss Arline Davies, Peter's former secretary, that he received a telephone call from a woman late on the afternoon preceding the killing and agreed to meet her. A few days later, she was declared to have told the officers, he sent her to the bank to deposit a $100 bill which was heavily perfumed.

Two other young men testified at the inquest that they had seen a man park an expensive automobile on a street here late the night of the killing, lock it and hurry away. The machine, its chassis spattered with blood, was found a few hours later, but it was not until a night factory worker discovered the woman's body on his way home that the slaying was revealed.

U. S. FARM LOANS HELP BUSINESS IN DROUGHT AREA

St. Louis, Mo., May 3.—[Special.]—Through the medium of government loans to farmers, business in the drought sections has been markedly stimulated, according to word received at the farmers' seed loan office here.

T. WEED HARVEY. [A. & P. Photo.]

It is estimated that some $39,000,000 will be paid out in loans to buy seed, feed, and fertilizer, and that the amount advanced for "agricultural rehabilitation," which includes the purchase of food and clothing, will reach $6,000,000. An additional $2,000,000 appropriation handled directly from Washington was disbursed among farmers in Virginia, Georgia, Alabama, Florida, North and South Carolina.

Thus $47,000,000 will have been loaned to farmers when the last applications are approved within the next few days. The original congressional appropriation was $45,000,000 to be advanced for buying seed, feed, fertilizer and tractor fuel. A second appropriation of $20,000,000 for farmers in the drought districts was divided in equal parts, $10,000,000 for agricultural rehabilitation and an equal amount for the aid of rural credit corporations loaning to farmers on live stock or other security.

90,000 Applications Received.

At the St. Louis office, which serves the largest of the drought districts, nearly 90,000 applications have been received and $7,886,803 has been advanced to 68,853 borrowers. This district embraces the eight states of Illinois, Missouri, Indiana, Kentucky, Kansas, Oklahoma, Texas and New Mexico. Recently one county in Arizona was added.

Texas has received the largest amount, $2,787,000, in seed loans, paid to more than 20,000 borrowers. In Kentucky 22,407 farmers have been loaned $2,092,922, while in Missouri 14,376 borrowers have obtained $1,916,555. Indiana lists 5,205 borrowers, receiving $718,208.

Illinois farmers were fewer in number and required less money than any other state except Kansas. Seed loans advanced in Kansas numbered 1,029, with a total of $132,720. In Illinois $249,860 has been advanced to 1,925 applicants.

Funds for Food and Clothing.

Loans for rehabilitation, which included funds for buying food, clothing, and other items, will exceed 20,000 and run somewhat over $1,130,000. Here again Kansas farmers are apparently in a stronger position than those of other sections, though there is little difference between that state and Illinois.

While the maximum legal seed loan is $600, the average in the St. Louis district is but slightly above $114. The food loan limit was placed at $75, yet the average advanced to each borrower is only a little more than $56.

In the next 30 days the St. Louis seed loan office will prepare the crop mortgages required in Illinois, Kentucky, and Kansas. In those states such mortgages may not be executed until the crop is in the ground and growing.

Statements from over the district that the government will make no serious effort to collect these loans are erroneous, T. Weed Harvey, in charge of the St. Louis office, points out.

TRIES AGAIN

REYKJAVIK, Iceland, May 3.—(AP)—Capt. Albin Ahrenberg, Swedish flyer who will search for Augustine Courtauld, British scientist missing on Greenland's ice cap, arrived in Angmagsalik, Greenland, this afternoon after a flight over the Strait of Denmark from Reykjavik.

The aviator had intended to continue the flight immediately in search of the missing Englishman, but he was prevented from doing so by formation of ice on the wings of his plane. This compelled him to land at Angmagsalik. Ahrenberg made the flight from the Iceland capital in five hours.

During the trip he passed over the Danish cruiser Hvidbjorn, which lies near the Greenland ice barrier. The Iceland patrol boat Odinn, which went to aid in the search for Courtauld, also is in the Strait of Denmark on its way back here to repair its damaged airplane. Two dog teams, driven by friends of the missing scientist, also have gone to his rescue, but no word has been received from them.

SEIZED AS PAL OF BANK ROBBER WHO KILLED TWO

Jack Munson, 32 years old, suspected bank robber pal of Frank Jordan, the gunman who killed two policemen while resisting arrest at Randolph street and Michigan avenue last Thursday, was captured yesterday by a detective bureau squad in a raid on an apartment at 6338 Evans avenue. Munson was found with a woman.

Munson, the police said, was named by Jordan as an accomplice in the robbery of several Illinois banks. Munson denied the charges. He is held under an open charge pending the arrival of bank officials who have been asked to view the suspect. The woman found with Munson said her name was Annabelle Darter, alias Dolores Saunders, and that she came here from St. Louis with Munson some time ago. She said she knew nothing about his alleged criminal activities.

Mrs. Gladys May Jordan, wife of the policemen's killer, was released from police custody yesterday. Jordan is in jail under indictment for the murder of Policeman Anthony Ruthy, who will be buried today in Holy Sepulchre cemetery after services in Our Lady of Good Counsel church, 35th street and Hermitage avenue.

Another indictment will be sought against Jordan this week for the murder of Policeman Patrick Durkin, who died Saturday from bullet wounds.

HUNGER MARCHERS IN INDIANAPOLIS.

Indianapolis, Ind., May 3.—(AP)—Preparatory to making demands for a special session of the legislature to aid unemployed, about 125 "hunger marchers" from 11 Indiana cities assembled here today, and held a meeting in a local hall. They plan to stage a demonstration at the state house tomorrow, and three leaders will call on Gov. Harry G. Leslie.

TASK OF PICKING KIRKLAND JURY RESUMES TODAY

Valparaiso, Ind., May 3.—[Special.]—Selection of a jury to try Virgil Kirkland, 20 year old former Gary High school football star, will be resumed in Judge Grant Crumpacker's court tomorrow morning. Kirkland is being tried for the second time for the murder by rape of Arlene Draves, 18.

The attorneys in the case will have a fresh panel of 75 men and women to examine in their efforts to find 12 who will promise to give the young man an impartial trial. There are at present seven men who have been tentatively passed upon by both sides and two women who have been temporarily accepted by the defense.

Picking a jury has been rendered difficult because of the wide publicity given the evidence at the first trial, which resulted in a verdict of life imprisonment. Most of the 81 men and three women who have so far paraded through the jury box have confessed to a prejudice against the youthful defendant.

German Doctor Finds Way To Stop RHEUMATISM Pains Quickly

Relief In 7 to 10 Minutes Guaranteed . . . or No Pay

Here is important news for those who suffer the agonies of Rheumatism, Lumbago, Sciatica, Neuralgia—as well as the less serious but uncomfortable lameness of muscles and joints.

It has been used for many years by Dr. Joseph Rodenberg, former owner and Medical Director of the Spa at Weisbaden, Germany. It is called Muscletone—and already over 2,000,000 bottles have been used in America.

How It Works

No internal drug taking is now necessary with this treatment. You no longer dose the system or upset the stomach with violent drugs. You simply apply Muscletone to the limb, shoulders, neck, face or back—wherever the trouble may be. There is no burning, no irritation.

But—according to thousands of affidavits in our files—that excruciating pain stops almost instantly. Muscletone acts by inunction. You can actually feel the pain leaving. By gentle absorption the accumulated toxins seem to be neutralized. Normal circulation is quickly restored to congested tissues. Even chronic and severe conditions respond so amazingly that seldom is more than a single bottle needed.

Our Unconditional Guarantee

The peculiar ingredients used in Muscletone are the result of a remarkable discovery made by a famous physician. In thousands of cases the results have been so astounding that we now unconditionally guarantee that Muscletone will stop your Rheumatism and other pains in seven to ten minutes.

We urge only that you make this test: Use one-half bottle. If you are not amazed at the results, simply return the remaining half and your druggist will instantly refund your money. You can test Muscletone at our risk. Quick results—or the test costs you nothing.

One-Half Bottle Brings Complete Comfort

For over two years I have been troubled with rheumatism in my right knee, and for the past several months the pain has been so great that I could hardly lift my foot off the floor, and to go up or down stairs was entirely out of the question. I tried many liniments without getting any relief. I have used only half the bottle of Muscletone and can go where I please without any trouble and I give MUSCLETONE all the credit. It took the pain and stiffness away completely.

Relieves Soreness, Reduces Swelling

I have been a victim of fallen arches for the past 14 years, which caused my ankles to swell and muscles became very sore and most painful. Your MUSCLETONE seemed to relieve the soreness and reduced the swelling with just a few applications.

Stops Pain of Neuritis Like Magic

I am more than thankful for the comfort I have received from your remarkable MUSCLETONE. Some six years ago I had a paralytic stroke and since then have suffered greatly from neuritis in my right arm and left shoulder, with swelling and pain almost beyond endurance. My wife heard about your MUSCLETONE and the first application worked like magic. After several days' use, I can truthfully say I feel no more pain and really cannot thank Dr. Chapin enough for this wonderful discovery.

NEW TERMINAL AT ROCK ISLAND TO BE DEDICATED

Elaborate Ceremony Will Be Held Tomorrow.

Rock Island, Ill., May 3.—[Special.]—Days of long ago when Rock Island, then a struggling village on the Mississippi and that river was a great highway of traffic, will be recalled vividly Tuesday by the older inhabitants when the city's $400,000 river and rail terminal will be dedicated in an elaborate ceremony.

MAJ. GEN. THOMAS G. ASHBURN.

Two of the outstanding speakers will be Maj. Gen. Thomas G. Ashburn, chairman of the Inland Waterways corporation, and Cleveland Newton, former congressman from St. Louis and now general counsel of the Mississippi Valley River Improvement association. Secretary of War Hurley, who was invited, will be unable to attend.

Officials Will Attend.

City officials from the sister cities in the Quad City group as well as council members from cities for a hundred miles around will be here for the occasion.

The dedication program will be opened with a noon luncheon at the Fort Armstrong hotel. At 2 p. m. a parade headed by White's band will start from the hotel and proceed to the terminal at the foot of Fourth avenue.

The city will be in gala attire to mark the culmination of an effort of three years to procure a terminal here. Mayor Chester Thompson has declared a half holiday.

Following the speaking and dedicatory program one of the boats of the federal barge line will give a demonstration of loading and unloading freight.

First Shipment Unloaded.

The first shipment through the new terminal arrived last Friday from St. Louis and down river cities. Unloading at this port were eight carloads of coffee and several carload lots of sugar and molasses to be transferred to points in western Iowa.

Three years ago the people voted a bond issue of $350,000 to build a terminal here in an effort to coöperate with the government in reviving river traffic. Due to unsatisfactory contracts with the Inland Waterways corporation and the railroads up until last fall the actual construction of the big dock was delayed.

Room with Warm 'Skin' Built to Test New Heating Theory

Pittsburgh, Pa., May 3.—(AP)—A room with a warm "skin" has just been built in the Westinghouse research laboratories at East Pittsburgh to test a new theory of keeping warm.

The "skin" is a surface impregnated with electric heating elements. The individual "scales" or sections forming the skin imitate ordinary wall and ceiling materials—can if necessary be covered with them. In the new room the walls have a finish of specially covered overlapping boards with a ceiling of soft, ivory tinted material.

All the heat comes from walls and ceiling. The entire surface may be warmed, or the heat merely switched on section by section where it will do the most good. These walls do not glow like a grate, nor become hot to the touch, like steam pipes. They radiate a mild temperature almost exactly equal to that of the human body, and feel barely warm to the touch.

Body's Heat May Cut Fuel Bill.

Ordinarily the comfort of a room depends on the heat of its air—convection is the technical term. But the new room will be tested with air quite cool, to learn whether the heat radiated by the body in all directions can be used for both comfort and a possibility of saving in fuel bills.

Radiated heat travels with the rapidity of light, speeding just as fast from a man's bare hand as from the noonday sun. The thermocouples which record the heat in a blush show the radiated heat from a person striking the walls everywhere in a room of ordinary size.

Cold walls absorb this radiated heat rapidly; whether the lesser absorption of mildly heated walls will produce a worthwhile difference in physical comfort is one question the new room is designed to answer.

Plans More Tests.

L. W. Schad, who set up the tests, already has found a radiation loss from the human body that is unexpectedly large. More bodily heat is lost in that manner than any other. With the humidity at 45 (normal) and room temperature of 71 Fahrenheit the body loses its heat about as follows in the Westinghouse room:

By radiation, 44 per cent; by moisture evaporation, 26 per cent; by convection, 30 per cent.

Experiences in this radiation loss will be called by persons who have had the sensation of cold upon stepping into a glass walled conservatory where the air temperature was unchanged but the windows chill with winter.

Mr. Schad plans to study the feelings of a number of individuals, each of whom will spend some time in the room experiencing a series of temperature levels, humidity changes and ventilation currents.

Wind Fans Forest Fires in Minnesota; One Dead

St. Paul, Minn., May 3.—(AP)—Brisk southeast winds fanned brush and forest fires in Cass and Itasca counties in northern Minnesota today. A forest fire was threatening the summer resort district around Alexander lake, 20 miles north of Little Falls, and fire fighting equipment and men have been dispatched to the scene from Brainerd. One death has been reported as due to the flames.

ARMY OF 800 MEN SENT OUT TO 'GET' PHANTOM KILLER

BY ANTHONY PATRIC.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BELEM, Para, Brazil, May 3.—An expeditionary force 800 strong, armed to the teeth with the latest implements of war, is driving toward the interior of the state of Bahia, bent on the capture of Lampeao, Brazil's outlaw-emperor, and his little band of thirty-five cutthroats.

Capt. Carlos Chevalier, who heads the expedition, has been charged by the government to spare neither time nor effort to bring back the fractious Lampeao. His capture is as much a matter of principle as expediency, since for years he has thumbed his nose at the forces of law and order, played tag with the police of hundreds of towns, and killed constables and posses who followed too persistently on his bloody trail.

Began "Career" at 14.

A boyish faced, bespectacled young man of 30, Lampeao has spent more than half of his life terrorizing the states of Bahia, Ceara, and Sergipe. At 14 years of age, back in 1915, he murdered his father's assassin, and since that time he has been pillaging and murdering. Like metropolitan gangsters, he is a "big shot" and one of the features of South American newspapers.

Lampeao is credited with scores of assassinations, assaults, and robberies, and has to his credit victories against the combined forces of several states in which he and his band have been marauding at will for fifteen years.

Lampeao is conceited and boastful of his strategic skill and is an artist of the magnificent gesture. He has never missed a chance to send communications to the leading papers of Bahia or Pernambuco, telling the exact location of the place he and his bandits were staying, which has been generally a few hundred miles away from the spot the police have reported to have "cornered" him.

Also a Philanthropist.

Like Robin Hood and his merry band, Lampeao is a philanthropist of sorts. His outlaws raid a town, steal large sums of money, and then share it with the poor peasants. Thus Lampeao is constantly informed of police movements and is enabled to keep two or three jumps ahead of the toils of the law. He is popular with the mountain people, and this accounts for his immunity during the long years he has ravaged the forest and mountain towns.

To prove that he is not afraid of the government's 800 men, with their airplanes and radio stations, machine guns, and grenades, Lampeao and his band have come down out of the mountains into Bahia. He has let it be known that he is waiting for this "wilderness" army.

For all of his jesting and benevolences, Lampeao is a ruthless killer when violence appears more expedient than kindness. Telegraphic news from Bomfim, Bahia, tells of his latest murderous activities, which took place on April 22 at a prosperous farm thirty-six miles from the town of Uara.

Takes Revenge on Informers.

Knowing that his whereabouts had been reported to the police of Uara and Poco, Lampeao and his outlaws went to the farm and insisted on knowing the names of those who had denounced them. Lampeao threatened to burn down the farm and kill every person on it if he were not obeyed.

Finally two men, Jose Cardoso and Jose Felix, in order to avoid a general massacre, gave themselves up to the outlaw king. Cardoso was killed immediately. Felix was paraded naked all over the farm and finally shot by Lampeao. Felix's wife, who asked Lampeao to be merciful, was seized by the bandits and forced to accompany them to the village of Poco.

CHICAGOANS HELP RESTORE ANCIENT CHINESE PALACE

Seat of Manchus Made Into a Museum.

BY CHARLES DAILEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PEIPING, May 3.—The centuries old imperial palace in Peking, now called Peiping, the seat of the Manchu government until it was overthrown by the revolution, has been preserved to the people of China by its conversion into a museum, where are concentrated all the relics of the Manchu reign and also curios not only from all parts of China but gifts to the imperial family from many foreign countries. There has been a movement afoot to distribute these treasures to other parts of China, but Nanking and the other cities have neither the buildings to house such a museum nor the money to erect one.

ROBT. ALLERTON.

Now, however, the disposition to retain this group of buildings in Peiping and the treasures contained in them resulted in numerous large gifts, notably from Americans, for the repair of the palace and its further conversion into a museum. In this work numerous well known Chicagoans have had an important part.

Robert Allerton Contributes.

Robert Allerton of Chicago, who recently devoted two weeks of an oriental tour to ancient Peiping, called on Yi Pei-chi, director of the museum, and contributed $1,500 in American money for the repair of a hall in the inner eastern section of the palace. Since the departure of Mr. Allerton, the museum authorities have decided to use this money for the renovation of the outer apartment of the sacrificing palace, which then will be opened to the public as an exhibition room for jades, of which a vast collection has escaped the ravages of the various political groups that have had control since the flight of the last emperor.

Another important donation came from Joy Morton of Chicago, who spent several weeks in the ancient capital a year ago. Mr. Morton gave $5,000 in American gold, which was used to repair one of the corner towers of the Forbidden City. The painting of this was completed just recently. The manner in which this has added to the beauty of the palace has caused the museum directors to consider a way in which the other three towers may be restored.

John D. Jr. Donates.

John D. Rockefeller Jr. and Maj. Gen. William Crozier, retired chief of ordinance of the United States army, and Mrs. Crozier have also given liberally to the restoration of the imperial palace and it was their donation which made it possible to restore the innermost wall of the Forbidden City. Upon the payment of a nominal sum, in addition to the usual entrance fees, this wall may now be walked for a distance of nearly two miles, giving an intimate view of the inner palace.

St. Mary's Orchestra Wins Catholic Schools' Contest

St. Mary's High school orchestra, directed by H. J. Beringer, was declared the winner of the annual Chicago Catholic high school orchestra contest which ended on Saturday. The St. Mary's orchestra, consisting of 32 pieces, won the contest last year and successfully defended its right to the Catholic high school championship.

BILLIARD HALL IN LOOP HELD UP; GET $500 LOOT

Two gunmen early this morning forced ten patrons of Kieckhefer's billiard hall and recreation rooms on the second floor of 20 East Randolph street to lie on the floor while they compelled J. R. Morin, 1551 East 65th street, the manager, to open the safe. The robbers, one of whom was masked, obtained about $500. They then herded the ten into a washroom, the door of which they roped shut from the outside, and fled. It was half an hour before the imprisoned men could free themselves and notify the police.

CHIANG'S PARTY DEMANDS HE QUIT AS HEAD OF CHINA

Nanking Rule in Peril as Result of Split.

SHANGHAI, May 4.—[Monday.]—(AP)—With both its domestic solidarity and foreign relations apparently facing issues gravely endangering its existence, China's Nationalist government today was in the most precarious position encountered since the rebellion of the northern war lords last year.

CHIANG KAI-SHEK. [Acme Photo.]

A considerable portion of the conservative elements of the Kuomintang, which controls the Nationalist government, has accused Chiang Kai-shek, the party and government leader, of abuse of power. He also is charged with inefficiency in handling the government's multifarious problems and has been requested to retire.

Split Flares in Canton.

This split within the country's dominating political group appeared a few days ago as an anti-Nanking crusade within the provinces of Kwangtung and Kwangsi and centered about Canton.

Canton, known as "the cradle of China's revolution," because Sun Yat-sen began his revolutionary campaign there, although supposedly controlled by the nationalist government, has remained as the stronghold of the conservative element of the organization. The conservatives always have been opposed to the so-called younger element of the Kuomintang represented by Generalissimo Chiang.

The conservatives, in order to get their anti-Chiang Kai-shek drive under way, caused the Kwangtung and Kwangsi province leaders, who are principally appointees of Chiang, to declare independence in those provinces. In so doing the leaders accused their supposed chieftain of aspirations inimical to the interests of the revolutionary government and demanded his overthrow.

Predict Movement's Spread.

Kuomintang conservatives, who are carefully remaining behind the scenes, today prophesied their movement was destined to spread throughout the nation, if the president declines to heed the "real voice of the Kuomintang and the nation."

Internationally the Nationalist government faced a difficult situation which was principally of its own making. Extraterritoriality negotiations, which the government has for many months been promising its supporters would forever end foreign nations' consular jurisdiction in China, seemed deadlocked.

Information from high sources, both Chinese and foreign, indicated that conversations between the Nationalist government and those nations possessing extra-territoriality privileges, principally the United States, France, Great Britain, and Japan, have ended as a result of China's demand that these be abolished completely and immediately. It was understood these nations had declined and offered instead a gradual relinquishment, which the Chinese profess impossible to accept in view of the Nationalist government's promises to the Chinese nation.

With the wreck of these negotiations now apparent, Chinese circles say the question is destined to go before the national people's congress in Nanking tomorrow. Chinese profess to believe the congress will undertake to abrogate all extra-territorial rights of foreigners in China.

The Nationalist government, apparently anticipating such action, today issued regulations outlining the procedure whereby Chinese courts will undertake to hear cases involving foreigners, both civil and criminal.

Nanking Scoffs at Charges.

NANKING, May 4 [Monday].—(AP)—The Nationalist government control committee, which handles charges against government officials, in a statement today said it considered the charges made against the government by the Kwangtung province organization of the Kuomintang as "not worth considering." President Chiang Kai-shek, in a statement, said he would abide by the decision of the control committee always.

CRUISE to the heart of Old French-Canada. We take you by rail to Toronto, Queen City of Canada, where your foreign adventure begins. You set sail on a luxurious steamer, one of the world's largest fresh water fleet. You will visit, en route, Montreal—the metropolis, and the fortress city of Quebec, Gibraltar of North America.

You will cruise among the Thousand Islands—set like a thousand jewels in azure blue waters, experience the thrills of shooting the great St. Lawrence Rapids. Near Quebec you will pay your respects at the miracle shrine of Ste. Anne de Beaupré and hear the thunder of Montmorency Falls, higher than Niagara.

Beyond Quebec the high Laurentians follow the St. Lawrence and you cruise in the shadow of these ancient mountains. The steamer puts in at fashionable Murray Bay, and quaint and lovely Tadoussac, Canada's oldest settlement. The glory of the Saguenay River, seen at sunset and again at dawn, is a spectacle to impress the most widely travelled. The wild grandeur of Trinity Bay, guarded by the tremendous capes, Trinity and Eternity—the ship's siren reverberating like giant laughter among the eternal hills—gives you a touch of the loneliness, austerity and beauty of the silent places.

A spirit of gaiety prevails for the entire journey, and there is not a dull moment on ship or shore. You dance every evening to the music of a lively orchestra. Delicious meals satisfy ravenous appetites. You will vote this the best vacation ever.

Remember, every expense on this enjoyable cruise has been foreseen and included in the figure quoted above, as well as stop-overs at important hotels en route. A courteous escort relieves you of every travel worry.

SOVIET FIVE YEAR PLAN RUNS INTO A SERIOUS SNAG

Crippled Railways Unable to Keep Up with Work.

BY HENRY WALES.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MOSCOW, April 6.—[By Mail.]—Disturbing rumors are gravitating to the capital from the various remote units of the projects under construction for the realization of the five-year plan.

Credence to these reports is enhanced by the sober note of warning which marked the speech of Premier Molotov to the soviet congress in which he stressed the fact that 1931 is the crucial year in the execution of the plan and in which he admitted that serious failure to keep to schedule exists in certain vital phases of the scheme.

Transport and fuel are the principal stumbling blocks which are retarding steady and uniform progress of construction in the rhythm planned, and gloomy prospects are held out for relief in either of these spheres in the near future.

Threatens to Wreck Plan.

Gradually it is coming to be realized in government circles that failure to provide for reorganization of the transportation system at the inception of the plan threatens to wreck the entire proposition, and promises certainly to retard chaotic the efforts for a common effort in all fields.

Arrests and more trials for sabotage and crime against the state are already hinted in store for those responsible for failure to recognize the primary necessity of transport for the fulfillment of the scheme.

Decreased fuel production—it was only 57 per cent of the plan's provisions in February and 43 per cent in January—is another menace, as without the coal from the Don basin and other regions, practically the entire project faces paralysis. It will be a couple of years before the Kuznetzk coal basin can be exploited to a degree which will be appreciable, although experts estimate that hundreds of millions of tons of fuel are potentially available there.

Hard to Find Labor.

Difficulty is experienced in getting the additional miners necessary to operate the Don mines at the tempo which the plan requires, as outside labor declines to go down into these pits, where the cuttings are so low and narrow that a man may not stand up straight to walk or work during his entire shift, and where there are no lifts and the miners descend and ascend by ladders. Transportation enters this problem by the inability of railroads to haul in new machinery, spare parts and repairing tools and material.

Russia's railroads were inadequate to handle the traffic entailed on them in 1913 during the imperial régime. Since then only a few additional lines have been constructed, apart from the thousand mile Turkestan-Siberia line, and there have been practically no replacements of locomotives and rolling stock.

The material has long been worn out, but continued to be operated in the absence of new. One American railway, the Baltimore and Ohio, scraps ten thousand cars a year. The Russian railways have never scrapped ten thousand cars since they have been constructed.

Lack Railway Shops.

Fulfillment of the five year plan is predicated on the delivery to the various units under construction of such material, machinery, and supplies as is necessary for their completion. Operation of the plan implies delivery of raw material at the various plants and distribution of the product turned out by these factories and organizations.

Railroads are the essentials for carrying out these requirements and the roads are not in a condition to execute their task. Shops for locomotive and car construction, which have been on blue prints for a year and a half, are not yet started. The installation will require at least two years before an engine or a box car can be begun.

Rolling stock and locomotives might be purchased abroad if the soviet government had the necessary foreign valuta or credits to buy them. But the Reds are hard put to it to make payments on key machinery to get certain factories and plants nearing completion on an operating basis when they are at last finished.

Vague on Value of Projects.

Giant enterprises, hailed as panaceas for all Russia's industrial problems when they were started a couple of years ago, and boomed in propaganda as "the biggest in the world," are now beginning to look suspiciously like a herd of milk white elephants.

The Dnieperstroi dam and electric power plant, for instance, destined to furnish a million kilowatss of energy, will, if and when completed, serve what purpose? Nobody seems to know exactly. There are vague ideas that huge industrial cities will eventually be built on either bank of the Dneiper to house the workers in innumerable enormous plants and factories that will be built to consume the energy created and available. Thus far not a lick of work has been done on these adjuncts.

And as the plan progresses new problems, unforeseen at the inception, thrust forth their hideous heads. Suddenly it is realized that Russia must expend $30,000,000 a year for an indeterminate period for purchase abroad of copper wire for the transmission of electrical power and for the coördination of the various far flung units of the plants and the establishment of adequate telephone and telegraph communication between them so that they can function in unison.

Produces Little Copper.

Russia herself contains extremely little copper. Certainly an insignificant amount is being produced in a remote region in Georgia. The Sullivan Machinery company of Chicago had representatives here recently examining the copper properties and making estimates on installation that would be necessary to insure efficient production.

Then there is the mechanization of the collective farms throughout the country, utilizing the tractors and farming implement machinery which a few completed soviet factories are producing.

But the sudden placing in operation of several hundred thousand motors created a new and unforseen difficulty—the distribution of millions of gallons of gasoline and benzine to run them. The railways possess practically no tank cars for the carrying of this liquid fuel. The small amount now handled is carried in steel drums.

I have seen tractors in the north, in the Archangel timber district, lying idle for lack of fuel, with thousands of feet of logs waiting on the sledges—waiting to be hauled down to the river bank in time to be made up into rafts and floated down to the sawmills by the high waters of early spring freshets.

The state has started a project for breeding cattle, sheep, and pigs, and the creation of a meat packing industry, with canning factories, cold storage plants, and all that goes with them. But the railways possess only a few hundred refrigerator cars, and it will be impossible to transport chilled meat from the main plants to the various freezers which are planned.

FIVE TO FACE COURT TODAY FOR SMOKE LAW VIOLATIONS

Five suits, which have been prepared by Frank A. Chambers, chief city smoke inspector, against persons who have violated the smoke abatement ordinance, will be prosecuted today before Municipal Judge J. F. O'Connell by City Prosecutor Rosinia.

Those named in the complaints are Ruth Bergfalk, 3247 Bryn Mawr avenue; E. J. Rose and Charles Meyers, 548 West Jackson boulevard; Adolph Weinstein, 17 North State street; Walter F. Klnnucan, 7136 Jeffery avenue, and Joseph Kowalczyk, 1352 West Huron street.

Complaints have been received by Chambers from the Morrison hotel and tenants of the First National Bank building because of smoke from the stack of the Hamilton club. An investigation by Chambers showed that smoke from the stack blew into some of the upper rooms in the hotel. Officials of the club, Chambers said, will be asked to raise the stack above the surrounding buildings.

IRISH WIN LONG STRUGGLE TO EAT THEIR OWN FISH

Free State Acts to Put Industry on Feet.

BY HUGH CURRAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

DUBLIN, May 3.—It has long been a grievance to Irish people that notwithstanding that their country is located amidst seas filled with fish—and no part of the country is more than 70 miles from the coast—yet it is virtually impossible to get fresh fish for the table; and whatever fish is available usually comes from the great fish center of Grimsby on the east coast of England.

This state of affairs, so inconvenient and so uneconomic, will end at last by a scheme which the Free State government has just put through parliament. The plan is endowed with a starting capital of $350,000, an amount slightly less than the sum spent every year for imported fish.

England Bungled Job.

Why doesn't Ireland catch and cure fish for its own consumption? Why, in fact, does it not export fish? The fish are there. The coasts breed a race of expert fishermen. The answer is that the fishing problem has been tinkered with and bungled for generations.

The British government, while it held Ireland under its control, tackled the fishing industry and with the best intentions. It spent a lot of money. It provided the fishermen with expensive boats. But still the industry languished, and the people hungered for fish.

The boats were too expensive, and today Ireland is writing off as bad debts the amounts due the British government originally and later taken over by the Free State because the fishermen could not pay the costs from their earnings.

Fish Rotted on Quays.

The British benefactors forgot that other things were required besides costly boats and tackle. It was necessary to provide rapid transport to get the catch to the markets; it was necessary to present the fish clean and wholesome to the retailer. Oftentimes the fishermen brought in heavy catches which rotted on the quays because there was no means of disposing of them.

The new reformers will profit by these mistakes.

The basic principle of the new plan is coöoperative—coöperation between the government, the fishermen, the salesmen, the curers, the railways, the retailers, and the shipping companies. These agencies will be regimented to serve the interests of the fishing industry.

An association has been formed, composed of government officials, and specially chosen business men. Every fisherman will become a manager on payment of a small fee and will be permitted to purchase shares. The association will provide boats for each family, or group of fishermen, which will be paid for by a percentage of each catch brought ashore.

Arrangements will be made for the immediate sale of the catch on the landing pier. Transport arrangements will be available for the instant dispatch of fresh fish to cities and towns for consumption. A certain proportion will be cured on the spot and packed for export.

South America Ponders Wales' High Pressured Sales "Talk"

BY HAROLD TATAM.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BUENOS AIRES, May 3. — The prince of Wales and his brother, Prince George, are back home. Some London papers, according to dispatches received here, credited Great Britain's "master traveling salesman" with picking up $50,000,000 in orders for British factories during his swing around South America.

British business men here admit the princes "went over big" socially, and seemed to get along well politically, despite the ultra-republican atmosphere in several of the nations, which recently have gone through revolutionary upsets. As to the business, which the prince of Wales may have stirred up for old England, prominent Britons today declared it is too early to make any definite statements or predictions.

Show Spectacular Success.

More than 500,000 people visited the British trade exhibition which closed last Tuesday night. It was a spectacular success. As to whether it will bear fruit proportionate to the expenditure involved is a debated problem which only time can solve. In the meantime, the promoters and exhibitors alike declare they are satisfied with the results and with future prospects.

Commercial circles, however, are divided in opinion regarding the likelihood as to whether there will be a great permanent trade increase. They declare bluntly that the good-will, usually engendered in such enterprises, was forgotten when buyers and sellers began to talk real business and prices. Others insist that a similar amount of money—approximately $5,000,000—expended in a well-studied advertising campaign would have produced more immediate results.

Noteworthy in this connection was that some of the leading Lancashire cotton interests did not participate in the exhibition, alleging that they pinned more faith on their own advertising and their own salesmanship.

Arouses Keen Interest.

Nevertheless, none disputes the fact that the exhibition aroused keen public interest in British products, while clever showmanship sent the visitors away with a subconscious impression that British goods were unsurpassable. The prince of Wales' constant use of the Moth plane suggested the idea that that ship was the best and safest on the market.

Business circles, including British, are of the opinion that the success of the show will be a wasted effort unless it is followed up by vigorous advertising and smart salesmanship.

American business houses who were sympathetic towards the British effort, believe that a marked increase in British trade is not likely to result from the exhibition—at least for some time to come, partly due to the general economic depression and partly to the uncertainty as to how the British will follow up their initial success. They are also of the opinion that American industries are too strongly entrenched to suffer much from British competition.

WALES BRINGS TRUCE

BY C. N. GRIFFIS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LIMA, Peru, May 3.—The prince of Wales' visit to Peru, even in troublous times, undoubtedly made a lasting impression on public opinion.

It was taken as a compliment to the nation at large, and it is an open secret that the warring political and military leaders entered into a tacit agreement to suspend political demonstrations and armed movements until the departure of the royal guests, as evidenced by the fact that the revolt overthrowing Lieut. Col. Sanchez Cerro, which had been planned for weeks previously, was initiated only a few days after the two princes had left Peruvian territory.

The democratic informality and the good fellowship of the two princes had a notable effect in mellowing the attitude of the present political régime towards British vested interests here, the most important of which are the Peruvian corporation owning principally railways valued at $100,000,000 and the Marconi Wireless company, which operates the Peruvian posts and telegraphs, wireless and long distance telephones.

Judges Own Countrymen.

In addition, the prince of Wales during his stay here proved to be past master in adjudging the merits and demerits of his own countrymen. He openly favored those whom he considered were energetically and intelligently supporting British trade, and turned a cold shoulder on those whom he thought sluggish and reactionary.

The British heir with his energy made ten friends to every enemy. It is believed here that the greatest results of the prince of Wales' tour will be through the counsel and criticism which he will give to British foreign and trade executives regarding the virtues and shortcomings of their methods and representatives here.

DRY DEMOCRAT GETS UPSTATE NEW YORK POST

New York, May 3.—[Special.]—In preparation for a determined drive to sever upstate New York from its Republican affiliation an upstate Democrat has been selected to head the Democratic union, an auxiliary of the Democratic state organized which has been in the field since late in 1928, but until recently has not functioned very actively.

The new chairman of the Democratic union is Robert R. Livingston of Columbia county, a former Democratic assemblyman and a dry. He will succeed James A. Beha, former state superintendent of insurance who is a New York city man and retired on account of "the press of business activities," according to Democratic State Chairman James A. Farley who appointed his successor. Mr. Farley said the appointment had the approval of Gov. Roosevelt.

Since he has been head of the Democratic state committee, Mr. Farley has been intensively active in the upbuilding of the Democratic party upstate where, until the advent of Gov. Roosevelt as a big factor in organization affairs and as de facto leader of his party, the Republicans had it pretty much their own way.

While the Democratic party in this state is officially wet, the fact that a man who made a dry record as a member of the assembly has been appointed head of the auxiliary party organization, as some Democrats view it, may prove helpful in keeping Republican drys upstate who broke with their party in the 1930 campaign, owing to the wet plank in the Republican platform and the stand taken on prohibition by Charles H. Tuttle, the Republican gubernatorial nominee, from drifting back into the Republican camp. This is entirely aside from the effect of his appointment with the governor's sanction on dry Democrats in other states, whose support might prove desirable to Gov. Roosevelt as a candidate for the Democratic nomination for President.

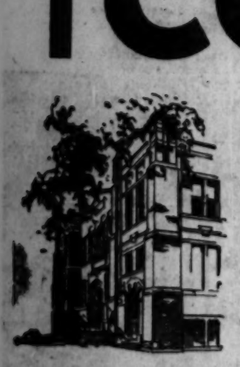
COAL HEAT COSTS LESS



To heat this church at 3400 N. Monticello, $7,431 is spent on coal every 5 years. To heat it with the fuel that next to coal is the most economical, it is estimated that some $10,003.06 would have to be spent. To heat it with the third fuel, an estimated $23,846.16 would have to be spent. The extra cost of heating your home with a fuel other than coal is proportional.

RIGHT now is the time to start saving on next winter's heating costs. Coal is a seasonal product. During the spring months the smallest demand and the greatest supply bring the price to the lowest level of the year. In the past, Chicago coal bins filled at this time have paid their foresighted owners a dividend of from 5 to 40% of the total value of the coke or coal stored in them. This year the same substantial return on money invested in coal can be reasonably expected. So make your coal bin work for you by filling it now. In realizing this extra saving, it is doubly important to make sure of full weight and honest grading. Any member of the Chicago Coal Merchants Association is pledged to give you both. And the Association guarantees his pledge's fulfillment.

"Red Bread" Tells Story of Russian Farms

Maurice Hindus Writes as Returned Native.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

DURING the last few months literature has been suffering from what we might call a "red" rash. It has been all broken out with books about Russia, written in every language, and most of them, so it seems from their numbers, translated into English. Every possible explanation of the soviet régime in Russia has come to us from every possible kind of writer, from the economist to the traveler, from the journalist to the novelist.

MAURICE HINDUS.

Among the outstanding books that caught the public's fancy was one by Maurice Hindus called "Humanity Uprooted." Its popularity in our country was rivaled by its popularity abroad. England and France were discussing it for months after its publication. Other countries may have been too, but I happened to read only French and English periodicals.

Maurice Hindus has just written another book about Russia, likewise from keen observation. It is called "Red Bread" [Cape Smith], and it is published today. Except for one chapter about Moscow, the entire book is concerned with the author's investigations in his native village and surrounding rural communities. Mr. Hindus' observations have a tang to them which those of a foreigner visiting Russia necessarily lacks. He remembers the old Russia. He has sentiments about it, whether of bitterness or admiration which do not in any wise prejudice his cool judgment of what is happening today. But that background gives him the immense advantage of knowing from what starting point the events of present day Russia had their being.

When he returned to Russia a few months ago, as on his previous visits, he returned with a native understanding. That gives not only authenticity to what he writes, but instills in the reader a deep confidence in his judgments.

The thing that is of primary importance in rural Russia ["Red Bread" concerns the rural rather than city life] is, he says, an organization called the kolhoz, a farming coöperative. "Red Bread" chronicles Mr. Hindus' conversations with men and women of every living generation of peasants, with men and women intellectuals, with members of the kolhoz, with bitter denouncers of it, with well to do farmers, whose farms have been confiscated and who have been forced to join the coöperative movement or who are eking out starvation living on farms with the labor of their own hands, for they are not allowed help. He talked with priests, with political organizers, with government officials. He sets down those conversations with such skill that they not only impart facts but give one a very definite sense of the whole Russian scene.

The older people look upon coöperation with bitterness and distrust, his observations make the reader feel. The intellectuals, for quite another reason, feel the same way about it, for intellectuals are almost always peculiar individualists. The older peasants distrust something which deprives them of their age old misery and has not as yet given them, as far as they can see, anything that makes them less miserable. The priests despairingly accept the complete destruction of religious worship or consciousness, for they are powerless to do anything else. Well to do farmers either suffer the disintegration of their farms and their homes and their families—with silent bitterness or accept their fate. In the latter case, they become leaders in the new agricultural movements. Most of the youth of the land accept the new order as the only conceivable civilized one.

Such is a quick survey of the reactions which Mr. Hindus sets down at length and with vividness. Mr. Hindus' conclusions about the effect of the plan on rural Russia are not easy to summarize. It has wrought great suffering, spiritual as well as physical, to a great many people. He cites its failings, inevitable and conspicuous, such as labor, waste of machinery—because the peasants have no idea of how to care for machines.

"One could draw up a catalogue of failings, objective and subjective," he says, "which would make the most hopeless undertaking appear the most hopeless undertaking on earth. Yet the efforts to overcome these failings and to exploit the advantages that it makes possible are as dramatic a spectacle as there is in the world of the soviets."

What the kolhoz has done and hopes to do in the future he sums up: "The disappearance of individual ownership of land, the coming of large scale industrialized farming, the collapse of rural life, the rise of rural townships, the growing sophistication of the peasant women and its effect on the nation's birth rate, the collapse of religion and the transformation of the patriarchalistic family—these are the unmistakable guideposts of the approaching civilization in the Russian village. They are rooted in the very principle of the kolhoz, and as the kolhoz strengthens they will strengthen."

"Red Bread" is a vivid book, and, though spectacular in its implications, sane and restrained in its telling.

Good morning!

This underworld movie bemoans the fate of the ex-convict whose police acquaintances fail to understand him.

The hero is Chick Hewes, who, after a stretch in the Big House, returns to the Big City, determined to be good. His loyal wife Molly eagerly upholds him in his resolution.

After a discouraging hunt for work—during which search he has been generously staked by the gang with whom he once had run, Chick lands a position. All is hunky dory till a pal's delinquency draws Chic and Molly—who are utterly innocent of the crime committed—back again into the sickening eddy they know as The Law. Dogging their steps ever since Chick has been freed, is persistent Cop Fogarty, who hates the boy and means to land him back behind bars if possible.

The kids have a hard time getting squared again—but the story has a happy ending.

"Kick In" is from the old play by Willard Mack. It's been screened before as a "silent"—twice, I believe. Its ancient smack doesn't, however, seriously affect its taste. You'll find the film fairly exciting and quite well acted. And IS Clara Bow the perfect little lady from start to finish! SHE IS!

See you tomorrow.

NEW 'OLD IRONSIDES' IS VIEWED BY BOSTON PUBLIC; VOYAGE LATER

Boston, Mass., May 3.—[Special.]—The U. S. S. Frigate Constitution, better known as "Old Ironsides," was opened to public inspection today from 12:30 to 5 p. m. That schedule will be followed every week-end until July. Louis J. Gulliver is in command of the old man of war.

Yesterday workmen at the Boston navy yard in Charlestown placed guns on the boat deck, the last step in the reconstruction.

The Constitution will be commissioned as a war craft in the navy on July 1. A crew of 42 men, of whom 20 are now in training at Newport News, Va., is to handle the sails. It is planned to have the frigate towed on a large part of a long tour about the country, but at certain points it will move under its sails.

ITALIAN ROYALTY SEES SACRED SHROUD IN CEREMONY AT TURIN

TURIN, Italy, May 3.—(AP)—The holy shroud, in which tradition relates the body of Christ was wrapped when it was laid in the sepulcher, was reverently taken from its jewel studded marble case today. Royalty looked on and all the churchbells in Turin rang.

The ceremony took place in the special chapel of Turin cathedral, erected as a shrine for the shroud, which is one of the most sacred treasures of the Italian royal family.

A double cortége, one of princes, headed by Crown Prince Humberto, representing King Emanuel, and the other led by the princess of Piedmont, followed by princesses, walked from the royal palace to the cathedral. There they were received by Archbishop Fossati and many other prelates of the church.

The shroud, which last was exposed in 1898, was taken out with great solemnity and carried into the cathedral. There tomorrow the vanguard of the more than a million persons, from America and other countries who are expected to come to see it, will find it exposed.

The shroud today was viewed only by churchmen, members of the royal family, and a few guests. King Emanuel, in whose family it has been for nearly five centuries, will come to see it later with the queen.

There were no signs today of a revival of the controversy which raged around the authenticity of the shroud when it was last shown. The newspapers today restricted their comments to the historical details and announcements of the exposition. Railroad are making special rates for pilgrims to come to view it.

Women Renew Fight for Jury Service, After Adverse Ruling

Discouraged, but not despairing, at the recent decision of the Illinois Supreme court that the referendum through which women of the state were given the right to serve on juries was unconstitutional, Miss Esther Dunshee, chairman of the Illinois committee for women on juries, has called a meeting for tomorrow at the Woman's City club. Leading feminine organizations of the state are represented on the committee.

"No time will be lost in getting to work again," said Miss Dunshee, who pleaded the case for her women colleagues before the Supreme court. Among those who will join with her in preparing to carry the matter again before the state legislature will be Mrs. Ralph B. Treadway of Glen Ellyn, president of the Illinois League of Women Voters; Dr. Sophonisba Breckenridge of the University of Chicago; Mrs. C. P. Fowler of Evanston, chairman of the legal status of women committee of the Illinois league, and others.

Harvard Scientists Tell of New Stone Age.

Cambridge, Mass., May 3.—(AP)—Discovery of a fortress four thousand years old at Homolka, Czecho-Slovakia, was announced tonight by the Peabody museum of Harvard and the Museum of the University of Pennsylvania. It was discovered as "the most complete settlement of the new stone age ever brought to light."

The archeological party has brought valuable cargoes of material to the museums and plans to sail soon for another season's work.

The fortress crowned a round hill 80 feet above a surrounding valley. Clearing top soil from this great mound disclosed that it is made of soft rock, in which are holes cut for palisades 4,000 years ago. In the soil about were telltale evidences of an ancient people whose story is now reconstructed.

"It is surprising," says tonight's announcement, "to those unacquainted with European archeology to learn how far advanced on the road to civilization were the inhabitants of central Europe 4,000 years ago. Though the people of Homolka may have seen copper, they made little use of any metal, and their tools and weapons were skillfully fashioned of stone or bone. They also were excellent pottery makers, and the large and elaborate series of well decorated vessels brought back by the expedition is startling in both its quality and variety.

"They were farmers, herdsmen; knew how to weave and probably made their clothes from their flocks. Traders brought them flint and salt, and sometimes rarer things, amber from the distant Baltic, seashells from the Mediterranean and perhaps later on little trinkets of Hungarian copper.

"Their houses were substantial wooden structures, not mere hovels, but what we should call today small cottages, and were generally equipped with little pit-like cellars which sometimes contained a wooden bench beside a fireplace. The houses were grouped closely on top of the hill, but in the middle was an open space, perhaps a place of public assembly. Around the cluster of houses was a stout stockade of heavy wooden posts and in this elaborately contrived gates with special provision for defense.

"At some time the inhabitants decided that they needed more room, and accordingly uprooted their stockade and moved it further down the hill."

'World Colder Toward Christ?' Churchmen Ask

Russian Hostility Isn't All, Presbyterians Say.

New York, May 3.—(AP)—The Presbyterian board of foreign missions in a report to be presenied to the general assembly in Pittsburgh June 3 lists solution of religious situations in Russia and general indifference of citizens of all nations toward religion as major problems of the church. The report was made public today.

In commenting on Russia it asks: "Will Christianity definitely recede before atheism in the largest country on the European continent? Will the anti-religious impetus, going east as well as west, engulf the first fruits of the harvest of Christianity in China, Korea, and Japan?"

Russian propaganda by radio, poster, pamphlet, and motion picture, is sweeping Asia and finding great response, the report added, and in Europe, Germany is said to be especially susceptible. The soviet university, Sun Yat-sen, in China, is educating thousands of Chinese youths annually to communistic ideas, the report stated.

"The major opposition to the Christian faith is not positive nor conscious," says the report. "Christian scholars can outargue and outwrite anti-Christians. But religious indifference, secularism of a practical sort, seldom gets itself expressed in such form that it can be answered in print."

Mahatma Gandhi, Indian leader, is quoted as saying Christians should study the sermon on the mount and to "sell all you have and follow Jesus Christ."

Chapel Hill, N. C., May 3.—[Special.]—Religion should adapt itself to changing civilization, Dean Shailer Mathews of the University of Chicago divinity school declared here tonight. He was one of the speakers at the formal opening of the University of North Carolina's second quadrennial institute on human relations. The sessions will continue through next Saturday.

"The readjustment within the present social order is proceeding rapidly," Dean Mathews declared. "If religion is to help it must be adapted to the task. The more complicated the social order the greater the need of intelligence in religion. Unintelligent preaching may do more harm than good. The preacher needs, therefore, a knowledge of the conditions to which he attempts to apply the gospel."

Taking as his subject, "A new social gospel for a new social order," Dean Mathews spoke of "new and perplexing moral conditions which are the result of the work of the last generation."

"What is needed today is the reassuring conviction that morality is grounded on something ultimate," he said. "Such a religious basis cannot be legalistic, but must be intelligently derived from our understanding of human relations, both in society and with the personality producing activities of the universe."

Dean Mathews cited changes due to using forces of nature, saying:

"This leads to some very perplexing problems such as the substitution of machines for hand labor;

Dean Mathews asked:

"Must the relations between nations ultimately be determined by war, or is it possible for nations so to live together as to develop moral customs and codes something after the fashion of those that exist between individuals? This question is so new as to be practically unformulated, but it is in the field of religion.

LORD AND LADY ASTOR, WED 25 YRS., SAY 'SHARE INTERESTS'

TAPLOW, Buckinghamshire, England, May 3.—(AP)—Lord and Lady Astor celebrated their silver wedding anniversary at their country home, Cliveden, today. The celebration was limited to two persons—Lord and Lady Astor.

"We are spending the day as we always like to do—alone," Lady Astor said. "It has been a very happy and a very full twenty-five years. We have brought up five children and done a great deal of work.

"The secret of married happiness is work and shared interests. The guiding principles of our lives have been social service—and the teachings of Christ. Striving together to follow those principles has made our marriage a happy one."

BY CHARLES COLLINS.

THE arrival of "On the Spot," the melodrama written by Edgar Wallace of London after a three days' study of the history of Chicago's hoodlums, at the Grand Opera house last night was something more than a première. It was a political and sociological occasion.

Mayor Cermak, wearing the inscrutable expression of a stage censor, sat in the fifth row on the aisle, bent upon seeing that the reputation of Chicago was not unnecessarily traduced. Judge Lyle, recently an aspirant to the mayoralty, held a strategic position in the first row—a better chair than His Honor's—with a warrant-issuing look in his implacable eye. The Chinese consul and his family occupied a stage box, dressed with banners, in homage to Anna May Wong, the play's oriental heroine. The rest of the audience was night-life Chicago, in full representation, waiting for something to happen.

What Mayor Cermak, Judge Lyle and the rest of us saw was a neat illustration of the chameleon habits of the drama. Chicago had been erased from "On the Spot" and New York had been written in. Tony Perrelli, a comic opera version of Alphonse Capone in Mr. Wallace's manuscript, had become a gaudy caricature of "Legs" Diamond. When Cicero was the word to say the actors perversely pronounced it Harlem. The back drop that had shown a view of the Tribune Tower [on the same side of the street as the Wrigley building?] had disappeared, and Mr. Perrelli's grandiose den of lust and murder now commanded a hazy view of the dome of Grant's tomb.

So far as "On the Spot" is concerned, the reputation of Chicago was apparently safe. The joke was on New York—and maybe on us as well. Clever fellows, these showmen! When a city feels self-conscious about being used as the locale of a blood and thunder yarn they are quite willing to change the scene.

The play itself is a fantasia on the familiar themes of gangland chronicles. It deals with the casual assassinations and grotesque funerals that are well-worn refrains in the saga of the rackets. It is melodrama curdled to a point where it becomes seriocomic. Mr. Wallace wrote this opuscule for London audiences, who have a taste for humor with their horrors. Moreover, he wrote it in hot haste and with his tongue in his cheek, like a facile journalist with a grand and gory tale to tell.

Perrelli, the central character, belongs in an opera libretto rather than in the ghastly memoirs of gangland. He lives in an apartment that might be the foyer of a cinema palace; he plays the organ to refresh himself after slaughters and seductions; he sets himself up as a a music critic; he has a repertory of Houdini tricks for his killings, and is an æsthete about almost everything except the colors of his shirts and neckties.

Crane Wilbur plays the rôle with the necessary glibness of dialect and flamboyance of manner. He has a theatrical effectiveness in key with the play. Anna May Wong, charming oriental actress well known to film audiences, is a decorative figure in the cast as the gang leader's pathetic, eventually discarded mistress, and brings touches of faint, wistful emotion into some of the scenes. Glenda Farrell is well cast as another houri of Mr. Wallace's gangster paradise. The others are merely the others.

The blood stained Perrelli wears the well known "darbies" on his wrists at the end of the play. The hand of the law fell heavily upon him, and that was no bit of rewriting to baffle Mayor Cermak. He had committed twenty murders and gone free, but Mr. Wallace sprang a melodramatist's trick upon him and headed him toward the electric chair for a slaying of which he was innocent.

Einstein Dares Student Anger at Heidelberg

Aids Teacher Who Calls World War Shame.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, May 3.—Criticism of the bitterest sort against the activities of jingoistic and nationalistic students at Heidelberg—and elsewhere in Germany—has been voiced openly by Prof Albert Einstein, provoked by the "Gumbel" case now agitating Heidelberg. Americans think of that university as a place of science, beer parties, saber dueling, and romance.

Gumbel, a "privatdozent" lecturing on history, is the object of a determined, powerful effort to get rid of him on the part of National Socialists and Nationalists among his fellow faculty members, as well as the student body of Heidelberg. The reason is that he is not only an acknowledged and active Socialist, but a pacifist and internationalist. In particular, Gumbel has aroused ire by a speech in which he is charged to have called the world war a shame.

It has been only the fact that up to now the Socialist minister of education and the Socialist-Catholic Center party coalition cabinet of the state have stood behind him that has prevented Prof. Gumbel from being harried out of his post—the same fate that was forced on Prof. Lessing, formerly of the University of Hanover.

Observers read between the lines of Einstein's denunciation proof that his brain is occupied these days by other problems as well as those of correlating the scientific data he brought back from his American trip with his relativity theories and the more recent formula-concept which brings gravitation and electro-magnetic phenomena under one general mathematical concept.

"The conduct of the academic youth against Gumbel is one of the saddest signs of the times, which attaches so little value to the ideal of justice, tolerance, and truth," his comment reads. "What is to become of a people who brutally harass such a contemporary, and whose leaders offer no resistance to the base mob?"

"What is so terrible, is the way inexperienced youth is being misled by self-seeking movements," Einstein continues, and then ventures a quasi-prophecy: "If it goes further in this direction, we will come to a Red terror by way of a Fascist régime of force!"

"Peace Shell Shock" Due to Noise, Says Doctor, Urging Quiet

Philadelphia, Pa., May 3.—(AP)—A form of shell shock in time of peace is the effect of city noises, says Dr. Ludwig Loeb of the Jewish hospital, in an article in the forthcoming issue of the Roster, official publication of the Philadelphia County Medical society.

The time has passed, Dr. Loeb says, when factory whistle blasts, clanging engine bells, and other noises are pleasant, because they suggest work, industry, and prosperity.

"Experiments have shown," he writes, "that sounds of a more or less intermittent character cause irregularity of the heart rhythm, increase brain pressure, make our muscles more tense for action, and our movements more energetic. As a consequence there will be a greater wear and tear on the system, resulting in rapid fatigue and nervous exhaustion.

"Noise interferes very seriously with the efficiency of the worker. At first the worker becomes stimulated, then disturbed, excited, and irritable. His conduct changes and he is subject to loss of temper. Those engaged in brain work are prevented from deep and sustained thinking. In the attempt to overcome the effects of noise, great strain is put on the nervous system, leading to neurasthenia and psychoasthenia.

"Continued loud noises striking the delicate mechanism of the ear cause impairment of hearing. Lesions of the internal ear develop, which manifest themselves as ear noises, dizziness, and headache. The years of profitable activity are shortened in those whose occupation exposes them to persistent loud noises."

THE CLICK OF THE GATE

By Alice Campbell

SYNOPSIS.

Iris de Bertincourt lives in a remote section of Paris with her fifteen year old daughter, Clare. She and Maj. Alan Charnwood are desperately in love, but there are barriers to their immediate marriage. They are spending the last evening they will have together in several months, as Maj. Charnwood plans to leave the next day for Africa. Clare is acting in a school play and is to be brought home by friends.

Iris has been separated for years from her husband, Marcel de Bertincourt, a man of enormous charm but utterly lacking in moral sense. Iris and he are cousins and the possible heirs of their Aunt Victoire, the Comtesse de Castelmaurou. Iris plans to divorce her husband and marry Alan when he returns, but she is keeping her plans secret, as she wishes to avoid the interference of her tyrannical aunt, who has until recently ruled her life.

Iris receives a message that her aunt is on her way to see her. Alan leaves. The comtesse tells Iris that her husband's character has wholly changed and that he is desirous of reassuming his duties as a husband and father. Just after the comtesse leaves Iris hears a motor stop in front of the house and hears Clare's friends bidding her good night, but when she opens the door Clare is nowhere to be seen.

Maj. Charnwood is just ready to leave his hotel when Iris calls him. He hurries to her home. The friends who drove Clare home tell Iris they left Clare at her door. Alan accompanies Iris to notify the police, then they wait all night; but day breaks and Clare is still away. An inspector assigned to the case calls. He finds a photograph of a handsome Latin youth in Clare's desk. Iris calls her aunt, and Alan leaves to call on Helen Roderick, the American woman in whose office Iris has been employed. Miss Roderick refers to Clare's father as though she knows him well.

TACTFUL CONDEMNATION.

Miss Roderick appeared suddenly confused. She dropped her eyes and flicked an ash into the grate. Then she looked up at Charnwood with an assumption of composure.

"Marcel?" she parried lightly. "But I do know him—not through Iris, naturally. In fact," she went on a little hurriedly, "I'd rather you didn't tell her. She doesn't know, and might take it the wrong way. But there it is; I met him a few months ago, and have seen quite a bit of him. He's a most delightful creature in his way," she supplemented, with a slight defensive explanation.

"I know little about him."

Charnwood did not mean to sound stiff. Disconcerting as the news was, there was no reason why Miss Roderick should not be acquainted with De Bertincourt and still remain loyal to Iris. Such things frequently happened.

"I've shocked you again," she declared shrewdly.

"Shocked? No, I'm surprised, that's all."

"I can't expect you to have a flattering opinion of Iris' errant husband," she went on frankly. "He has not behaved well towards her, there's no blinking the fact. At the same time—well, he's not quite as black as he's painted."

"Few of us are."

"Not that poor Iris didn't have a rotten deal. Fancy being married out of the nursery to a man you'd scarcely seen! And Marcel was no plaster saint, I'm afraid. He himself makes no bones about that."

"O, doesn't he?"

"Not a bit of it. Indeed, one of the things I like about him is his honesty. All his life he's been petted, spoiled, and given his way. Even the war didn't knock sense into him. But he's pulled up now and is trying to run straight. You didn't know that, did you?" she demanded, looking him full in the eyes.

"I confess I didn't."

"Well, it's true. I'm a pretty good judge of character, and I can assure you he'd like to do the right thing if he had shy encouragement. Unfortunately it's too late."

She gave a philosophic shrug, not exactly regretful, and puffed her cigaret in silence.

Charnwood felt curiously dashed. It was not easy to ignore Helen Roderick's estimates of people, she was so downright, unsentimental, so heavily endowed with "horse sense." Moreover, she had made her statement with indifference, plainly not caring how he took it. The idea shot through his brain that perhaps he had misjudged De Bertincourt. Many men make a failure of marriage without being unmitigated rotters. The personal equation is so fluctuating. . . . Iris had said little; it was what she had left unsaid . . .

Still, why bother about that? De Bertincourt might be the best fellow in the world without altering the present situation one whit. The breach beween him and his wife had widened to a gulf long before he, Charnwood, came on the scene.

"I hope you won't be foolish enough to be affected by what I've just told you," she said, with an embarrassed laugh which did not hide her earnestness. "It can't hurt Iris. I'd have let her know at the beginning, only I'm so fond of her I daren't risk even the least rift between us."

"O, it's perfectly comprehensible!"

"I'm glad you see that. Actually, when we're together he spends half his time talking about her; paying her tributes of admiration, and considering how hard it is for a man to admit himself in the wrong that's going a bit far. O, he knows he's been a fool; that's why I feel so particularly sorry for him over this. It's going to hit him badly. Let's pray it turns out nothing more than a mad escapade. Even so——" She broke off, hesitatingly. "O, well, what's the use? Only one can't help wondering if——"

"If what?"

"If this would have happened if Iris had allowed Clare to see her father more freely. Sometimes a man has greater influence with a young girl than a woman can have. She'll give him her confidence, take his advice. It's only an idea, of course."

"I didn't suppose De Bertincourt had any special paternal feelings," remarked Charnwood, recalling what Iris had said last night.

"But then you don't know him, do you?" she returned bluntly. "Human nature surprises one so. Above all, Marcel is sympathetic. He might have seen this coming and put a stop to it."

His inborn reserve forbade his pursuing the subject. After all, if Iris had kept her husband and daughter apart, it was no one's business but her own.

"I must be off."

"But you are not leaving Paris for a few days, I take it?"

"Not till the next African boat sails, at any rate. I trust this wretched matter will clear up long before then."

"O, it must, it's bound to! Please count on me for every possible help, and forget what I've said about Marcel. It's better. Here's my office telephone, in case you want me during the day"—and she scribbled the number on one of her cards.

It was nearly one o'clock when he recrossed the Seine in a taxi heading straight as a die for the Passage de l'Oratoire. He devoutly hoped to find Iris alone, but in case the Comtesse was still with her he was ready with a plausible story to account for his visit. Now of all times the poor girl must not be burdened with an additional source of worry.

The small garden wore its customary look of shut in desolation. Even the laurel bushes, silent witnesses of last night's affair, seemed to his heightened imagination creepy, sinister. A brooding melancholy hung over the whole silent place.

He rang, waited, rang again. There was no reply. At last, impatient, he lifted the iron knocker and hammered resoundingly. The clamor echoed throughout the interior, pulsating to stillness even more profound.

Slowly a discomfiting suspicion grew upon him. Stepping back, he surveyed the front of the pavilion, only to gape bewildered at what had previously escaped his notice. The bottom windows were securely shuttered and barred.

Like a blow in the face the knowledge struck him that Iris' house was closed up.

For several seconds Charnwood continued to stare dumfounded, as though confronted by some sleight of hand trick worked by a malevolent fate. The air of finality suggested by the barred shutters chilled him to the marrow, at the same time rousing a touch of resentment.

Iris was gone, that much was plain. But where? Why? How was it possible for her to have taken this extraordinary quick decision at a time when her distraught brain seemed unable to break from its one obsession?

Then it occurred to him that probably she had sent some message to his hotel. Best go there at once and make sure, before tormenting himself with vain conjectures.

So thinking, he set forth in quest of a roving taxi, and had just reached the Rue Guillaume d'Orange when he ran bolt into a hatless woman, who, laden with a string bag of parcels, came hurrying breathless round the corner. As he drew aside with a muttered apology, he recognized her.

It was Iris's servant.

"Ah, it's you, monsieur!" cried the woman in eager relief. "I was obliged to go to the shops, and I have run every step of the way, for madame told me to be here to receive you."

Off-the-Face Hats Demand Smooth Brows

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

I was standing on a 5th avenue corner the other day. It was one of the spring's so far sunniest, warmest days, with the consequence that those who had their new spring outfits were parading them. A girl, I should judge in her mid-twenties, passed in a chic blue outfit, semi-tailored suit, frilly blouse, good looking shoes and bag and a decidedly off the face hat. But such a network of wrinkles her brow exposed! I was startled, as you are when you run across a great deformity and you want to look away quickly.

I got to wondering how a girl in her mid-twenties could ever get a frowning habit so deeply established as to make a half dozen crowded ridges in a poor, defenseless brow. It was one of the most exaggerated cases I have yet seen of a habit. Time certainly didn't put those wrinkles there—but it will unless that habit is overcome quickly.

The sight put me in a mind to watch other brows for wrinkling, a diversion not hard to gratify with the hats sitting where they are these days. My conclusion was that there is an unnecessary amount of scowling going on among us gals. I ask you now, what is there to wrinkle the brow over if you've managed to get the gay spring clothes? If you didn't have them, were out of employment and saw no chance of having any this year—well, a lady just would be excused for a bit of brow wrinkling. But the wrinkled brows seen didn't look as if they belonged to the jobless. They were worn, for the most part, with too good looking clothes.

Of course, we women can manage to think up a lot of other things to look harassed about if we get the wardrobe. There's love and the affairs of love, and new curtains for the living room, and that new rug we'd like for the dining room, etc., etc. But something's got to be done about the brow distorting, especially under those new chapeaux. 'Taint fair to give a brow a bad name like that or the face, either, since the latter suffers under the terrific brow strain.

Just watch this little item, sisters, and get that brow smoothed out somehow, if you've got to rope it down on both sides to make it smooth.

BEAUTY ANSWERS

She's Engaged, Yet Keeps Fiance on Anxious Seat

BY DORIS BLAKE.

"Upon announcing my engagement," "Some One's Honey" tells, "I refused to see any of my former suitors. Thus, I feel that my fiancé feels too sure of me."

Now, isn't that going out of your way to stir up trouble for yourself, young lady? If a fiancé can't feel sure of his girl, I ask you what is the poor creature to feel sure of? Engagement announcements that other men haven't a chance. Or, so they're interpreted, and should be. The same ruling holds good with the boy, too. Announcement of his engagement should warn other girls off the premises.

When you're talking about fiancés feeling too cure of you, the kind of girl in danger is the one who lets her engagement run on and on and on, until she is totally out of touch with other men, should there come a break.

But in the normal course of young love with the engagement period exceeding no more than a year or two at the most, I think it only fair enough that other suitors be eliminated as such. There's no objection to their being kept on as friends, but friends fully informed of the engagement.

If a girl cannot forego other male adulation during the engagement test period, she's going to have some trouble adjusting herself to one man after marriage, wouldn't you think?

I should think you young moderns with all your talk of honesty and straightforwardness in your relations with the boys wouldn't be going in for the old-fashioned stuff of keeping men on the anxious seat. It harks too much of the "acts" performed by skittish sentimentalists of a bygone period. If you like a boy enough to promise to marry him and he likes you well enough to extract the promise from you, why not be regular with him?

Picture your own position of being the one treated so that you shouldn't be too sure. It wouldn't set at all well with you. Anyway, when you get engaged you begin your plans for life together, and that surely should dissolve the problem of outside men.

DORIS BLAKE ANSWERS

Helps Him Save.

"Dear Miss Blake: The girl I love will not let me take her any place that will cost me money. E. E."

She's eager to have you save your money.

Views May Change.

"Dear Miss Blake: My fellow got mad at me and refuses to make up. Shall I still have hopes? FRANKIE."

He may feel different when he's had time to think matters over.

Hughitts Plan to Dedicate Nursing Station

BY THALIA

THE "Belle Barrett Hughitt Center," a frontier nursing service station in the mountains of Kentucky, is to be dedicated the latter part of this month, and Mrs. Charles S. Frost (Mary Hughitt) and her brother, Marvin Hughitt, are planning to attend the ceremonies.

They and their sister, Mrs. Alfred Granger (Belle Hughitt), who is now in Europe, gave the center in memory of their mother, the late Mrs. Marvin Hughitt. It is situated on Bullskin in Clay county, Kentucky, and is one of the newest stations to be added to the service, which provides nursing and medical care to the isolated mountaineer families in a region 800 miles square.

To reach their destination, Mrs. Frost and Mr. Hughitt are to travel by train to Manchester, Ky., and will go the remaining 20 miles over mountains and bridgeless streams in a "buckboard."

The wild and picturesque country is familiar ground to Mr. Hughitt, as he once had large timber interests in the region, but the trip will be a brand new adventure for Mrs. Frost.

The dedication will be a very gala event, with people coming from miles around by horseback. Bishop A. Alton Abbott, who was formerly rector of St. Chrysostom's church here, is expected to officiate. The exact date has not yet been set, I understand, but tentatively is May 2.

Winnetka Garden Club to Hold Garden Market.

The Winnetka Garden club's annual garden market is to be held on the village green on May 23. Mrs. Willoughby Walling and Mrs. George Parker are in charge of the sale of plants, Mrs. Arthur Sullivan is in charge of the garden accessories sale, Mrs. E. T. Konsberg is managing the features to include a crystal gazer and a merry go round, and Mrs. Marion Richards and Mrs. Fletcher Marsh are arranging a luncheon to be served between 12 o'clock and 2. Other north shore women having a hand in the preparations are Mrs. Ballard Bradley, president of the Garden club; Mrs. Charles Coffin, who is making the ground plan; Mrs. Harry Barnum, in charge of the commercial growers' display, and Mrs. Warren W. Shoemaker, publicity chairman.

Teacup talk has it that about 10 more of this past season's debutantes are getting ready to announce their engagements, following close on the heels of the announcements of Ghita Nelson's betrothal to Walter Field McAllen III., Elsa Armour's to Irving Osborne, and Elinor Whiting's to Edward Hagey—all revealed within the last few weeks.

Mrs. Henry Faurot Jr. Motoring on Virginia Trip.

On the go—Mrs. Henry Faurot Jr. departed yesterday for a motor trip to Virginia to meet Mr. Faurot, who has been convalescing from a serious illness. Dow Jr. on June 6.

Miss Kate Buckingham has bought five of the pieces of the Guelph treasure recently on view at the Art institute. With the 5 pieces belonging to Mr. and Mrs. Chauncey McCormick and loaned to the institute for exhibition Miss Buckingham's will be placed on display in the near future. Miss Buckingham's purchases include a relic monstrance in the form of a church which comes from lower Saxony and dates before 1482; a monstrance with a domed roof from Brunswick containing relics of St. Bernard and St. Godelard; and still another monstrance from lower Saxony containing relics of St. Anianus and St. Lawrence.

Civic Music Group Reveals Skill of Youth

BY EDWARD MOORE.

The Civic Music association of Chicago in its annual festival program at Orchestra hall yesterday afternoon gave illustrations of the beginning and the end of what it is doing for the musical life of the community. A huge chorus of young children was banked upon the rear of the stage. In front of them were the Civic orchestra, and thus came into hearing those who are learning to sing songs and those who are being given training to fit them for the routine of the symphony orchestras of this country.

The chours was made up of a number of smaller organizations from all over the city — Blackhawk, Chase, Welles, Gage, Almira Simons, Fuller, Hamlin, Ogden, Hamilton, Calumet, Grand Crossing, Tuley, Palmer, and Bessemer parks, Davis and Cornell squares, Fellowship house, Chicago Orphanage, Cook County Juvenile Detention home, Park Ridge School for Girls, and the Chicago Nursery and Half Orphan asylum being represented. This large combined organization sang cheerily, energetically, musically under the baton of Felix Borowski in groups of folk, sacred and dance songs and songs by American composers.

The Civic orchestra played both the instrumental scores for the young singers, and under the direction of Eric De Lamarter a number of works displaying their own development such compositions as the overture to the opera "Mignon," by Thomas, and Mendelssohn's Scherzo to the "Midsummer Night's Dream" music, which they did accurately, with fine tone, and plenty of spirit. A feature of the program was the march, "I Love My Native Land," played to the memory of its composer, the late William H. Rehm, who for twelve years was president of the Civic Music association.

Rudolph Reuter, Chicago pianist, who plays rather frequently hereabouts, gave a recital program at the Playhouse yesterday afternoon which tended to show as much of the trend of piano music from the time of Bach to the present period of Hindemith, Griffes, and Godowsky as could be included in the length of an ordinary recital. Mr. Reuter is the type of virtuoso in whose playing a misplaced note becomes an important event.

Teasing of Children Often Brings Them Unhappy Moments

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

He was a cunning little 6 year old, waiting in the lobby of the private school for his nurse to come for him. In one hand he held the cake he had baked in the cooking class and in the other his violin case. He had an engaging "I love the world and the world loves me" expression.

One of the big boys passed by on his way out. "Well, Dave, why don't you go home? School's over," he said half teasingly.

Dave looked up. He smiled. "My mommy doesn't want me to go home alone." The big boy laughed and said after him, "My mommy doesn't want me to," and passed out.

A really disagreeable looking little girl, also waiting to be taken home, caught the tone. "My mommy doesn't want me to!" she said mincingly. "My mommy doesn't want me to!" she said mimickingly. "My mommy doesn't want me to, my mommy doesn't want me to," she chanted for the edification of the others in the lobby.

The little boy looked at her in surprise, incapable for a moment of realizing that some one was being unpleasant to him. But gradually it dawned on him. I turned away at the look of surprise and pain on his face. He sat there facing them all, and as the mocking continued, gradually his face hardened. He was already developing a defense.

"Yep," he said defiantly, "Mommy doesn't want me to. Say it some more—go on, say it some more."

It was a gallant little exhibition and I felt proud of him, though I didn't even know his name. But I knew it would be a long time before he would say "My mommy" again, and that temporarily, at least, he had lost his faith in a world that had always until then been kind to him.

"CURE ILLITERACY IN FIVE YEARS" URGED GOOD POLICY FOR U. S.

Hot Springs, Ark., May 3.—(AP)—A "five year plan" to make "functionally literate" the 12 to 15 millions of illiterates in the United States was adopted here tonight by Lewis R. Alderman. He is adult education specialist in the United States bureau of education. He spoke before the opening session of the 35th national congress of parents and teachers.

"Would it not be well for this organization," he asked, "to take upon itself the task of promoting afternoon and evening schools so that in the next five years every man and woman would have an opportunity to become functionally literate?"

Mr. Alderman, speaking on the subject "The Runaway," urged definite study by the parent of each child, based on an intelligent analysis of the child's peculiarities.

"It is probable," he said, "much of our crime results from the fact many parents in a new age still are in the old basis, always wrong, that the parent is the master and the child the slave. The child is eager for recognition."

EMBARRASSING MOMENTS

A Different Offering.

One Sunday morning, when I was leaving my home for church, I noticed a small package of matches lying on the porch. I picked them up and put them into my pocket. When the contribution plate was passed I unconsciously reached into my pocket and, instead of getting my coin envelope, I put the matches on the plate. Imagine my chagrin when every one around me laughed, as I have always aired my views very freely on "women smoking."

Food Talk.

"Should young children be allowed to drink cocoa? Is the stimulant that cocoa contains harmful to children? How can one make cocoa without having a sediment in the bottom?" writes Mrs. A. C.

Cocoa contains a stimulant [theobromine], but in the amount used in a beverage properly made for children the effect of the stimulant would be negligible. Cocoa for children should contain never more than 1 teaspoon of cocoa for each cup of milk used. And should the child be satisfied with less cocoa flavor, use only ½ teaspoon to each cup of milk.

For the child who enjoys his milk plain I would not recommend a regular use of cocoa before the sixth or eighth year. Once one begins to add sweetening and flavoring another opportunity is provided for the child to lose his appreciation for the bland flavor of good sweet milk. This is unfortunate because milk is one of man's most valuable foods in health or sickness. We should never do anything to destroy the child's interest in milk in its simplest form. Cocoa for children should contain just as little sugar as possible.

It has been found that cocoa contains small amounts of iron and copper and for this reason it makes a valuable contribution to the diet.

Cocoa that is well made never settles out as heavy sediment. One reason why cocoa is not one of our most popular beverages is because it lacks smoothness and is often full of dregs. The only way to obtain the smooth drink is to cook the cocoa and sugar with a little water to a smooth thick sirup before the hot milk is added. Cocoa contains starch and when the starch is thoroughly cooked the tiny cocoa particles will remain suspended in the liquid and will not settle out to any extent.

Whisking before serving smooths the beverage and puts a froth on top which appeals to our fancy. A well made cup of cocoa is a most delightful beverage, especially for luncheon and the evening meal. The color will be attractive if the sweetest of milk is used and the cocoa is not overcooked.

HOT COCOA [FOR ADULTS].

2 tbsp cocoa ¼ cup hot water
2 tbsp sugar 3 cups milk, scalded
Few grains salt

Mix cocoa, sugar, and salt and add hot water. Cook over a low flame 5 minutes, stirring occasionally to prevent burning. Add hot milk and continue cooking over hot water 10 minutes. Whisk with a rotary egg beater before serving.

Yield: 4 servings.

GERMAN POTATO SALAD.

Boil one pound of small new potatoes in their skins until they are just done. Allow them to cool slightly, then peel and slice into a bowl. Dice and fry 2 ounces of lean bacon until a golden brown and pour over the potatoes. Season with salt and pepper and add 1-3 as much vinegar as you have bacon grease. Toss the potatoes and sprinkle with chopped chives. This salad, made with warm potatoes, has a different flavor from that of potatoes used cold. In case the salad is not sour enough to suit your liking, add more vinegar. Some vinegars are strong in acid while others are mild and aromatic.

On a bed of lettuce place equal portions of potato salad, sliced beets and shredded lettuce. Sprinkle chopped chives over the whole. Serve with French dressing. A few chopped caraway seeds may be added to potato salad to contribute unusual flavor.

5 ripe tomatoes 6 green olives
1 cup cottage cheese Lettuce leaves
¾ cup mayonnaise

Select red-ripe tomatoes of medium size. Wash, then chill thoroughly. Remove a thin slice from the stem end. Cut each tomato into six sections, leaving the sections joined together at the bottom. Place on a salad plate garnished with lettuce. Mix the cottage cheese and mayonnaise lightly. Fill center of tomato with cottage cheese mixture. Garnish top of cheese with finely chopped olives. Serve immediately.

Coat Dress Rivals Suit and Ensemble

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS. — [Special.] — Coat dresses are blossoming forth with the first mild spring days. They are worn by some of the smartest women in Paris and they are proving very serious rivals in chic to the popular tailored suits and two piece dresses.

Women like coat dresses because they are easy to put on and easy to wear. They look well with the silver or red fox scarf, or with the mink and marten stoles so many couturiers are sponsoring just now.

The skirt is fitted into a slender waistline. It opens up the left side, but wraps well over by means of a slightly flaring panel that uses the patterns of the goods on the diagonal. Note the tricky cut that unites this panel to the blouse and to the upper skirt at the top.

The bodice has an original surplice closing, daintily edged with white organdie rick rack. Flaring box plaits alternate with the white pearl buttons that really do fasten it. The lower sleeves are treated in the same manner. Two darts fit the bodice in toward the waist in back and there's an amusing shoulder yoke on one side only, ending in a buttoned tab in the center.

Bright Sayings of the Children

Little Emily had heard a good deal about Jack Frost—how he nipped noses and drew the pretty frost pictures on the windows. Coming into the dining room one morning and seeing two long icicles outside the window, she called: "Mother, mother, come quick and see Jack Frost's legs."

Dangerous Gas in Stomach Ended Quick

"I am pleased and glad to say and tell you that a package of ACIDINE helped me quicker than anything else I ever tried," says William Hopts of Windgap, Pa. "I will tell you there are a good many people killed with this gas in the stomach. If you have a weak heart it is dangerous. I tell others about this—to get ACIDINE and try it."

ACIDINE is the only known remedy which contains Japtase, that in laboratory tests digests 800 times its weight of certain heavy, starchy foods which cause trouble. It neutralizes burning acids, soothes irritated stomach linings, stops gassy headaches, sleeplessness and nervousness in acid conditions. ACIDINE also fortifies you against colds by reducing acidity.

Get ACIDINE today at your druggist. Watch how quick acid indigestion, burning stomach, belching, pain, heartburn, dizziness, fullness, short breath vanish. Eat, drink all you want. Maker refunds money if not delighted.

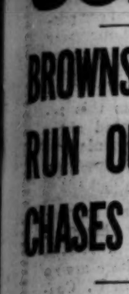
BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

Luke Appling, the budding shortstop, devoted his time yesterday to smashing the winning streak his White Sox mates had built up in five successive days. Between air currents swirling around Comiskey park and a 16,000 crowd, the like of which young Luke never had seen, he fought a losing battle with three fielding chances, so the Browns scored runs with ease and won the final of the series, 9 to 5. It was their first victory in nine starts.



BOB FOTHERGILL.

Luke muffed two popups and lost a grounder. The first of the muffs was turned into a run by St. Louis, but the two other errors, both in the same inning, were far more productive. They netted the Brownies seven runs—all unearned—in the sixth inning, and not only decided the outcome but forced Tommy Thomas to retreat from a game that should have been his with room to spare. Tommy's only offense was folding up in the face of adversity.

Gray Bothers Sox Hitters.

Another hitch in the Sox machinery, which had functioned fairly well for almost a week, was caused by Sam Gray, the veteran right hander. Gray started out as if determined to have one of his good days. He did, at least until the half way mark was reached. In five innings he held the Pale Hose to three singles. Then, after being presented with that cluster of seven runs, he became less cautious, and in the four closing innings was continually involved in trouble, partly because a couple of his mates endeavored to give back what Appling had given them.

Only two of the fourteen Sox athletes involved in the game were able to annoy the Browns' hurler. Mel Simons did so with three singles, two of which helped in the run getting. Bob Fothergill did so in a bigger and better fashion. He wasted a single in the first inning, survived on error in his next two appearances, exploded a homer in the eighth, and tapered off in the ninth with a single that scored a couple of runs.

By fanning three men in the two opening innings, Thomas prevented the St. Louis hits from becoming costly, but he couldn't dodge the effects of Appling's first error in the third. Luke started the round unpleasantly by muffing Levey's ordinary pop-up. Thomas fanned Melillo, but then let Levey get so long a lead off first that the fellow stole second easily. Goslin's single to center scored him.

Appling Muffs Jenkins' Fly.

Appling's second disastrous flirtation with a pop fly was on Schulte with one out in the stormy sixth. Appling went behind third to grab the ball, but missed it, so Schulte dashed to second. Jenkins was given a hit on a ball that hopped against Appling's chest, Melillo stopping at third. The next bad break for Thomas was on Storti's grounder. Blue picked it up and threw to the plate to head off Schulte. Mr. Schulte turned back and Tate whipped the ball to Jeffries, but the throw was just high enough to let the runner slide into the bag safely. This filled the bases, and then the St. Louis attack became serious.

Thomas pitched one to Ferrell and the young man cracked it to right center for two bases, Schulte and Jenkins scoring. Gray singled to send Storti and Ferrell home. A double by Levey put Gray on third. Melillo's grounder bounced through the hands of the bewildered Appling, so Gray and Levey scored. Goslin's single pushed Melillo to third and also

BY EDWARD BURNS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

St. Louis, Mo., May 3.—Our Cubs this afternoon battled heroically to win a ball game from the champion Cardinals, but after overcoming the handicap of four Cardinal runs scored in the first inning, they couldn't summon the winning punch. The Cardinals won in the eleventh inning, 5 to 4, on a squeeze play, with Frankie Frisch scoring and Chalkey Gelbert supplying the bunt.

GABBY HARTNETT.

It was indeed a tragic end for a contest that was almost constantly brilliant after Guy Bush had been chased for a pitiable performance at the very start of the day's endeavor. Jakie May, who relieved Bush, allowed only two hits in six innings, and Blake, who succeeded May, had been invincible until Frisch opened the eleventh with a single, went to third on Bottomley's single and scored when Gelbert bunted to Hornsby for a perfect execution of the squeeze play.

Fall in Eighth, Ninth.

After the Cubs had tied the score in the seventh with some assistance by Card errors, the Cubs got men on third and first with one out in the eighth and filled the bases with two out in the ninth. But the winning power wasn't there.

Gabby Hartnett supplied the first pair of Cub runs with his second home run of the series and his third of the year. It came in the fifth off Rhem after Stephenson had walked. The third Cub run was driven in by English and the fourth and last was chased across by an error on Woody's hit. Incidentally, Woody was a miracle man afield.

Rhem pitched seven innings, allowed six hits and struck out six. Derringer succeeded him and allowed three hits and struck out three.

The defeat today was the third straight in the series, the fourth in a row in the season series and five out of six administered by the Cardinals in this infant season.

Play Reds at Home Today.

The Cubs have won eight games and lost six, having been defeated only once by enemies other than the Cards. They came to town with a perfect record on the road, in a tie for first place, but now are in third place, trailing the first place Cardinals by three full games.

Our battered heroes return home tonight and are hoping the last place Cincinnati Reds will give them a chance to heal their wounds and regain the dignity they lost in the pummeling they took here. Pat Malone's thumb, which kept him out of the series here, is expected to be well enough for work against the Reds tomorrow. Frey is expected to pitch to the Cubs.

Guy Bush was knocked out in the first inning with a three run onslaught before a putout had been accomplished. The fourth run of the inning was put on second by Bush, but driven home off Jakie May. May pitched six innings before giving way to a pinch batter, and after the first inning allowed only one hit, a harmless double by Bottomley in the third.

Blake went in at the beginning of the seventh, and a double by Adams with two out in the seventh was the only Red Bird hit until the Cardinals broke loose with the fatal rally in the eleventh.

Cuyler, English Fan.

DERBY CANDIDATES

The Latest Flash on the 3-Year-Olds Which Will Battle for Kentucky's Famous Turf Prize on May 16.

BY FRENCH LANE

Owner, Knoblekamp & Morris. Trainer, G. Land.

Winter track champions do not usually win a Derby, but this son of Spanish Prince-Anne Horton is going about his preparation for the big race in such an earnest manner he must be given a chance despite the 40 to 1 odds that are quoted against him.

Since he started racing as a 3 year old at New Orleans early in the winter he has hung up a notable record. He has paraded to the post 10 times. He won six of his engagements, was second twice and third on another occasion. Only once was he out of the money and that seemed to be the fault of his jockey.

Spanish Play won the Louisiana Derby. He was second, beaten a nose in a very doubtful decision, in the Florida Derby at Hialeah park in Miami. In his first start since leaving the winter tracks he trailed Pittsburgher home by a length in an overnight handicap at Churchill Downs. But he showed his heels and trimmed very handily such formidable western Derby eligibles as Don Leon, Blind Bowboy, Boys Howdy, Sweep All, Insco and Up.

A colt that led such as these to the finish line has a chance in any horse race, and Spanish Play will like the Derby route of a mile and a quarter better than he did the six furlongs in which Pittsburgher trimmed him.

I don't believe that Spanish Play can win the Derby, but he's going to be running when a lot of the others in the big field are tiring and stopping. He will be troublesome. He is bred to be a champion.

But if he's as good as third his connections should be satisfied. More likely he will be out of the money entirely.

Shields, Wood Clinch Victory Over Mexico

MEXICO CITY, May 3.—(AP)—The youthful United States Davis cup doubles team of Frank X. Shields of New York and Sidney B. Wood of the University of Arizona carried the American team into the second round of the Davis cup play today by defeating the Meixcan combination of Ricardo Tapia and Manuel Llano in the deciding match of the tie. The scores were 6-3, 6-3, 6-4.

The victory was the third straight for the United States. Previously Shields and Wilmer Allison of Austin, Tex., had won singles matches. By defeating Mexico, the United States qualified to meet Canada in the North American zone final at Montreal May 21, 22 and 23.

Two Matches Remain.

Two more singles matches are left, Shields meeting Alfonso Unda and Allison playing Ricardo Tapia Tuesday, but after today's victory they were reduced to the status of exhibitions.

In an exhibition match after the Davis cup clash, Allison with a Mexican partner, Acosta, defeated Arnedo and Carlos Tapia, brother of Ricardo, 6-1, 11-9.

The young Americans, neither of whom had been members of the Davis cup team before this year, formed an almost unbeatable doubles team. Shields bore the brunt of the work. Wood was a trifle erratic at the net, but Shields more than made up for his few faults with fine net play and hard drives from the back court.

Promising Mexican Player.

Ricardo Tapia, who is only 20 years old, younger than either of his rivals, showed evidences of coming tennis greatness. He still lacks experience, but did the hard work for the Mexican team, which displayed a better game than was expected of them.

CZECHS BEAT SPANIARDS.

PRAGUE, May 3.—(AP)—Czecho-Slovakia advanced to the second round of the European zone Davis cup play today by winning both of the final day's two singles matches from Spain for a 4 to 1 victory in the round. The Czechs next face Greece, which has eliminated Austria.

FRENCH BOXERS REST BY WORKING AT DECK TENNIS

Emulate Hack Driver on Day Off.

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ABOARD S. S. FRANCE, May 2.—Coasting over a sea as smooth as a pan of milk, the French amateur fist fighters, bound for Chicago to fight the Golden Gloves champions on May 12, were given a day off today by Fernand Cuny, the little retired professional and pioneer of French pugilism, who is teaching them tricks of the fight game. They were allowed to do what they pleased, so they took a hack driver's holiday and entered the deck tennis tournament which kept them bouncing and stretching most of the afternoon.

The fighters are becoming acquainted with the other passengers and the other passengers are becoming acquainted with one another after some days of that strange standoffishness and self-conscious staring through one another which is peculiar to voyagers. Most of the fighters and Dr. Charles Sebenq, representative of the French boxing federation, were quickly eliminated from the tournament in competition with the inevitable element of inveterate world travelers who devote their lives to deck tennis.

It's Amusement, Anyhow.

This game consists of tossing a circle of rope, slightly larger than the rings used in the "ring the cane" fakes at the amusement parks, over a tennis net, of catching same and returning it with a back hand motion. It is not much of a game, but to such are people reduced for amusement at sea where all are as idle as substitute outfielders and where a freighter on the horizon is a diversion.

Little Cuny, although wounded twice in the war and middle aged now, still seems competent to lick his whole team up to the heavyweight, Fernand Laudrin. He began as a French style, or pants kicking boxer, and adopted the American punching system when Willie Lewis and Joe Jeanette visited Paris. Cuny gave a demonstration to a select and private audience of French boxing, otherwise "savate," otherwise the utmost refined art of pants kicking.

Demonstrates His Point.

Your correspondent, as sparring partner for M. Cuny, was vigorously pants kicked from a variety of angles. With great dexterity, charm, and grace M. Cuny would face your correspondent and then, suddenly vanishing, would give him a blow with his foot on the flask pocket from behind, mildly, of course, but with enough emphasis to demonstrate his point, if not more so.

Notwithstanding this demonstration was strictly in the interests of journalism, this pants kicking was acute embarrassment especially to the long, narrow party being pants kicked from an unexpected quarter by a little polite, gray haired guy. Nevertheless M. Cuny says a good puncher can lick a good kicker any time, because the kicker is often unbalanced while waving his foot in midair preparing to kick.

Doctor Vetoes Plane Trip.

The whole team has served, or will soon serve in the army, according to French routine, and far from grudging this as time out of their careers, all speak of it as an enjoyable break and no handicap because all serve alike. Laudrin, the aviator, wanted to fly to Chicago, but then the whole team, which was sitting at the table when the subject came up, wanted to do likewise. However, Dr. Sebenq's single vote among all others was for the train, and it carried the day.

Dr. Sebenq is very serious about the dignity of pugilism and the honor of professional championships. He probably will confer with serious American boxing commissioners. Your correspondent tells him that professional commissioners are politicians conducting the racket as a political affair or to serve personal, petty vanity, but he cannot understand this and seems unwilling to give up his purpose of placing the fight racket on on a high moral sporting plane.

Your correspondent advanced to the third round in the deck tennis tournament after two stirring defaults by opponents who wouldn't leave the bar.

French Team Names Elyas, Sorbonne Student, Captain

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ABOARD S. S. FRANCE, May 3.—Friend Arch: The invaders today elected Alexander Elyas, who will box the intercity light heavyweight champion for international honors, as captain of the French team. Elyas has a fine chance. In addition to being a splendid boxer Elyas is the best educated and most personable member of the team. He is six feet tall, weighs 174 pounds, speaks a little English, and is one of the most mannerly fellows I have ever met.

Elyas, who is just 22 years old, has just completed 18 months of military service, serving as a chauffeur for the training school staff. After finishing his army duties Elyas returned to the Sorbonne to continue his commercial studies, which are intended to fit him to enter his father's Paris factory.

Laudrin Decides It.

The French boys were faced with a problem when Elyas was elected. They wanted Elyas, but they realized that big Ferdinand Laudrin, the happy-go-lucky heavyweight, had licked Elyas twice, and should brawn or brains be honored? Laudrin himself answered the question.

"I do not want the honors," he said. "Elect my friend Elyas. All I want is a chance to knock out the Chicago champion."

Elyas has been an athletic leader throughout his schooling, taking particular interest in soccer and boating. In 1927 he saw Georges Carpentier box and decided the ring was more enticing than the gridiron. In his first fight he defeated the university champion of Paris. The referee stopped the bout in the second round. Since that battle Elyas has met more than 40 amateurs, losing only to three. Two of his defeats were at the hands of the burly Laudrin.

Perrier Elyas' Pal.

Elyas has never been knocked down in the ring. He wears a dental guard which gives his countenance a clownish appearance. He is a right hander, specializing in infighting. Elyas holds the title of university champion of Paris. Illness prevented him from competing in the finals of the national meet, and when the light heavyweight champion was unable to make the trip, the federation chose Elyas.

Elyas' buddy on the trip has been Andre Perrier, a dark, bristly haired lad who looks 16 but is actually 21. With his sweater turned up around his ears, Perrier follows Elyas around the deck, shyly ducking into the nearest doorway when any one steps up to converse. Perrier expects to enter the army upon his return from Chicago. He was born at Limoges and lives there with his parents. He works for 20 francs a day [about 80 cents] as a cabinet maker. His father is a tailor.

Perrier last year was runner-up in the national tournament, but this year he is the champion. He guesses he has fought about sixty bouts and has lost only seven. He has no recollection of ever having been knocked out.

Prof. Cuny says that Perrier is as nervy in the ring as he is shy in society, and, Arch, that means that he is the world's nerviest flyweight.

The boys spent the evening looking over the Pennsylvania railroad folder showing the route to Chicago. Their pronouncement of the nomenclature of cities along the route is as unintelligible as that of train callers.

Regards,
DON MAXWELL.

CHICAGO GOLDEN GLOVE TEAM NEAR PEAK IN TRAINING

Take Road Work in Grant Park, Spar in Gym.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

While the French boxing champions were tramping the upper deck of the liner France and boxing in the ship's gymnasium, Chicago's defending Golden Gloves forces yesterday jogged several miles around Grant park and in the afternoon sparred briefly in the Illinois Athletic club gymnasium.

The efforts of Dr. Charles Sebenq and Coach Fernand Cuny to condition the French squad was matched yesterday by Johnny Behr, Benny Yanger and Jabber Young, the coaches of the American team. In fact, we are only prevented from asserting that the Chicago boys will be better conditioned by the fact that we haven't seen the French squad. But remembering how Chicago's Golden Glovers raced through their fights with New York's team, it is safe to say no team could be better conditioned.

Chicago Boys Coöperate.

And the work of the coaches is facilitated by the coöperation of the squad. The Chicago boys didn't have any vin ordinaire with their meals yesterday, which, according to Westbrook Pegler, was part of the diet of the French boys. They did have, however, plenty of muscle building food for the test against the French champions.

At noon, after their road work, the menu was soup, stewed tomatoes, roast beef, one boiled potato, dry toast, tea and ice cream. In the evening the boys sat down to soup, rare steak, peas, baked potato, sliced peaches, toast and tea.

With the exception of one, none of the team ever uses tobacco, which simplifies the training period for the coaches. All retire willingly every night at 10 o'clock. You probably would go to bed as willingly if you knew each day you would run five miles and box three rounds in the gymnasium.

Other Boxers Ready.

The Golden Gloves squad is complete except for Don Gonzales, Phil Dardell and Yustin Sirutis. The New York intercity champions, Sirutis and Dardell, will arrive Wednesday with the French team on the Broadway Limited. Gonzales is vacationing for a few days in Cleveland, but he reported by telegraph yesterday he was in top shape. Gonzales had had a tough campaign winning the Cleveland A. A. U. tournament, the Chicago and intercity Golden Gloves title, and then competing to the finals of the National A. A. U. meet last week.

Incidentally, confidential information from the Chicago reporters on board the S. S. France indicates Gabriel Lerat, the French featherweight champion, is one of the best of the invaders. Fernand Cuny, the coach, believes the French are certain to win four bouts.

The ticket manager, with his assistants, worked all day yesterday filling orders. All will be mailed not later than Tuesday. He reported last night he had 1,000 one dollar seats and 250 two dollar seats left. None of these tickets will be put on sale. They may be secured only by mail, enclosing check or money order.

YOU CAN STILL SEE THE BIGGEST SHOW IN BOXING

If you haven't a ticket to the international Golden Gloves bouts between America and France at Soldiers' field on May 12 you still have a chance. Mail your orders with certified checks to Ticket Manager, Golden Gloves tournament, Chicago Tribune, Chicago, Ill. The price is $1. All $2 and $3 seats are sold.

There will be 100,000 general admission seats placed on sale the day of the bouts at 50 cents each. You can avoid congestion at the gates by ordering a reserved seat today.

Simmons' Hits Help A's Beat Senators, 3-1

Washington, D. C., May 3.—(AP)—Four hits in two innings, one a home run by Simmons, today spelled defeat for the Washington Senators at the hands of the champion Philadelphia Athletics by a 3-1 score.

Unable to wipe out a one run lead set up for Walberg of the A's in the first on a single by Cochrane and a triple by Simmons, the Senators were saved from a shutout by Joe Cronin's home run into the bleachers in the ninth.

Simmons and Cronin shared batting honors, each getting a triple and a homer. Simmons clouted a homer—his fourth of the season—in the first of the ninth.

Lloyd Brown, starting Senator pitcher, hurled airtight ball except for the first inning, holding the Athletics to three hits in the next seven innings. Brown was taken out in the eighth for a pinch hitter. Crowder, who relieved him, gave two hits—one Simmons' homer—in the ninth. Foxx, who got to second on Bluege's error, scored on Dyke's double.

Walberg, who went the route for the Macks, was touched for seven hits.

PLAYER ADMITS SLAPPING FRIEND AND KISSING WIFE

Kansas City, Mo., May 3.—(AP)—De Witt [Bevo] Lebourveau, Toledo American association outfielder, for whom a warrant charging assault and battery was issued in Milwaukee yesterday, today said he struck Harold Oehler, signer of the warrant, but that his act was justified.

Lebourveau explained that he resented remarks made by Oehler at a party Friday night at the home of Ben Martin and slapped Oehler. The outfielder admitted he kissed Mrs. Oehler, but with her husband's consent and in the presence of other guests.

The Toledo player, here with his team for a series with Kansas City, said he was at the Milwaukee ball park yesterday when the Mudhens closed a series with the Brewers, but was instructed not to don a uniform.

He said he left for Kansas City before other members of the team. Lebourveau said he would accompany the team to Milwaukee for its next series there, starting July 19, even though Milwaukee police have announced they will serve the warrant if he returns.

PLAY RICHARDS AND WIN, AURORA TURF FANS SAY

Jockey Shows Skill with Inferior Mounts.

BY FRENCH LANE.

"Play Richards and you'll beat the Aurora races," one of the wisest old turfmen in Chicago remarked yesterday as he awaited the beginning of the third day of Aurora's turf season.

"He may not be the leading jockey," remarked the old timer, "but he's the most finished rider that has donned silks during the first two days of the meeting."

Most race goers will agree with the old timer if they watched his riding in the first 14 races run at Aurora this season.

Richards' skill was not demonstrated so much in the victories he scored as it was in some of his defeats.

Saves Ground for Mount.

Take his ride on Lillian T., which couldn't finish better than third against a field of selling platers. Lillian T. was the favorite and the crowd expected much of her.

Lillian T. did her best, but she couldn't outrun two of her rivals. But Richards came very nearly making her do it. He saved ground at every opportunity. He made Lillian T. challenge desperately in the stretch when Lillian T. wanted to quit. He got out of two tight pockets and was fighting and riding in the face of defeat when the race ended.

A boy who rides that way will find the crowd pulling for him whether he wins or not.

The apprentice boys, L. Cunningham and H. Roble, from the far west, A. Rogers from Florida, and several lads who were sensations at the winter meetings in New Orleans and Cuba haven't hit their stride, or else they were just short lived flashes from the winter turf centers.

Ratavia Purse Today's Feature.

Cunningham was a popular star at Agua Caliente, and at Tanforan and most people who have watched him ride say he is a high class horseman. A lot of these people think he will wind up as Aurora's leading jockey. If he does he will have to start winning races before the meeting is much older.

The Batavia purse at a mile and 70 yards is the feature race on Aurora's program today. Tony Joe, Morsnuff and Little Gyp, all recent winners in Maryland, are in the field and they likely will absorb most of the backing. Celtic Prince's good race in the Inaugural handicap will win him some followers, while Come On and Playfellow's Dream will have to be considered. It seems to be one of the most interesting contests arranged since the Aurora season opened.

Daw Captures First Prize in Bowling Meet

Charley Daw of Milwaukee, who landed second place in the individual event at the American Bowling Congress, last night rolled 1,837 to win the seventeenth annual Petersen bowling classic on the Louis P. Petersen alleys. Daw's count for eight games across sixteen alleys, which surpassed the efforts of the country's leading bowlers, earned him the capital prize of $1,500 and a $500 diamond medal.

The Milwaukee pin star rolled on the last squad and when he had completed seven games he was informed that he needed 202 to pass M. Weinstein of St. Louis, who was leading with 1,815. Daw crashed through with a 223 count and relegated Weinstein to second position.

Third place went to H. Stewart of Fort Wayne, Ind., who toppled the pins for a 1,776 count. Billy Sixty of Milwaukee landed in fourth position with 1,758.

Joe Wilman was the highest Chicagoan on the prize list. He turned in a 1,738 total for fifth. Kurt Pagel of Chicago, who assumed the lead early in the day and then saw Weinstein and later Daw grab first place, wound up sixth with 1,733.

Charles Daw, Milwaukee, 1,837, $1,500.
M. Weinstein, St. Louis, 1,815, $600.
H. Stewart, Fort Wayne, Ind., 1,776, $400.
Billy Sixty, Milwaukee, 1,758, $300.
Joe Wilman, Chicago, 1,738, $200.
Kurt Pagel, Chicago, 1,733, $175.
D. Winsberg, Chicago, 1,718, $160.
F. Benkovic, Milwaukee, 1,703, $150.
C. Ciardo, Milwaukee, 1,685, $140.
F. Facts, Chicago, 1,684, $135.
O. Stein Jr., St. Louis, 1,681, $130.
R. Holmes, St. Louis, 1,680, $125.
E. Marcich, Chicago, 1,675, $122.50.
Hank Marino, Milwaukee, 1,675, $122.50.

Schmeling on Stadium Fight Card Friday

Max Schmeling, world's heavyweight champion, will terminate his present exhibition tour by appearing at the Chicago Stadium Friday night, it was announced by Matchmaker Nate Lewis last night.

Schmeling will box four rounds against two sparring partners on the Young Jack Thompson-Bucky Lawless card, which also features a return match between King Levinsky of Chicago and Emmett Rocco, Elwood City, Pa., Italian heavyweight.

It will be the last public appearance for the heavyweight champion until he opens his training camp in Cleveland the latter part of next week, to begin training for his title bout with W. L. [Young] Stribling in June.

Lawless Seeks 4th Straight.

Schmeling appeared here more than a year ago before he won the championship on a foul in a bout with Jack Sharkey last summer. Since that fight, he has confined his activities to pictures and exhibitions.

Lawless, who gets a chance to make it four straight over welterweight champions in nontitle matches, arrived yesterday. He will begin training today at Mullen's gym.

Lawless, with triumphs over Thompson, Tommy Freeman, and Joe Dundee, expects his showing Friday to place him in a position where the National Boxing association will force Thompson to meet him for the title. No welterweight champion, since Bucky started as a professional five years ago, has ever wanted to risk the title in a match with him.

Rocco Arrives Tomorrow.

Tommy Grogan, Omaha lightweight slugger, and his opponent, Ralph Lenny of Jersey City, will arrive here Wednesday. They fight one of the eight round supporting numbers. The other will bring together Davey Abad, Panama puncher, and Danny Delmont of the west side.

Twenty Grand Is 3 to 1 Favorite in Future Betting

New York, May 3.—[Special.]—Twenty Grand, star colt owned by Mrs. Payne Whitney, which won the Wood memorial last Saturday, has been established as the 3 to 1 favorite in Tom Shaw's future book for the Kentucky Derby. After the finish of the Wood memorial, Shaw had Twenty Grand and Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney's Equipoise in the same notch, at 7 to 2.

Equipoise now is the second choice at 4 to 1, marking the first time he has dropped from the position as favorite since Shaw first gave out future book odds on the Derby several months ago. Mate is third choice, at 6 to 1.

Despite his defeat at Churchill Downs, Insco is listed at 15 to 1, while Pittsburgher, winner of the Seelbach Hotel purse, in which Insco finished out of the money, is carried at 25 to 1. Mrs. Whitney's Surf Board is 15 to 1, and her Anchors Aweigh is 20 to 1, as is Sun Meadow.

Morstone, the son of Morvich, which made such a sensational debut last Friday, has been driven down to 40 to 1. Before Friday last Morstone was a 100 to 1 shot. Walter J. Salmon's Ladder is 30 to 1.

NORTHWESTERN GOLFERS BATTLE ILLINOIS TODAY

Northwestern's golf team will open its home season today against Illinois on the links of the Westmoreland Country club in Wilmette. The Purple won its first start, 10 to 8, against Purdue a week ago. It will be the first match of the year for the Illini.

Dick Martin, Big Ten individual champion last year, and one of the leading amateurs of the middle west, heads the veteran Illinois quartet. The same men who last year won the conference championship are again available. In addition to Martin, they are Fred Lyon, Bob Crowe, and Sam Alpert.

Sun Meadow Will Not Run in Preakness

Baltimore, Md., May 3.—(AP)—The field of prospective starters in Saturday's $50,000 Preakness at Pimlico was reduced by one today with the announcement that Mrs. Katherine Elkins Hitt's Sun Meadow, winner in his first start as a 3 year old, had been thrown out of training because of a cough.

His trainer, Tommy Rodrock, said the colt would not run in the Preakness. Sun Meadow, a stake winner last year, returned to form by defeating Hillsborough, Fortunate Youth, Frisius, Morsel, and a number of other likely prospects of his age Monday.

Several more Preakness candidates will be given a test in the Rennert at Pimlico, among those named being Mad Career, Spirit River, Rip Van Winkle, Aegis, Ilium, My Broom, Hillsborough, Hold Hard, and Great Gun.

pushed Thomas out of the game. Moore took over the pitching and closed the unhappy inning after Melillo had scored the seventh run on Kress' fly to center.

The Appling fever spread to Levey in the home sixth and Sox profited by one run. Simons opened the inning by singling through short for his second hit, and the fourth off Gray. Fothergill popped one into short left and Levey set himself for the catch, but the ball rolled off the ends of his fingers. Simons went to third on Cissell's fly to right and home while Melillo was throwing out Watwood.

Sox Get Second Run.

For the first time during the game the Sox put two hits together in the seventh, and their second run went across. The first of the two hits rattled off Jeffries' bat. Tate flied out and McKain, batting for Moore, drew a pass. He stepped aside to let Kerr run for him. Blue was thrown out on a tap in front of the plate. Melillo knocked down a single by Simons behind second and Jeffries scored, but Kerr, who had neglected to notice that the ball didn't roll into center field, was put out when he made a scramble to return to third.

The Browns hit Braxton for a run in the eighth. It was the visitors' only earned tally. It came about on Kress' double to left, followed by Schulte's single to center. Then Fothergill gave the crowd something to shout about in the same inning by pounding his homer into the second floor of the left field stands. His single, which scored two in the ninth, came after Henline, batting for Braxton, had walked, and Blue had reached base when Goslin dropped a fly ball.

Record Crowd of 35,316 Watches Game.

Brooklyn, N. Y., May 3.—(AP)—The greatest crowd ever to attend a game at Ebbets field, 35,316, saw Dazzy Vance of the Robins get a 4 to 3 decision over Carl Hubbell, Giant southpaw, today. The victory extended Brooklyn's streak to three straight.

Making his second start of the season, Vance had a slight edge over his rival all the way. The fast ball king allowed 10 hits, one more than Hubbell, but was steady in the pinches and received brilliant support in the late innings. Score:

Ruth Returns; Yanks Trounce Red Sox, 8 to 3

New York, May 3.—(AP)—The Yankees took advantage of six Red Sox errors and several bases on balls, to pile up a big lead in the early innings to defeat Boston by a score of 8 to 3.

Roy Sherid allowed the Red Sox only six scattered hits, while the Yankees found a trio of Sox pitchers for ten.

Babe Ruth, after a layoff of more than a week, due to an injured leg, returned to the Yankee lineup and pounded out two hits, drove in a run and scored once. He retired in favor of Byrd in the sixth inning.

DALE ALEXANDER RESUMES PLACE AT TOP OF BIG SIX

Baseball's heaviest sluggers are having little luck in their efforts to dislodge Dale Alexander, Detroit first baseman, from the head of the list. He drops down one day, but is right back in his accustomed place the next.

Two hits out of four attempts against Wes Ferrell, Cleveland star, yesterday put Alexander back at the top with a mark of .469. Virgil Davis, Phillie catcher, went hitless and dropped to second place with .447. The leaders:

Cubs Lose to Cardinals, 5-4, in 11 Innings

The first hit made off Rhem was a double by Hornsby with one out in the fourth. It was nullified immediately, however, for Rhem had to catch Wilson's liner in self defense, and it was an easy matter for him to turn and throw to Gelbert on second to double Hornsby.

Hartnett Drives Out Homer.

Stephenson walked to start the fifth and scored ahead of Hartnett when Gabby knocked his No. 3 homer into the left field stands. Bell filed to Martin, Grimm was thrown out by Adams, and May filed to Gelbert.

Gabby was not so heroic in the next inning, for he was called out on strikes with the bases full. After Cuyler and English had fanned, Hornsby was put on first when Umpire Quigley caught Jimmy Wilson tipping Hornsby's bat. Hack Wilson then knocked the first of his two successive doubles, Hornsby stopping at third. Stephenson walked after a count of three balls and two strikes, filling the bases. Hartnett also ran the count to three and two, but was out when he let the third strike cut the plate.

Tie Score in Seventh.

In the seventh the Cubs tied the score. Adams threw out Bell, but Grimm singled to center. Moore batted for May and forced Grimm. A double play was averted because Rhem started the play with a wide throw to Gelbert. Cuyler caromed a single off Rhem's glove, Moore stopping at second. English singled to right, scoring Moore and putting Cuyler on third. Cuyler went home and English reached third when Orsatti's return throw went to the screen. Hornsby flied to Douthit.

Hack Wilson led off the eighth with his second double, and, after Stephenson had fouled out to Bottomley, went to third when Frisch booted Hartnett's grounder. Bell then tapped into a double play, Frisch to Gelbert to Bottomley.

Grimm's Double Wasted.

The ninth started with a double by Grimm. Blake was called out on strikes and Cuyler fanned for the third time. English and Hornsby walked, filling the bases, but Frisch threw out Wilson.

Having been twice disappointed, in the eighth and ninth, the Cubs became quite placid in the tenth and eleventh.

Reports on New Rules Worry Duck Hunters

BY BOB BECKER.

Although the hunting season is many months ahead, thousands of sportsmen are worried over the new regulations governing water fowl shooting as recently put into effect. The trouble is found in the widespread flurry of rumors which has followed the edict from the government.

Here is the straight dope on the new regulations for water fowl hunting this coming fall:

Shooting over live duck decoys so far has not been changed. The government has issued no regulations with respect to this practice. You can use 100 or 1,000 live duck decoys, as many as you please as far as the United States government is concerned.

But goose hunters are restricted to ten live geese decoys per blind. In other words, you can have just ten live goose callers either staked out around in the blind or in a pen near that blind. Ten is the limit.

This regulation has nothing to do with duck shooting. If you hunt at a stand where both ducks and geese can be decoyed it is possible to put 500 or 5,000 live duck decoys in a pen near that blind, but not more than ten live goose decoys.

Contrary to the thousands of erroneous reports going the rounds, the biological survey and the department of agriculture has issued no regulations on putting out feed for water fowl. Several organizations have been waging a fight to abolish all artificial feeding of water fowl. This much is true. But nothing has been done to interfere with tossing out grain or corn to ducks or geese.

When it comes to definite restrictions on shooting certain kinds of water fowl we have this situation: It is absolutely against the federal law to hunt or kill the greater snow goose, Ross' goose, and the cackling goose.

Another order on water fowl hunting, as we announced some weeks ago, has cut fifteen days from the hunting season. Paul G. Redington, chief of the United States biological survey, summed up the entire game situation for us a few days ago when we saw him at the Izaak Walton league convention.

The two big needs for water fowl right now, according to Redington, are plenty of rain in the north so that the ducks can have a good year; ample sloughs in which to nest; and three times as many federal wardens to enforce the law against the duck bootleggers and pothunters.

Wildcats After 5th Victory in Hawkeye Tilt

Northwestern and Iowa meet at Roycemore field in Evanston today in the second of their two game series. The Wildcats won, 10 to 6, at Iowa City two weeks ago. Northwestern also has a game tomorrow with Hosei University of Japan.

The Wildcats will be out after their fifth conference victory today. Buck Fyfe, veteran hurler, will be called upon to subdue the Hawkeyes. He has not pitched since beating Notre Dame last Wednesday. Ricke probably will be the visitors' pitcher.

Heavy hitting, coupled with effective pitching, has placed Northwestern in the running for the Big Ten title. The Purple was beaten by Illinois in the first game of the season, but has won four and tied one since then.

GEORGE F. BAKER FUNERAL TO BE HELD TOMORROW

Financier to Be Buried at Tuxedo Park Estate.

New York, May 3.—(AP)—The stillness of the customary Sabbath quiet of the financial district was intensified today while a bereaved family prepared to bury George Fisher Baker, colossus of finance and gentle spirited philanthropist, whose 91 year career was ended by pneumonia last night.

It was Sunday, but resting in their homes, those who dwell in the high places of business and finance felt no unrest. George Baker had builded strong and well and the uncertainty and flurry that attended the passing of a great leader in days gone by was absent—a triumph of organization.

Many men will step into the places George Baker has vacated and carry on the affairs that he attended to long past the three score and ten years allotted to most men.

At the Madison avenue mansion where the financier slept his long sleep, Frank Risavy, his secretary, announced the funeral arrangements decided upon at a family conference.

Funeral to Be Tomorrow.

The funeral will be held Tuesday at the Tuxedo Park, N. Y., estate. A special train will leave the Erie railroad terminal in Jersey City at 10:30 a. m., bearing all those who will attend the services.

The Rev. Minot Simon, pastor of the All Souls Unitarian church, New York, of which Mr. Baker was a trustee for fifty years, will conduct the services.

There will be no eulogy, in accordance with a wish expressed by Mr. Baker, nor will honorary pallbearers be named, for the same reason. The services will consist of a hymn, invocation, a prayer, a scriptural reading, a hymn, a prayer, and another hymn, followed by a benediction.

Interment will be in the family vault at Kensico cemetery.

Union League Names Committee.

Charles G. Spaulding, president of the Union League club, announced the names of a committee chosen to attend the funeral. They included:

His death leaves only one aged sentinel on the outposts of that last frontier that witnessed the rearing of a civilization of steel upon the foundation of a hardy pioneering nation. That is John D. Rockefeller Sr.

The others—J. Pierpont Morgan, the elder; James J. Hill, Henry C. Frick, Andrew Carnegie, Thomas F. Ryan, and others—have passed on.

While primarily interested in finance George Baker did much to make it possible to lay the bands of steel on which the tide of empire moved westward while in the comparatively congested east his financial acumen conquered anew.

LITTLE ORPHAN ANNIE: Home Again

U. S. MOVES TO RELIEVE JAM OF 26,000 IN PRISONS

13,000 in 1,000 Jails; Many Dry Violators.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 3.—[Special.]—More substantial and fundamental progress has been made toward improving conditions in federal prisons during the last year than has occurred in any similar period, it is claimed in a report made public today from Sanford Bates, director of the bureau of prisons, to President Hoover.

Two years ago Mr. Bates said, there were 3,339 persons confined in federal prisons and 962 persons confined in federal prisons and 963 under parole. Construction plans provided for the accommodation of some 5,600. There was, therefore, he said, "very bad overcrowding." Furthermore he pointed out, "the very rapid increase in prisoners through more vigorous enforcement of the law gives today 12,598 persons in prison and 2,624 under parole."

Mostly Dry Law Violators.

There also are, he reported, 13,000 short term federal prisoners and prisoners awaiting trial on federal charges distributed among 1,000 jails and county institutions.

In his letter to the President, Mr. Bates made no mention of the offenses which placed these 26,000 persons behind bars, but his last annual report showed that of the total number of federal long term prisoners received from the courts during the last fiscal year 45 per cent were sentenced for violating the prohibition laws and 4 per cent for violating other liquor laws. And department of justice estimates have figured that two-thirds of the federal prisoners in county jails were held for violation of the prohibition act.

Outlines Relief Plans.

Among the new construction designed to relieve this condition of overcrowding Mr. Bates listed a $3,400,000 penitentiary to be built in central Pennsylvania; the new reformatory at El Reno, Okla.; a temporary prison at Camp Lee near Petersburg, Va.; five new buildings at the Chillicothe reformatory; the $2,500,000 institution for defective delinquints at Springfield, Mo., and four new or remodeled federal jails, at New Orleans, Billings, Mont., El Paso, Tex., and near Detroit.

He reported that eight temporary honor camps caring for 1,200 have proved successful.

TO TRY TO IDENTIFY WOMAN IN HOSPITAL AS MRS. GUNNESS

Los Angeles, Cal., May 3.—[Special.]—Two men will stand at the bedside of Mrs. Esther Carlson in the General hospital tomorrow and grope for recollections out of a misty past in an attempt to identify Mrs. Carlson as Mrs. Belle Gunness, missing La Porte, Ind., "murder farm" woman.

The men are R. C. Ganiere, grocer here, but a neighbor of Mrs. Gunness in Chicago twenty-five years ago, and L. E. Silvey of Monterey, formerly a resident of La Porte.

Mrs. Carlson, awaiting trial charged with the poison murder of August Lindstrom, retired Lomita lumberman, has been seriously ill since her arrest. Ganiere has told Deputy District Attorney George Stahlman that a picture of Mrs. Carlson, shown to him, strongly resembles Mrs. Gunness, whose La Porte home was burned in 1908 in a fire which was supposed to have killed her three children and herself. Mrs. Carlson, or Mrs. Gunness, now is thought to have escaped death in the fire.

YANK RESCUER OF JOHN BOYLE O'REILLY DIES

New Bedford, Mass., May 3.—(AP)—Capt. Henry C. Hathaway, rescuer of John Boyle O'Reilly, died tonight in his 90th year.

A native of New Bedford, he went to sea at the age of 15. Two years later while he was fourth officer of the whaling bark Gazelle he assisted in the escape of the famous Irish poet and later pulled him from the water when a whaling boat smashed up.

O'Reilly had fled from a penal colony in Australia and was picked up by the Gazelle. British officials sought O'Reilly on shipboard and the whale men dumped a grindstone overboard and threw O'Reilly's hat after it. The British were informed the poet had jumped overboard.

Later, while Hathaway and O'Reilly were in pursuit of a whale, their boat smashed. Hathaway pulled O'Reilly from the water when help came. The poet later dedicated one of his volumes of verse to the Yankee whaler.

FIND GIRL SLAIN; VICTIM STABBED A DOZEN TIMES

San Diego, Cal., May 3.—(AP)—San Diego police were confronted by their fourth recent death mystery with discovery today of the body of Hazel Bradshaw, 19 year old telephone operator, in an old Indian village in Balboa park.

Police said the girl had been stabbed in a dozen places. They believed she had been raped before she was killed.

Following the strangling Feb. 10 of Virginia Brooks, a schoolgirl, the unclothed body of 16 year old Louise Teuber was found suspended by the neck from a tree near Black mountain two weeks ago, and the next Thursday the body of Mrs. Dolly Bibbens was found strangled in her home. None of the killings has been solved.

IMPROVED TONE NOTED IN WHEAT ALL OVER WORLD

Short Spring Crop Is Expected.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Wheat markets the world over have given a better account of themselves the last two weeks. This has surprised the trade, as sentiment has been so excessively bearish, the only bullish factor being the expectation of a short spring crop of wheat in the American and Canadian northwest, unless there are good rains in the immediate future.

Every day without rain removes the possibility of a large spring wheat crop and at the same time prospects are for one of the largest winter wheat crops known.

Wheat met liberal selling on all breaks by speculators who have taken advantage of low prices to pick up fair sized lines, believing there is a trading market and not much is to be expected. Those who have pressed the short side in several instances had to cover at higher prices.

Winter wheat prospects over practically the entire belt never were better and private crop reports give an estimated range from 632,000,000 bu to 652,000,000 bu, with an average of 644,000,000 bu.

Heavy Crop Probable.

Experts express the belief that with continued perfect conditions a crop of 700,000,000 bu or more is not improbable. This, however, is considerably less than the record of 760,000,000 bu in 1919 when the spring wheat crop was only 208,000,000 bu and the total of all wheat 968,000,000 bu. In 1915 winter wheat crop was 674,000,000 bu and spring 252,000,000 bu, a record yield of 1,036,000,000 bu. That was at the beginning of the world war and foreigners took all the wheat available from the United States and Canada. Should the United States raise 700,000,000 bu of winter and 200,000,000 bu of spring wheat, there would be 900,000,000 bu. With carryover of 275,000,000 bu the total supply would be 1,175,000,000 bu, and give a surplus that would be difficult to dispose of unless Australian and Argentine production should fall down materially.

That these countries are prepared to reduce their acreage is generally understood and Canada is to have a smaller acreage this year, so that with the surpluses in North and South America, there will be a sufficient supply to satisfy all foreign buyers, especially should Russia have a liberal exportable surplus.

Farm Board Sells Wheat.

The Farmers National Grain corporation was a heavy seller of grains for May delivery at the opening of the month for customers. As an agent for the government its operations, combined with the Grain Stabilization corporation, surprised the trade on Friday by taking more than 36,000,000 bu of wheat, of which more than 23,000,000 bu were at Minneapolis. Other heavy deliveries were at Kansas City, Omaha, Chicago, and at a number of interior points in Kansas. This gives the government control of practically all the cash wheat in public houses and a considerable holding of good milling wheat in private elevators throughout the country.

All the hard wheat at Atlantic and gulf ports held by the farm board has been disposed of and the situation looks brighter to government officials, who are understood to have disposed of about all the 35,000,000 bu they were advertised to sell by July 1. The impression of the trade, however, is that they have 200,000,000 bu on hand to be sold.

July wheat sold at 59¾c at the opening of the week and closed Saturday at 63¾@63¾c. September was down to 59½c and closed Saturday at 61¾@61¾c, with December 66¾@66½c. Active spreading occurred between Winnipeg and Chicago, the latter being bought and the former sold. A good export business in Canadian wheat, coupled with drought talk, brought a reaction and a close at 62c for May, a net gain of 3¼c, with other months up 3¼@3½c, July being 61¾@62¼c and October 65¾@65½c. Liverpool gained only 1⅛c for the week, with May finishing at 66⅝c and July at 67¾c. Prices for the week follow:

	May.	July.	September.
Mon	53¾- 55½	56¼- 58	56⅝-58⅝
Tues	54 - 55¾	56⅝- 57⅞	56⅞-58½

Corn at New Lows.

Heavy general liquidation in corn, particularly in May, carried prices down to new low levels, 53⅞c for May, 56⅛c for July, and 49⅜c for December, the latter being made Saturday, but it rallied and closed at 50½@50⅝c. May closed at 55⅝c; July, 57⅝@57⅝c; September, 57¾@57⅝c.

Deliveries of cash corn on May contracts were 1,000,000 bu.

ANNOUNCES PROGRAM FOR BETTERMENT OF U. S. BANKING SYSTEM

New York, May 3.—(AP)—A comprehensive program for banking betterment by management reforms and legislative supervisory measures is presented in the second section of the report of the American Bankers association economic policy commission, made public today by the chairman, R. S. Hecht, president of the Hibernia Bank and Trust company of New Orleans.

"The nation is now in the bottom of, we hope, the first stages of a new business cycle," the report says. "Sooner or later a new period of expansion and prosperity will develop. We have before us the fresh lessons of the mistakes and mismanagement that brought the last period of prosperity to an end in one of the greatest economic disasters of the country's history. Banking cannot adopt a pharisaical attitude and say that we did not sin, as other business did against sound economic principles."

The report specifies improvements in the field of bank management as liquidation or consolidation of banks were changed local conditions render this desirable; wider affiliation among state banks with the federal reserve system; development of limited branch banking where economic conditions and legal authority make it expedient; more general practice, especially lacking among country banks, to analyze the cost of carrying accounts and other operating details and the establishment of proper service charges to make all classes of function profitable; more general application of the theory and practice of secondary reserves; avoidance by banks of undue borrowing merely to increase their own profits by relending at higher rates, or to overexpand credit to local communities through city, county or regional clearing houses; insistence upon higher educational effort and qualifications among employes.

Among external measures, the report purposes the broadening in the states of branch banking laws where conditions warrant an extension of this type of service; establishment of sound minimum capital funds under which banks will be allowed to operate, "which should be materially higher than now prevails in most states;" and provision of funds and regulations to keep the official staffs of bank supervisory departments "up to a level of ability and integrity which will universally inspire confidence among bankers whose activities they are empowered to review."

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 3.—Signs of improvement in the steel industry are noted by Ernest T. Weir, chairman of the National Steel corporation, who expressed the opinion that the industry in general has reached its low point.

"Improvement in consumption is still small," he said, "but it is on the increase. Some very large consuming interests have recently expressed their confidence that the low point in general business has been passed. The low earnings of the steel companies in no way justify any reduction in wages. Any reductions would probably be passed along in the form of lower prices.

"Large buyers of steel are entirely satisfied with prices, which means that they are as low as is necessary to stimulate competition. Our largest customers are opposed to wage cuts even though they would result in lower steel prices."

Wade, vice president of Wilk, Clarke & Co., investment securities, 39 South La Salle street, takes charge today as receiver of the Builders and Merchants Bank and Trust company, 5157 North Clark street. Formerly the Builders and Merchants State bank, it became the bank and trust company upon merger with the Capital State bank several months ago. Pending a thorough investigation of the condition of the bank, Mr. Wade declined to make any comment.

PRICE DECLINES PUT DARK CLOUD IN BUSINESS SKY

See Snowden Action as Encouraging.

New York, May 3.—(AP)—Wide declines in commodity and security prices were disturbing factors in the general business situation during the last week, although statistics appearing indicated the sag from the spring peak of activity may be moderating.

Steel production showed little change, after five successive weeks of slackening output, and latest reports of the movement of revenue freight and electric power consumption were encouraging. Retail trade suffered from cool and wet weather over extensive areas, but there was little change in the wholesale and jobbing markets.

The further decline in equity share prices, along with a fresh slump in commodity prices, and reports showing even more drastic shrinkage of corporate earning power than expected, injected considerable gloom, but the actual volume of aggregate business seemed well maintained around recent levels, which is about the best that can be expected, in view of the normal seasonal trend at this period.

Eye British Budget.

A development which commanded world-wide attention was the budget message of the chancellor of the British exchequer at the start of the week. The fact that Mr. Snowden's expectation of trade recovery was sanguine enough to lead him to suggest only temporary expedients to meet the deficit was widely accepted as of highly encouraging significance, in view of the wealth of information on world economic trends which presumably governed his decision, despite the obvious political aspects of his problem.

The quarterly reports of the United States and Bethlehem Steel corporations, showing negligible profits for the equity shareholders, gave strong evidence that this basic industry, as well as several others, can only hope to break even with output restricted to about half of capacity. It is also recognized that there is scant hope of quickened operations before the approach of autumn. Eugene G. Grace, president of Bethlehem, felt, however, that operations might be held at current levels.

New Building Lags.

Further reports of the volume of building have been disappointing. Although April usually experiences a fair gain over March, reports of building contracts in the states east of the Rockies are now available for the first three weeks, and the daily average rate is 24 per cent under that of March. Observers state that the process of deflation seems still to be going forward in real estate values, and important recovery in building is likely to await stability.

Declines in commodities were pronounced in nonferrous metals and cotton, which broke to new bottom prices for many years. Reports of rapid reduction of stocks on wheat in Europe, however, was a sustaining factor in that market, and hides maintained a good tone.

EASTERN GROUP RAIL VALUATION OFFICE TO CLOSE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 3.—The eastern group office of the presidential conference committee of the railroads, which was opened April 1, 1914, to expedite the valuation of railroads in accordance with the La Follette law, will close June 30, according to announcement. In the period of its life the office has served as a clearing house for information for all railways in the eastern group, particularly in the supply of data on construction cost. Valuation of the railroads has cost $160,000,000 since 1913, of which about $35,000,000 was supplied by the government.

L. F. Loree is chairman of the conference and of the valuation committee. H. E. Hale, who entered the valuation office as group engineer on its formation and who has been vice chairman of the valuation committee for five years, is resigning that position to form an engineering firm.

The valuation act of 1913, which was furthered by the late Senator Robert A. La Follette, provided that the railroads be valued in order that returns to holders of their securities should be based on their value and not on their capitalization. At one time some railroads in the country were overcapitalized, although since then they have increased in value to a total commensurate with their capitalization.

EVENTS FULFILL PROPHECIES OF TRADE EXPERTS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 3.—When the present year began, with considerable doubt as to what was to happen next year, but a general feeling that we had seen the worst, there was one certainty in the immediate financial sequel. It was that the markets would presently be confronted with extremely bad comparisons of company earnings and with numerous cuts in dividends. When monthly net operating profits on the railways had fallen nearly one-third from 1929, to the smallest sum since the same months of 1921, and when dividends of companies like the New York Central and the Baltimore and Ohio had been raised in 1929 to the highest rates in forty or fifty years, there could be no reasonable doubt as to what action would be taken by the directors.

When the steel trade was known to have been working on the average barely 50 per cent of capacity, as against 80 and 90 per cent in the corresponding quarter two or three years ago, there was no ground for expecting that the United States Steel would have earned its full dividend. The dividend might be paid and the deficit met through drawing on the company's very large accumulated surplus. That had been done on several previous occasions—during the whole of 1922, for instance, when every quarter showed a deficit after payment of unchanged dividends, but the unfavorable statements remained now as they did then.

Uncertain of Effect.

While, therefore, this season's reports of company earnings and the action on various dividends was quite unmistakably foreshadowed three or four months ago, it could not be as surely inferred what effect they would have on the markets and on financial sentiment. It might perhaps have been surmised that positive knowiege of what was due to happen, in the earnings reports and dividend policy, would have deprived the actual news of any serious influence. Sometimes this is the actual course of things on such occasions; but not always.

In 1922 such announcements seemed to have been anticipated and mentally "discounted"; but in the early part of 1915, for instance, although the rate of steel production had very late

May Oats Touch 25¾c.

Oats specialists expressed the belief on Saturday that liquidation in May oats was practically finished, with a drop to 25¾c, the season's low and also the lowest in recent years. The close was at 26¼@26¼c. Cash interests have taken the May and also picked up the deliveries at the close of the week. The impression prevailed at the last that oats had about reached bottom. July closed at 26¾@26¾c, September 27¾ and December 29¾c. Prices were unchanged to ½c lower at the last. The week's range follows:

Discovers New Process of Making Glass from Slag

Auburn, Ala., May 3.—(AP)—A new process of manufacturing glass from slag refuse of blast furnaces and common building sand was announced here today by Dr. C. A. Basore, professor of chemistry and industrial research at Alabama Polytechnic institute. Through his discovery Dr. Basore said he believed thousands of tons of molten slag now going to waste may, by the addition of sand, be manufactured into glass in commereial quantities.

Northern Indiana Public Service.

Will you give me your opinion of Northern Indiana Public Service company 6 per cent preferred? The company is located in Goshen and other Indiana towns.—D. E. S.

Northern Indiana Public Service company was originally incorporated in 1912. Control is held by Midland Utilities company, which in turn is controlled by Midland United company, an Insull holding concern. It supplies electricity, gas, and water to 206 communities in Indiana.

Net income has shown a steady upward trend. Total operating revenue for 1930 was $14,775,113 against $14,-864,619 for 1929. Net income for 1930 was $3,670,372 against $3,337,134 for 1929.

Interest charges were earned 2.79 times and preferred dividend requirements 2.84 times in 1930. In 1929 interest requirements were covered 3.23 times and preferred dividend requirements 2.21 times. The decreased margin by which interest and preferred dividends were earned reflects increased capitalization in 1930.

Net income for 1928 was $3,076,802 and for 1927 $2,784,902.

The physical volume of gas sold in 1930 was 5.09 per cent under 1929. This decrease was ascribed to the much higher heating value of the gas supplied in 1930. Sale of electrical energy increased 9.72 per cent.

The 1930 construction program was the largest in the history of the company and called for an expenditure of $19,456,732. This was applied to the construction of a large electric generating station at Michigan City, Ind., and other improvements and acquisitions.

On Sept. 12, 1930, the public service commission of Indiana authorized the transfer and sale of certain properties by Interstate Public Service company in return for other properties. Northern Indiana Public Service company was permitted to take over Goshen-Warsaw and the Monticello districts of the Interstate company at a price of $5,366,593. The Interstate company was permitted to take over Lafayette, Frankfort, Lebanon, and Crawfordsville districts at a price of $6,186,830. On Oct. 28, 1930, it was announced that the company had completed a 93 mile gas transmission line.

On Dec. 31, 1930, current assets were $4,675,748 and current liabilities were $2,332,711. The company had outstanding $50,970,000 of funded debt, 69,900 shares of $7 preferred, 109,834 shares of $6 preferred, 25,997 shares of $5.50 preferred, and 1,806,870 shares of no par common. The preferred is all $100 par.
